Downing, Liquor, Bonds, Win Beach Easily

Richard Nixon Takes City, State and Presidency

Thomas N. Downing easily won re-election in the First Congressional District Tuesday. Virginia Beach returns helped him run up an overwhelming plurality over his two opponents.

Unofficial returns in Virginia Beach gave Downing 25,023 votes; James S. Stafford, 3,020; and Rev. J. Cornelius Fauntleroy, 1,955.

Liquor-by-the-drink was also overwhelmingly approved in Virginia Beach. Only two precincts voted against the option.

Creeds, where it lost by 11 votes and Capps shop where it lost by 19 votes. Citywide voters gave liquor-by-the-drink a 2 to 1 majority. The vote was: For, 25,450; Against, 13,293.

Both bond issues, for education and mental institutions also passed easily in Virginia Beach. The education bonds passed by a better than 3 to 1 majority while the mental institution bonds passed by better than 5 to 1. In the first issue the unofficial vote was 24,858 for and 7,044 against. In the second the vote was 26,667 for and 5,968.

In the presidential race Richard Nixon won 15 of the city's 26 precincts to pile up a 16,406 count. In second place was George Wallace who won eight precincts with a total vote of 10,959. Hubert Humphrey polled 10,097 votes in Virginia Beach and won three precincts. Other candidates together polled 208 votes unofficially.

Virginia Beach voters turned out in record numbers. Although the exact number who went to the polls was not fully determined at press time late Wednesday, it appeared that about 40,000 persons, or about 75 percent of the city's registered voters went to the polls. This is about ten per cent higher than four years ago when more than 23,000 went to the polls in the presidential election.

The turnout was heavy throughout the day. Aragona, Woodstock, Kempsville, Plaza and others reported a line all day long. When the polls closed large numbers of voters were still in line. Aragona did not finish voting until 11:30 p.m.

School Census Completed

The official population of the city of Virginia Beach, minus babies under a year old, is 168,170.

The long-delayed and long-anticipated school census is finished, and the results were to have been forwarded to the Director of Research of the State Board of Education, to the City Planning Commission and to City Council, by the end of this week.

All the forms were in last Friday, according to School Supt. E. E. Brickell, who said the survey had included a "mountain of paperwork."

"Preliminary figures indicate that population estimates made by the Planning Commission were about right," said Brickell.

The Planning Commission has estimated the current population at about 172,000, or about 20,000 above that estimated by the University of Virginia. Tax money is distributed on the University estimate.

Brickell also said the survey (See "Census," p. 3) until after 9 p.m., two hours after the polling place closed and an election official was placed at the end of the line. The first precinct to be reported was Capps Shop, which came in at 7:17 p.m. It was nearly midnight when the final precinct, Aragona, came in. Throughout the evening as the precincts came in, the winners in the city were apparent. There was never any real question as to the winners in any race as the returns began to pour in. Once the trend was established, it was never reversed in any contest.

Stadium Plans Get Norfolk Go-Ahead

Norfolk City Council forged ahead Tuesday with plans for at least one stadium near Landsdale Circle in Norfolk to be ready in the spring of 1970.

In giving the go-ahead for the construction of an 8,000 seat baseball stadium, Norfolk City Council accepted the offer of the New York Mets to pay half of the expected cost of $1 million dollars. The Council also gave a go-ahead to plans for the larger football stadium in the two-stadium complex, but not to construction.

A great amount of criticism has come from officials in other Tidewater cities concerning a study of regional stadium needs and Norfolk's plans to build the complex on a site of its own choosing in Norfolk.

While the consultants' report, bought and paid for by Norfolk, accepted the Military Highway site it also pointed out that a number of excellent sites were available in Virginia Beach.

In apparent attempts to satisfy some of these complaints, Norfolk City Manager Thomas Woodstock and Kempsville voted 3,419 and 3,980 respectively, for the largest vote in the city. A year ago in the general election the largest vote in the city also came from these precincts. Kempsville voted a misty rain in Virginia Beach, but that did not stop the voters or the poll workers who also turned out in record numbers. The turnout in most precincts exceeded all others, although they did not man the Sealeck precinct. Campaign manager

At noon London Bridge precinct had voted 1,000 persons, but the pace was still leisurely. The lines came later after dark.

Louis Darden said he didn't want any trouble. Wallace received four votes in that precinct. Downing lost that precinct to Fauntleroy, a Negro, but it is significant that he did poll 239 votes to Fauntleroy's 418. The total vote was 754 in the precinct, and Downing won more than 91 per cent of the vote there. It was the only precinct in which he lost.

A total of 1,700 absentee ballots also had to be counted. Citizens had requested 1,000 of those and military, the rest.

Few polls were manned in Virginia Beach by workers against liquor-by-the-drink. In most places the guide ballots favoring liquor were handed out by the Democratic workers.

Blvd. Traffic Is Heavier Than Before Expressway

Traffic counts on several parts of Virginia Beach Blvd. in Virginia Beach during October showed that traffic is as heavy and heavier in some places than it was at the time the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway was planned.

Last month 22,000 to 27,000 vehicles also used the expressway, according to recently published figures.

Traffic counts made by Reeves E. Johnson, chief of traffic safety in Virginia Beach, showed that 24,500 vehicles entered or left the city at Davis Corner daily; 27,000 crossed the counters in both directions between Chinese Corner and Independence Blvd; 30,600 vehicles passed in both directions at Princess Anne High School; 22,000 vehicles were counted at Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center; and 24,000 were counted between Little Neck Road and Lynnhaven Road.

In September more than 29,000 vehicles crossed traffic counters in front of King's Department Store at London Bridge.

Johnson said it appeared that the 30,600 figure near Princess Anne High School probably resulted in much local traffic from the Plaza, Windsor Woods Birchwood and Thalia to the Pembroke area shopping centers.

Use of the toll road in one direction on the way to work and use of the Blvd. in the evening in the other or vice versa has also complicated the picture, according to Johnson. He said also that some persons are driving farther to an on-ramp to pay only ten cents instead of going through the main toll plaza at 25 cents. This is evidenced by the more

There were no write-in votes in Virginia Beach. For CBS comedian Pat Paulsen, who conducted an "on-air" campaign for the presidency.

The day was relatively quiet at the polls and quite orderly, except for an occasional clash between poll workers for the candidates.

John James, electoral board chairman, said a Republican called to complain about unnecessary delays at Aragona, but that a check revealed the delay as caused only by the heavy turnout. He also said a lady called to complain about the "carnival type atmosphere" with a refreshment stand set up at King's Grant (See "Election" p. 3.)

Blvd. Traffic Is Heavier Than Before Expressway

than doubling of traffic on Bonney Road from Virginia Beach Blvd. to Independence Blvd. since a year ago. Where the road used to carry 4,000-5,000, the count is now in excess of 8,500, according to Johnson.

Last year at this same time a survey at Davis Corner showed 35,000 vehicles, according to Johnson.

"It is reasonable to estimate that the same point would be carrying about 50,000 vehicles a day without the expressway," said Johnson.

He also said the traffic on the Blvd. is still growing rapidly with new housing and commercial development. Conversely there have been only 300 accidents on the road to date this year, compared to 800 a year ago. No one has been killed on the one time "killer" this year, said Johnson, compared to three persons, killed last year at this time.

Johnson said he is asking for a study by the state of additional off and on ramps to the expressway at Rosemont Road and at London Bridge. He said he believes both would be better than Lynnhaven Road, where he says traffic has not picked up considerably since the expressway opened.

"I also think there is room for great consideration of a study of the Blvd. by Norfolk and Virginia Beach," said Johnson.

He suggested that the feeder lanes might be made smaller in both cities and a third local traffic lane added to the Blvd. He added that he believes the time is nearing where consultants must be called in to survey the entire situation before the city is "caught short."

Beach Awaits Water Contract

City Council spent a few minutes in closed session Monday at its informal meeting and heard a report from City Manager Roger Scott on the water contract with Norfolk which expires on Dec. 31 and which has been under negotiation for several months.

While no one would say exactly where the negotiations stand, agreement is reported near on some type of contract for the continuation of purchase of water from Norfolk, either in bulk or by meter. Currently water is metered directly to the

Residents In Favor Of Pumping

It would appear that the residents of Virginia Beach like their oceanfront, and want to see it remain as is or better. In answer to last week's SUN SURVEY, all but one who answered said "Yes" to the question, "Should the City of Virginia Beach continue its successful but costly efforts to control erosion and pump new sand along the Atlantic Ocean beach?"

The efforts of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, which began in the early 1950's, have won a new vote of confidence from the SUN SURVEY. In the past, while cost of the project has sometimes been criticized, the reclaiming efforts have been highly successful.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the entire thinking of the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to clip out the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question in the lower left corner of this page. Future surveys will appear each week in the same spot. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more correct and responsible the opinion.

(See "Council" p. 2.)

Law to Be Followed In Matter of Alley

This driveway could become an alley depending on legal action now underway. A dispute still looms.

Ordinarily the opening or the closing of an alley anywhere in the city of Virginia Beach is a simple administrative matter handled by the City Manager's office.

The City Code and State Code on the other hand provide a procedure for handling sticky cases, and that procedure is a rigid one.

Ordinarily when a matter of this type comes up all residents of the area close by want the action taken or don't care one way or the other. So it is usually a simple matter.

This is not so in the case of a short block-long alley in Virginia Beach. Residents along Atlantic Avenue between 51st and 52nd Streets wanted access to the rear of their lots. On paper there is an alley owned by the city that can be opened to give them that access. Not all of the residents care and not all even want the alley, but that is not the problem.

The problem is that the proposed alley would come within 100 feet of a residential zone. (See "Alley" p. 2.)

Kempsville H. S. Club Adopt Boy

By Debbie Bowman

Kempsville High School

During the past two years, the Fidelis Tri-Hi-Y of Kempsville High School have been sponsoring an orphan in Taiwan. Huang Chung-Hsun, whose nickname is "Charlie," was adopted last year by the members of Fidelis as a major project.

Charlie is six years old, and loves to play house. His home, which is in Taiwan, is run by his grandfather. Taiwan, or Formosa, is a mountainous island in the South China Sea. Formosa, meaning the Beautiful Island, is inhabited by free Chinese and native aborigines.

Like most of her native people, Charlie will grow to live and work under the same cultural folkways of his native land. But Charlie will have an advantage over most of Taiwan's 7,500,000 inhabitants. He will probably wear the Western dress and go barefoot, but he will have a chance to go to school and have a higher education.

This advantage will help him to grow to work and appreciate his country and her people. His first year of school will be shared with more than 1,000,000 other children. More than 80 technical schools offer advanced training but only 20 per cent continue to further education, because of financial needs or Charlie pressures of poverty-stricken life.

Fidelis, which is sponsored by Miss Kathryn Land, Miss June Blasingame, Miss Sally High and Mrs. Thomas Scott is a Christian group whose main objective is to create and maintain high standards of Christian character.

Linda Wilson, president of Fidelis, hopes to do this throughout home, school, and community activities.

Project "Charlie" is one of many projects. They also collect magazines for old peoples' homes, organize car washes, prepare coffees for the teachers and help promote school spirit by decorating goal posts.

Other officers include Becky

Adkins, Brenda Musselman, Mary Felchner, Cindy Martin, and Lynn Newbern.

Fidelis sponsored a dance on Oct. 20 for the benefit of Charlie. A crowd of more than 200 gathered to dance to the big beat of the Beachnuts. Upon interview, the drummer and lead singer remarked "that it was a lively and large crowd." Over $250 was collected to benefit and make Charlie happy.

Drill Team Takes Part Many Times

The First Colonial Drill Team is starting its third organized year with its first year of complete participation in all of the football games.

The Drill Team will march in the Armed Forces parade for its third consecutive year and will march in the Azalea parade for its second year. The Drill Team also marched in the Oyster Bowl parade.

The captain of the team is Hazel Hines, a senior. The co-captain is Marjory Richards, a junior. The 21 members are in the ninth through the twelfth grades. With these girls and their sponsors, Mrs. Warren and Mr. Fry, the students of First Colonial High School have become proud of the Drill Team.

Bayside Homecoming

Bayside High School

Anne Hill, senior, was chosen Homecoming Queen from Bayside High School.

Anne is a member of the Atlantic Ecology Club and is a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship. The crowning took place on Bayside's field as part of the half-time Homecoming activities during the football game between Bayside and Cradock.

There is a mock presidential election planned for Bayside. In this election students are urged to show they would exercise the right to vote if they had such a right, by voting in the mock election.

An organization at Bayside, the Human Relations Council, is serving as a prototype for similar organizations in other area high schools. The basic goal of the Human Relations Council is to improve communications and understanding between the races.

Homecoming Celebrated

By Deborah Peebles

U K High School

The Union Kempsville Tigers played their Homecoming game against Westside of Smithfield on Oct. 25. Even though the Tigers lost, the game proved to be very exciting, especially the crowning of the new Miss Homecoming.

The Jacob Junior High School Band of Norfolk played during the half time activities. The new Miss Homecoming, Shirley Olds, was crowned by Sylvia Brown, Miss Homecoming of last year. Shirley Olds was escorted by Linwood Skinner and Sylvia Brown by Kenneth Bowe. The attendants were Alveeta Harold, escorted by Carlos Wilson, and Isolan Jackson, escorted by Jesse Davis.

The Xino Club was represented by Evone Foreman and Deborah Gregory. Darlene Mason, who was elected Miss Bachelorette, represented the Bachelor Club.

Class Meeting Is Scheduled

The initial meeting of the Inquirer's Confirmation Class will be at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 11 at Galilee Episcopal Church.

Thalia School Plans Carnival

The P.T.A. of Thalia Elementary School will sponsor a carnival Nov. 9 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the school.

Danny Kaye bidding farewell to witches, gypsies and the rest of the "little people" who had gathered at the Norfolk airport to meet him on his UNICEF tour.

Kids Have Moment to Remember

A bit of magic took place Oct. 28 at the Norfolk Airport not "black magic" but "love magic" from the redhead himself, Danny Kaye.

Danny was on a tour for UNICEF and he stopped to give encouragement and praise to area children for their part in the annual "Trick or Treat for UNICEF" campaign.

Mrs. Arthur Gallagher, chairman of the UNICEF program in this area, had arranged for several groups of children from the area to be there. And they were there, in all ages, sizes and costumes. The weather turned ugly and forced a delay in Mr. Kaye's appearance, but those who waited the hour and a half to see him were well rewarded.

As soon as Danny's light blue plane (decorated with UNICEF emblems) landed, he walked into the terminal of the General Aviation area and began to talk to the children. He was an old friend; they were enchanted to see him. And the magic began.

Conversation between Danny and the children was the most natural thing in the world. Just before he left the children begged him to sing for them, and he sang "Thumbelina". During his too short visit Mr. Kaye was presented a Mace by the Norfolk Mayor's office and a Virginia Beach Lighthouse tie pin by James Sadler, vice president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

After the presentations were made Danny walked to the doorway of the terminal, still talking to the children as the plane was made ready for him to resume his tour. And then he left. And then the magic was over.

'Sweet Charity' Is Impressive

Cavalier Dinner Playhouse's production of "Sweet Charity" is probably the most impressive musical we have ever seen in Tidewater. The combined talents of director Wood Eney, choreographer Barbara Theusen, musical director Richard Barnes and a very talented cast have produced a smooth and upbeat musical comedy that is a picture of perfect timing, even down to every complicated scene change.

Obviously in a large cast musical there must be some standouts, but not one person let the production drag at any time and each handled his own job or jobs well. Several of the people played as many as three roles in the production.

The book itself is nothing to rave about. It is another Neil Simon sex comedy, but with an atypical moralistic ending that somehow doesn't even fit. The production could have ended just as easily at the wedding shower.

The action deals with a not too bright aging dance hall girl who has fallen in love with and gone to bed with an array of oddball characters finding what looks like true love with a former bashful man with whom she is trapped in an elevator.

Mary Friday as Charity is vivacious and charming. She dances beautifully, sings well and gives the role all the innocent sparkle it demands. William Pitts as the man she is trapped in the elevator with has a nice voice and is a master of comedy timing. He is delightful in this stuffed shirt role.

Others who must be singled out as outstanding are the bigger-than-life dance hall girl portrayals of Kathleen McDonald and Lois Porter. Also worthy of note is the only characterization of an aging Italian romeo played hilariously by Bernie Berman. In those same scenes Sherry Loving has some nice moments.

Then there is the unbelievably believable spoof of religion scene in which the talented Jimmy Jellico swings beautifully as Daddy Brubeck, leader of the cult.

There are several excellent production numbers, including the well-known "Big Spender" number. Miss Friday shines in "If my Friends Could See Me Now"; Bill Goffred stands out in the "I Love to Cry at Weddings" number; and the girls are excellent in "There's Gotta be Something Better Than This."

This is unfortunately Eney's last show at the dinner theatre. His talents will be missed, especially since he does not ham up this show at all. His inventive directing is pleasing to watch. His playing of all numbers directly to the front, ignoring the sides in the three-quarter round theatre is questionable, however.

"Sweet Charity" is an excellent production and deserves audiences just as good. HJL

Your job is safer with Humphrey

U. S. News & World Report recently published a survey that shows most economists think there will be more people out of work if Nixon is elected. The survey, made among leading economists in this country, shows that 70% of them think unemployment will be higher under a Nixon administration than under Humphrey.

Under Nixon, unemployment was seven per cent; three recessions in eight years. Today, more than one million jobs are generated annually.

Virginia needs jobs. Unemployment hurts workers, small businesses, everyone.

VBLT Names Cast

The cast has been selected for the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's second show of the season, "Night Must Fall."

The suspense drama by Emily Williams will open Nov. 22 at the Courtyard Playhouse and run for three consecutive weekends. Liz Sills is directing this show, which was chosen to commemorate the Theatre's 20th anniversary.

Election

School. These were apparently the only isolated incidents.

In addition to CBS using London Bridge as a sample precinct, an early-return survey was taken through 1 p.m. by the George Fine Survey firm of New York. When Ed Brogan, Democratic campaign chairman, called in the London Bridge results in to the CBS computer, programmed to his voice, he apparently said something wrong the first time, and the computer rejected him. The second time the computer accepted him.

Humphrey's niece, Mrs. Diane Indesh, who lives in Virginia Beach and whose husband is in the Navy stationed at Northwest, watched the election returns at Democratic campaign headquarters in Virginia Beach. Her mother is Humphrey's sister, Mrs. Indesh was not too pleased with the Virginia Beach results, but showed elation each time a nationwide gain for her uncle was flashed on the television screen.

As it became apparent that Humphrey would run third in Virginia Beach, a Democratic campaign worker looked at the boards. Seeing the victories for the two bond issues, Downing and liquor-by-the-drink, he mused, "Four out of five... That ain't bad."

Jim Fant, who managed the Nixon campaign in Virginia Beach said he was very pleased and happy concerning the Virginia Beach results. He then pledged a continuation of the GOP efforts in the city for the governorship and House of Delegates races next year.

On Wednesday there was some question about the legality of the favorable liquor-by-the-drink vote in Norfolk and Portsmouth. There were reports that Portsmouth had not advertised its referendum at all and that Norfolk had not advertised it correctly. Virginia Beach, however, had advertised it correctly in three consecutive issues of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

At about 11:30 p.m., Brogan answered a telephone call at headquarters. He said, "Hello... Who?... Jack Etheridge? No, He's not here. I haven't seen him since the campaign started."

New Store Robbed

Thieves broke into the recently-opened Best Products store on South Independence Blvd. shortly after the opening of the new firm last weekend. Police quote store manager Charles W. Baber III with saying merchandise valued at over $2,000 was stolen during the break-in. The missing items included an assortment of wedding rings, a number of tape recorders and television sets, and a quantity of batteries. At last report police were still searching for the thieves.

Halloween Charges Made

Seven adults and three juveniles were charged Halloween night with violating State laws which prohibit throwing objects at occupied vehicles, dwellings and/or other structures. The charges allegedly arose from the throwing of eggs. Complaints of such incidents were received from residents of Bay Colony, Kings Grant, Oceana, and Princess Anne Plaza. Police identified the adults as William R. Malbon, III, Ekan Lachman III, Charles W. Emanuelson, Jr., Robert P. Oliver, Jr., Robert C. Alcorn, Stephen J. Harkins and Paul F. Strickler. The juveniles were only identified as being 16 and 17 years of age. Conviction of the charge would constitute a felony and carry punishments of from 12 months in jail to 10 years in prison.

Hearing Set For 2

Two suspects in the reported strong arm robbery of a juvenile Oct. 25 in the Pembroke Mall parking lot are scheduled for a preliminary hearing in Virginia Beach Municipal Court tomorrow. Police said they have charged Malcolm West and James Sadowski, both 20, with forcibly taking the juvenile's wallet, and removing the money from the wallet. Although police said they apprehended their suspects at the scene of the alleged crime, investigation of the case was hindered when the victim reportedly lied to the police.

and public aid was sought in locating him. Tomorrow's hearing is the result of a continuation of Monday court proceedings.

Retrial Set

A retrial of Joseph B. Neal on charges of taking indecent liberties with a minor child has been rescheduled for Dec. 5. Neal's first trial in this case was declared a mistrial last Friday in Circuit Court in the second day of proceedings. Neal, 46, of Red Oak Road, at the time of the alleged offense was principal of the Frere Jacques School where the alleged offense, involving a 9-year-old girl pupil, reportedly occurred. Judge George Vakos declared a mistrial as the end result of various questions regarding legal points, together with an alleged conversation between a juror and the mother of the accused, saying he felt the trial had been "handled in an unusual way by the Commonwealth and the defense". Neal has been acquitted twice before on similar charges, and is facing three other charges of similar offenses.

Bryant to Return

Walter L. Bryant, 46, of Norfolk is scheduled to return to Virginia Beach Municipal Court on the 25th of this month facing manslaughter, and reckless driving charges. Police said Bryant was charged as a result of the Northampton Blvd. accident on Oct. 25 which resulted in the death of two persons and the injury of another. Fatally injured in the accident were Miss Patricia Anne Jordan, 25, of Portsmouth, and William Peyton Ford, 24, a Norfolk police officer. Darrell Ray Foreman, 26, also a Norfolk police officer, received a head injury in the two car collision. Bryant was placed under $5,000 bond when a continuance in court proceedings was granted on Monday.

Boat Co. to Be Tenant

Nautical Boat Works, a division of United States Sales Corp. will begin work on a $250,000 boat manufacturing plant April 1 in the Virginia Beach Industrial Park.

The plant will be on 4.5 acres of the park. It will include a 30,000 square-foot warehouse, a three story office building and will have 10,000 square feet of outside storage space for the boats.

Harry L. Snyder, president of United States Sales, has said that the factory will manufacture 1,000 boats a year. He also said that, although the firm has Nautical Boat Works in the first industry to locate in the 27-acre park, which is situated at the Lynnhaven Road entrance to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Building Record Set

All year long building officials in Virginia Beach have been predicting a record year for the construction industry. Now it is a certainty.

The previous record was set in 1965 when permits for $63,522,332 were issued. With two months still to go in 1968 permits have already been issued amounting to $53,968,412. And that is more than $4 million ahead of all of 1967.

In October another $5,026,194 worth of permits were issued. This was not considered an outstanding month, but an "average" one, according to Robert R. Lober, assistant to the director of the inspections division.

Lober said that two or three large apartment and townhouse complexes will be issued permits during November and December and that a permit for the $2.5 million Bayside Junior High School to be issued this month almost guarantee a record year for 1968.

This old landmark of the Virginia Beach waterfront is now just about gone. The picture was taken as it was being razed. Sometime in the future a new motel will be built there.

Progress Fells City Landmark

An old landmark in Virginia Beach has been torn down. Once the center of entertainment for the young set, the Top Hat at 29th and Oceanfront has been reduced to rubble by wrecking crews.

The Top Hat was built in 1948 and expanded several times in its 20-year history, which saw such top entertainers as Fats Domino thrill the teenagers who came from far and near. It started out as a small club for about 150 persons and eventually grew to a rock 'n roll haven for 450 persons. On Sundays during the 1968 season it was also used by Danny Marrow for evangelistic worship services for the young set.

The Top Hat was owned by Atlantic Enterprises, of which J. W. Vakos was one of the principals. The company still owns the land.

Vakos said the land where the Top Hat had been would be used as a parking lot for a lounge next summer, but that is a temporary situation. The lounge, where a pancake house was last season, will fall after next season to make room for a 150-200-room luxury motel, according to Vakos. The motel will cover the full city block.

Vakos admits he will miss the Top Hat, but said it was no longer feasible to operate it. He said often people would return there after several years' absence just to see the place.

"Several families came back last summer," he said. "Some of the fellows said they met their wives there."

Vakos said the motel will be started at the end of the 1969 summer season with hopes of opening at least part of it in time for the 1970 season.

Sidney S. Kellam (center) is all smiles as he receives a warm handshake from Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., at the "gala occasion" for Kellam. He was introduced by Clayton Shoemaker, emcee. (right)

'Mr. Democrat' Enjoyed Night

The committee that planned the gala occasion at the Civic Center last Wednesday night has called it a huge success. They said more than 1,000 persons attended the $15-a-plate dinner in honor of Sidney S. Kellam and that they could have sold that many tickets again had they had the space.

As it was the Dome was crowded to capacity for the steak dinner, speakeasy and entertainment. Headlining the entertainment was the Lester Lanin Orchestra, well-known comedian-impersonator David Frye and singer Delores Hawkins.

Heading the list of notables present from all over Virginia were Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. and First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing. No one made a prepared speech, but a number of friends of Sidney Kellam came to the speaker's stand at the call of emcee, Clayton Shoemaker, to praise the longtime political leader of Virginia Beach.

Among those who praised Kellam and thanked him for the help he has given them over the years were, besides Gov. Godwin and Downing, former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, Norfolk GOP leader Judge Louis B. Fine, executive vice president of First & Merchants National Bank in Virginia Beach E. H. Church, Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch and Norfolk attorney and Negro civil rights leader Hugo Madison.

Kellam accepted the tributes and said jokingly he wouldn't deny a word of them.

Kellam, his wife Odie, their two daughters and their husbands and other head table guests sat just below the stage where a large banner was strung. It read "Mr. Democrat." And Sidney Kellam, like everyone else, enjoyed every minute of it.

Alley 'Conflict of Interest'

two feet of a house on 51st Street. Whether the house was built in the wrong place or not is part of the middle, but the house can't be moved anyway. The house, incidentally, is now owned by Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, who is unhappy about the whole thing.

Reportedly Mrs. Betty Holdreham, who lives in one of the houses along Atlantic Avenue, sought the opening of the alley. The matter was investigated by the City Manager's office, and was reluctantly brought to the attention of City Council some weeks ago because of the alley right-of-way being so close to the Evans property line. Council then attempted to satisfy everybody in the dispute.

This took some time, but a week ago the matter reached an open Council meeting. The compromise proposal was put forth. It called for opening the alley part of the way to give access to the backs of the lots. It also called for opening the alley just next to Evans' house. It was supposed that this was acceptable to everyone.

Evans asked that the alley be moved a little closer to the corner to utilize his graded driveway. This reportedly would not necessitate the cutting up of his driveway and yard.

There Joseph A. Haurich, also a resident of the area in question on Atlantic Avenue, rose and differed with Evans. He hurled angry words at Council and said that Council "didn't know him from Adam's housecat," but that the Councilmen did know Evans well. The inference that Evans was being treated differently from any other private citizen was denied strongly by Council.

Haurich also said that Evans was in conflict of interest in the matter. He said, "If this isn't conflict-of-interest, I don't know what is."

Reportedly Haurich later also saw the City Attorney and noted his intention to press his claim. Apparently his claim was taken into consideration later.

Privately the matter has been called a "neighborhood feud" but still has not been settled to the satisfaction of everyone.

Opening the alley only part of the way did not appeal to those who said garbage trucks that got in still, could not get out, and in the event of a fire, the problem was still there.

In informal meeting Monday City Council then decided to follow the law in the matter, and several Councilmen agreed that the entire matter had been blown up out of proportion and should never have reached the present stage before Council in the first place.

What will be done now is this. The alley will be opened all the way or not at all, depending upon the report of viewers including Public Works Director Charles Kiley. His report will be presented to the property owners who will then have about two weeks to file an appeal. The amount of damages will be pointed out in his report and set by Circuit Court. Then Council can decide whether it wishes to pay the amount of damages and whether it is feasible to open the alley.

Property owners will then have to pay for the cost of opening. Mrs. Holdreham reportedly has had her part on file for this purpose for some months.

City Manager Roger Scott also said that the alley, should it be opened, can be narrowed to about ten feet and pushed as far away from Evans' house as possible. He added that he would like to see everybody happy in the matter, but that now the letter of the law is being followed.

who asked not to be identified, said he had not had a chance to evaluate completely the Norfolk action, but that he was disturbed by it and had a number of reservations about the Norfolk unilateral action.

Norfolk officials had made it clear in the past they planned to go ahead on their site regardless of what other cities felt or did.

The only thing that is for certain at present is that the Mets Triple-A farm club will probably come to Tidewater next year, first to Frank D. Lawrence Stadium in Portsmouth, then moving into their own Norfolk stadium in 1970.

The rest of the picture is still unclear, concerning cost, financing and plans for construction of the other, larger stadium.

At least one Norfolk Councilman has questioned the cost of the two-stadium complex on the 80-acre site and has said the city has other priorities.

Council received a request for a loan of $39,163.42 for a new pump for the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Dept. with Fire Council concurrence. The amount is expected to be approved Monday.

Scott also reported that proposed study of fire departments would probably not come before a year from now due to the heavy work load of the City Planning Dept. That department would have to compile much of the information for the consultants.

In addition Council received a statement showing assessment, taxes and number of acres in several garden-type apartment developments in Virginia Beach. The statement had been requested so that Council could look at the amount of taxes paid by apartments in the city.

Scott said after the meeting that work on the new city administration building is progressing well, and the building should be occupied about Jan. 15, after a long and costly delay.

Council also faces a long 24-item zoning docket in addition to deferred zoning matters in its next meeting, delayed to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 13. A number of apartment and townhouse projects are scheduled to be heard. Council will also take action on zoning for its own municipal golf course and the new boat ramp on Owl's Creek.

On the matter of the City's bid for the Penn-Central property at Little Creek, Scott said the bids had been opened in Philadelphia a week ago, but that the city had not heard anything from its bid. He still declined to reveal the amount in the event all bids are thrown out and new ones are sought.

Pvt. Andrew L. Knox, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Knox of Washington Avenue, has been awarded a plaque for scoring highest in his basic combat training battalion on the physical combat proficiency test (PCPT).

Training School Would Aid Police

The recent four-month study of the Virginia Beach police department by the Fraternal Order of Police Associate Lodge #8 has recommended the establishment of a full time police school in the city.

According to the FOPA recommendations such a school would prove invaluable not only in basic training of rookie police officers but also in advanced training of officers and to keep them informed of changes in State statutes and city ordinances.

The FOPA report points out, "Crime today takes advantage of the latest fads, technology, and mobility of society. A stronger need has arisen to train more adequately all policemen."

Officials of the Virginia Beach police department who are directly concerned with training of police officers, all indicated a full-time training program would be feasible and worthwhile. They agree that while the department does conduct periodic recruit training schools the continual in-depth training as recommended by the FOPA is virtually non-existent.

Police department administrative officials also said several officers within the department are qualified as instructors in all phases of police operations and duties. Areas where qualified instructors already exist within the police department, include fingerprinting, police photography, narcotic and dangerous drug traffic, firearms and laws of arrest.

An increasingly important phase of police work is the effect on law enforcement of federal and state laws, city ordinances, rules of evidence and courtroom procedure. In its investigation of the feasibility of a training program in these areas the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN was assured instructors could be made available to the police department from the Norfolk FBI Office, members of the Commonwealth's Attorney's office, officers and judges of the various Virginia Beach Courts, and various justices of the peace of the city.

E. E. Brickell, City Public School superintendent, has offered public school classrooms and laboratories for such purposes and indicates he feels scheduling the use of such facilities could be arranged in order not to conflict with normal school operations.

A main advantage of the City of Virginia Beach establishing its own police training program, according to the FOPA recommendations, would be maintaining the police department at full strength and effectiveness while a portion of an officer's duty shift would be spent in classroom instruction and part in the field.

The cost of such a training program within the Virginia Beach police department has not been determined. Members of the FOPA committee and police officials agree that cost would depend on the depth of such a school and the number of instructors to be paid.

Everyone concerned with the proposal does agree on one point. They say such a school would be invaluable as another tool in maintaining a high degree of efficiency.

Theater Head Gets Award

The award is a result of the Association's 1968 "Movies and You" contest, which was held throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Purpose of the contest was to encourage closer community participation and interest in today's movies by assisting a local club organization to plan and present a "Movies and You" program.

Wannall's winning entry combined the efforts of the Cavalier Junior Women's Club, a panel of speakers and extended coverage by local news media. The Cavalier Junior Women's Club was selected as the Grand Prize winner in the nation for presenting the best program by a club or organization.

Wannall is in San Francisco this week where he will be presented with a plaque in recognition of his achievement during the Association's annual meeting.

Gun Registrations Now Being Taken

Last month President Johnson signed into law a controversial gun control bill which requires registration of certain weapons. That registration is now taking place.

Special investigative personnel of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Service will be on hand every day Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., at the Federal Building in Norfolk for registration through Dec. 1, including Veteran's Day, Nov. 11.

All IRS offices have the necessary registration forms, and special telephone numbers are being used. Interested persons requiring information may call Norfolk 622-9759 or 623-4538.

Registration is mandatory under the law. Failure to register is punishable by a fine of $10,000, ten years imprisonment or both.

Harry Matters, Chief, Enforcement Branch of the Mid-Atlantic Internal Revenue Service Region said that the Gun Control Act of 1968 signed by the President on Oct. 22, 1968 does not apply to firearms used for hunting, target shooting or any other lawful purpose. The Internal Revenue Service is receiving many inquiries from sportsmen as to whether the law applied to firearms they own, he said.

Registration features of the law only applies to gangster type weapons and destructive devices, included in this category are machine guns, sawed off shotguns, sawed off rifles, bazookas, rockets, mortars, bombs, mines, grenades and similar destructive devices.

A thirty day grace period beginning Nov. 2 is provided in the law for the registration of these weapons. Weapons previously registered with the Director, Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of Internal Revenue Service need not be re-registered.

Information furnished to register a weapon within the grace period cannot be used in any criminal proceeding for a prior or concurrent violation of the law.

Matters emphasized that persons wishing to register destructive devices should not bring them to Internal Revenue Service offices.

Auxiliary Earns Awards

The Virginia Beach American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 113 won two National Child Welfare awards for 1967-1968, which were presented at the National convention held in New Orleans.

The first award was for the best year-round Child Welfare Program and the second award was for the best Child Welfare meeting held during the month of April.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 113 is led by Mrs. William F. Hill, president. Mrs. M. A. Pindexter is the Child Welfare Chairman and Mrs. John Keller is the Rehabilitation Chairman.

Applicants to Take Exam

First District Rep. Thomas N. Downing has announced that U. S. Service Academy applicants will take the U. S. Civil Service Commission competitive examination on Nov. 9.

Downing said that 87 young men who are residents of his Congressional District have applied to take the examination which will be given at 10 different locations.

The Congressman bases his recommendations on the competitive examination. During the next academic year Downing will have three vacancies at the Air Force Academy, three vacancies at the Military Academy and two vacancies at the Naval Academy.

In addition he may recommend ten nominees who will be given state-wide consideration

The Election Is Over

The United States has elected its new leader, the man who is responsible for our destinies over the next four years. The race was a close one, as it should be in the greatest country in the world. We supported Mr. Humphrey. The people of Virginia Beach chose Mr. Nixon. And now Mr. Nixon has been chosen as our next President. We must close ranks behind him regardless of past feelings or party affiliations and we must join together in the fervent hope that his four years in the White House are profitable and peaceful for all of us.

There was, of course, no surprise in the re-election of Rep. Thomas N. Downing to the House of Representatives. He has a record of proven success in the First District and his large majority is merely proof of the support he has in Virginia Beach as well as in the rest of the District. We are pleased with his easy victory.

Concerning liquor-by-the-drink, we are also quite happy with the vote for progress. The people of Virginia Beach, unlike those areas that turned down the option, will reap the harvest of benefits to the city and to the economy.

The bond issues for high education and mental institutions passed easily in Virginia Beach, where the people are used to necessary bond issues for necessary services. Fortunately the issues passed statewide, despite opposition. The issues were mandatory to the future of Virginia.

And so another election day has come and gone. The will of the people is known. Now we must gather the pieces, shattered by intense campaigns, and live with our decisions.

The Code's Future

Next Monday Virginia Beach City Council should take final action on an important piece of legislation - the minimum housing code for the city.

Hopefully surveys will be underway as soon as possible to determine the problems in new and old areas, both from health and housing standpoints. Virginia Beach has already waited far too long to get around to passing this law. It must now move full speed ahead.

While we always favor justice, we hope violators will be brought to task and punished if they do not comply. Following passage there will be time enough for those who know they are violators to make amends before strict enforcement. And that takes into consideration not only some budding slums and rural areas but also even the newer subdivisions. We are pleased Council has finally passed the code.

Now About Those Racetracks

Nearly four years ago we voiced our editorial support and endorsement of liquor-by-the-drink in Virginia Beach under the strictest of controls. Today it is a reality. The drink before dinner by the first of the year will come as the direct result of the overwhelming approval of the issue given by the voters Tuesday.

Those first editorials were not met with the same amount of favor. A number of protests went up from several quarters. Now about those racetracks...

Tightly controlled horse racing in Virginia, particularly in Virginia Beach, would bring in such fantastic revenue to the state and city that a number of growth problems we face now and in the future would be solved immediately. This revenue is now leaving our city and Virginia, and going to such places as Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and West Virginia, where racing is legal. A large segment of our citizens love racing as a sport and travel hundreds of miles to racetracks.

Obviously the same old arguments about the sin of gambling are going to be voiced in protest to this suggestion of retaining the money in Virginia, but that is unfair. Cold, hard facts cannot be fought strictly on moral grounds. If anyone wishes to bet on races now, he will certainly find some way to do it illegally. Why not make it legal?

The large number of tourists a harness track, a regular racetrack or a dog track would bring to Virginia Beach would be unbelievable, even to foes of such a proposition.

It is the next logical step in our maturity, and voices must be raised in favor now.

A Fine Tribute

One of the most significant statements that came out of the gala occasion honoring Sidney S. Kellam last week was made by civil rights leader Hugo Madison. In praising Kellam for his great help in bringing together representatives of both sides when a potential racial problem arose, he pointed out that it was never necessary to bring any court action against the City of Virginia Beach or to protest strongly in this city.

He added that this was not always so in neighboring cities where grave problems had arisen and strong challenges had to be made. He praised the leaders of Virginia Beach for the way they and all citizens accepted and obeyed the laws.

It is a fine tribute for the past and present. May it always be that way in the future in our city.

OBJECT LESSON

Disturbed

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
In your last week's edition in an editorial, "What Price Secrecy?" and in a so-called "Special Report" on the same page you took jabs at the newspapers in Norfolk and at one reporter in particular.

I do not believe you are being fair. Those newspapers have the same right as you do to print anything they wish. Their reporters are simply trying to give us the news we deserve.

I will agree however that printing the amount of a sealed bid before it is opened could cause some complications, but the newspaper company has a perfect right to keep its own real estate dealings secret if it wishes.

And reporters do not have to report on all meetings they attend, especially if those there proved, and I believe these problems can be worked out.

I also know this could mean an increase in taxes, but I am resigned to that anyway even if I don't like it. I think our city leaders have taken a good first step in trying to solve the problems intelligently. Now perhaps they can find some way to lower the cost of industrial locations here and attract some prime industries to help with the tax problems.

Sincerely,
R.L. Stevenson

On Being Fair

Fish-Fry

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
I found your reference to Norfolk reporter, Morris Rowe, amusing indeed. (Special Report, Oct. 31, 1958) But we mustn't blame Mr. Rowe alone for what meetings he reports in his newspaper or how he reports them. We must blame also the top management of the newspapers in Norfolk.

If Mr. Rowe wants to go to a fish fry-political meeting given by Mr. Jack Etheridge, he is entitled to do so. But either the news there was not strongly against the Organization or Jack Etheridge wasn't ready for his strategy to be published yet. Or maybe the news would have said something good about Virginia Beach. The newspapers in Norfolk don't like to print that sort of thing. They would much rather play up a drug story or a "rumble" that never happened.

So don't blame Morris Rowe. He is just a small part of the political machinery of an anti group and a small part of the news policies of the papers in Norfolk. He does what he is told.

Yours very truly,
(Mrs.) Irene F. Jackson

Special Report

Retire From What?

Just what it was that the news media in Norfolk expected Sidney Kellam to retire from is hard to say, but they did expect him to retire. And when he did not announce that he was going to retire from whatever it was, they seemed surprised, hurt and a little disappointed.

Kellam holds no local, state or national office, elective or appointive. He serves on no city commissions or boards. He does serve on several areawide committees aimed at the betterment of the entire Tidewater area, but he is hardly expected to retire from any of them. In fact, he was just chosen chairman of one of them quite recently.

But a half-page article in the Norfolk VIRGINIAN-PILOT recently by Morris Rowe failed to take this into consideration. The reporter speculated that Kellam would use the gala occasion at the Dome last Wednesday night attended by 1,000 friends of Kellam to announce his "retirement." The article speculated a great deal and said very little.

Obviously Sidney Kellam has been a leader in Virginia Beach and has been active both in the foreground and background of many political campaigns. His influence has been felt greatly in the orderly growth and development of the new city of Virginia Beach. He was one of the primary architects of the merger between Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach, and has often been credited with making the merger feasible and workable.

After a parade of speakers came to the platform to praise Kellam for his accomplishments and after they praised him as a master politician and called him their friend, Sidney Kellam came to the podium and chided Rowe and others without calling any names.

He said he had to come there to hear what he was going to say since there had been so much speculation. The Governor also said he had read of the speculation of impending retirement from something or other. But Kellam made it clear. He is not retiring from anything. He made it clear he is still interested in politics; that he is still interested in working in campaigns; and above all, he is still interested in Virginia Beach. He said it all in two sentences.

He said, "No one has the right to turn his back on the needs of his community. From that there is no retirement."

While this was met with thunderous applause from those assembled, at least one radio station was not satisfied. The next morning its story of the dinner included nothing of the fine food, excellent entertainment or capsules from the speeches of outstanding Virginians.

The report said only that the expected announcement of retirement had not come. The reporter sounded like Kellam had spoiled his entire day.

Meanwhile Rowe complained at being singled out in this space last week as being at a political fish-fry given by V. A. Etheridge, anti-Kellam forces supposed leader, without reporting on it. Rowe said other reporters were also there and did not report on it. The special report was not meant to single Rowe out, but imagine if all these reporters had been at or heard about an Organization fish-fry, political or not it would have been before they finished with it, and it would have been covered... fully.

Etheridge, meanwhile, is apparently trying to appraise his strength. A year ago his United Ticket was successful in garnering three elective offices in the Democratic primary and two years ago he was successful in his management of the William B. Spong campaign in Virginia Beach.

With all that success it was strongly rumored that Etheridge felt confident enough to take on Thomas Downing for the First Congressional seat this year. That did not happen for some reason. Perhaps he could see his strength was on the wane and he could witness a crack in his law machine. Whatever was the reason he has been quiet.

And not once did the Norfolk news media even speculate that his fish-fry for 50 was the time for his announcement of retirement. That type of speculation they reserve for Kellam and his 1,000 friends at a $15-a-plate dinner in his honor.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I don't care who the projected winner in California is. Project me some breakfast, please. I have to go to work," he said.

"But don't you understand?" she asked. "The next four years depends on this election."

"Certainly I understand," he pointed out. "I voted yesterday like a good boy. I've done my part. Now whether I faint or not depends on my breakfast."

"Daddy, who did you vote for?" asked the five-year old, who had been studying the presidential election in her first-grade class.

Who'd

You

For?

"Never mind," he said. "Watch the projections. I'll fix my own breakfast too." Then turning to the five-year old, he said, "Let's just say that I voted for the best man and the one that I wanted to win."

"But who did you vote for?" asked the little one.

"Yeah, who'd you vote for?" chimed in the three-year old.

"This is worse than the inquisition," he said. "All right, I voted for Pat Paulsen and the STAG party. Does that satisfy you?"

"Yes," they both answered.

"Do you realize that's what she's going to tell the class now?" asked the one who was still glued to the television set.

"Well, that's better than her telling the true story everywhere. I don't want anybody to know who I voted for, not even you."

"All right," she said. "I won't tell you who I voted for either."

"That's fine," he said. "Go back to your projections while I eat this miserable breakfast."

"I don't think you have the proper attitude," she said. "You went to bed while I stayed up to watch the returns until four."

"If I had stayed up, would they have been any different?" he wanted to know.

"Of course not, but you should take an interest in your country's future," she said. "I know all about it. Ask me anything."

"How many votes did Pat Paulsen get?" he asked.

"They didn't say, but I was watching NBC, and he's on CBS," she said.

"I suppose that's it," he mused.

"This is really exciting," she said. "Don't you feel the excitement?"

"I do at that," he said. "Or maybe it's indigestion from this breakfast."

"How can you think about your stomach when they're about to make a projection about Illinois?"

"This will probably make me out to be a terrible person," he said. "But my stomach is here, not in Illinois. Now, I'm going to work."

"All right," she said. "Be that way. You didn't really vote for Pat Paulsen, did you?"

"No," he laughed. "But I thought about it."

"Then who did you vote for?" she asked.

"Yeah, who did you vote for, Daddy?" yelled both girls. He ran out the door and made a hasty getaway.

HERE COMES OLGA!

A very entertaining and most enjoyable Halloween Cocktail Buffet was given Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. Phil Moonves at the Cape Beach & Cabana Club. I did not count the guests and as usual I am sure I did not get everyone's name, but as a guess I would say there were at least 100 people who attended.

As you entered the door Mr. and Mrs. Moonves were just inside to greet everyone, and of course many of the people for the first time were introduced to Mr. Moonves, Mr. and Mrs. Moonves you might say are still newbies.

Mr. Moonves kept saying to me that he thought his wife was such a beautiful woman which of course she is, but I told him not to ever think that he wasn't also a very attractive man.

This buffet starting at seven o'clock just gave me a chance to get home from work change clothes and hurry to the Buffet. I got there I did not eat before this time so I had a chance to enjoy this terrific buffet catered by the Capes.

In the center of the buffet table the ice sculptured which was the first thing that caught the eye. If the food I am about to tell you about was on the table doesn't make you hungry then you must be dying or either you have just finished eating. Starting from one end of the table to the other this was the menu: Miniature mushrooms, miniature stuffed cabbage rolls, Swedish meat balls, chicken livers wrapped in bacon and water chestnuts, miniature Chateau Briand, imported caviar molded in shape of a witches hat, shrimp trees, chicken drumettes and pickles, relish, celery, etc. I would like to congratulate the Manager Dick Smith on not only the food, but the unusual table decorations.

Most of the parties I attend you usually find groups here and there of their own choice, but at this party everyone was moving around talking with everybody else.

Trying to get names sometimes is not the easiest of jobs when people are moving around and very much engaged in conversation but I finally was able to get some names of those attending: Judge and Mrs. Richard Kellam, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Laderberg, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin H. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Bolling, Mr. and Mrs. Betram Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. William Kellam, Mr. and Mrs. John Haas, Mrs. Virginia Meredith, Mrs. Yetta Nicholson, Mrs. W. A. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Diamondstein, Mrs. Beverly Proffitt, Floyd Kellam, Mrs. Grace Bliley, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kellam, Mr. and Mrs. Angie Alexander. Mrs. Alexander was very attractively dressed in a beautiful white cocktail pants suit. When she walked in the door quite a few people turned and looked at her. Of course being an attractive person herself and with this beautiful outfit made a picture to behold. I never thought Angie would marry for a long time but when he did he really picked a beauty. Mrs. Sidney Kellam was very attractively dressed in a medium blue cocktail suit trimmed in black fur around the collar and down and front of the coat. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Phil Moonves on their marriage and a party well given.

Saturday night was a Halloween costume dinner and dance at The Cavalier which was very well attended, and believe me the costumes were very outstanding and quite unusual. To give you an idea of the many different costumes I saw there: Japanese, beatniks, clowns, artists, Scoopy, the Red Baron, the Flintstones, Tiny Tim and his friend, Devils, Swiss costumes, Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara, Caesar and Cleopatra, Indians, Wyatt Earp and his saloon girl and of course many many more. I was surprised to find so many in costumes and such attractive ones as well as some that were funny. The ball room was beautifully decorated with Halloween colors as well as skeletons, witches, pumpkins corn stalks and even the witch's pot brewing over a fire.

The band known as the Socialaires was very good for dancing of all kinds from the tango to the mambo. And when they danced the limbo Frank Bachelor was so very good at bending low enough to get under the poles without falling. I was really surprised to see so many try this, both men and women. It takes a strong back and good balancing for this, but Frank somehow had them all whipped. Each time the poles were lowered some would drop out, but Frank continued to hold his balance and get under regardless of how much they lowered it. He is attached to Dam Neck. Maybe this accounts for his balancing and strong back.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Charboneau and Mr. and Mrs. James Butler were the most outstanding couples I have seen on a dance floor with their gracefulness their knowledge of every dance possible. I danced with Mr. Charboneau and loved every minute of it but I might say that I was a little nervous for fear I would make a mistake. When the dance was finished he thought I did very well; maybe he was just being a gentleman.

I did not get much of a chance to get many names because at this party I completely participated with the crowd dancing and was asked by Mr. Doty to be a judge for the costumes. I did get a few of those attending: Mr. William Rice, Mrs. Hazel Ware, Mrs. Florence Hoffmeister, Mrs. Clara Exley, Mr. Leland Smith Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Verell, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie

Mr. and Mrs. William Ernst in their costumes for The Cavalier's Halloween party.

Land, (I want to thank Mr. Land for telling me he looks forward to my column each week.) I feel this coming from a man is quite a compliment. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bugg, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McKnight, Cmdr. (Ret.) and Mrs. Norman W. Wilde, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Corneve, Miss Susan Whitehurst, John Perkins, Mrs. Vera Kahn, Mrs. Anne Chandler, Andy Ewing and Mr. and Mrs. Major Pardue.

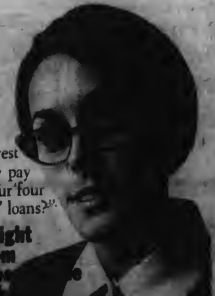

The judges for the costumes other than myself were: Bill Rice, Bill McKnight, Mrs. H. L. Reynolds of Richmond, Wallace Owens of Richmond and Lt. Cmdr. Giampaolo Falciol of the Italian Navy. Alice Walton lead the parade of those dressed in costumes, and as they went by I was given a dime by some one. No doubt this was a payoff, but I don't remember who it was.

Bake a Steak with Coffee Sauce

Very often great recipes come your way unexpectedly. You might be chatting with a stranger on a train or a friendly fellow shopper and, before you know it, you have an idea for something that sounds utterly delicious.

One afternoon, we telephoned Mrs. Jerry Smith of Greek Isle Ltd., a shop in New York City that specializes in Greek merchandise. Although we began our conversation about a beautiful copper casserole, we wound up with the recipe for this unique Baked Steak.

The sauce turns the trick for this steak dish. A combination of mushrooms, green peppers, onion slices, ketchup and coffee, it can be put together in a hurry. And there's no chance for mistakes since the seasoning is already contained in the ketchup. As the steak bakes in the oven, its juices mingle with the tasty sauce. Hearty Cheese-Stuffed Baked Potatoes are suggested as an accompaniment. Add a big bowl of salad greens and a basket of French bread or rolls and you have a convenient well-balanced meal.

After such a filling meat-and-potatoes supper, you might want a lighter dessert. Something simple such as ice cream and cookies would be appropriate. When it comes to coffee, somehow there's always room for a generous amount of that fragrant brew. As a guarantee for fine flavor, we advise a brewing ratio of one Approved Coffee Measure (equal to two level measuring tablespoons) of coffee to each six ounces of Baked steak features coffee in the sauce.

Military Wives Club Notes

PhibLant Wives

The PhibLant Officers' Wives' Club will have a luncheon Nov. 13 at the Little Creek Amphibious Base Officers' Club. A social hour is planned for 11:30 a.m. with the luncheon scheduled to start at 12:30 p.m.

L. Douglas Waldorf, owner and director of "Skicoak Museum of the American Indian" will be the speaker for the luncheon. His topic will be "The Primitive Indians of Eastern Virginia."

A free nursery will be provided for the luncheon. The luncheon will cost $2.25.

Naval District Wives

The Fifth Naval District Officers' Wives' Club had a luncheon at the Naval Station Officers' Club on Nov. 5.

A special musical program was presented at the luncheon. Ann Billings, accompanied by Mary Jo Robertson, sang selections from Broadway musicals.

The luncheon was attended by wives and widows of active duty and retired officers in the Armed Forces in the Tidewater area.

VA-35 Officers' Wives

The Officers' Wives of VA-35 held their monthly meeting at a coffee on Wednesday, Oct. 30. The coffee was at the home of the hostess, Mrs. Manuel Ortega, who was assisted by Mrs. John Pittman.

Plans were completed for an art and boutique auction to be held Nov. 14 at 7 p.m. in the Birdneck Village clubhouse. Several other projects were discussed, and three new wives were welcomed to the group. Mrs. Richard Hauck, Mrs. John Colestock and Mrs. Richard Davis.

Each day, UNICEF vehicles travel roughly four times the distance to the moon.

water per serving. Two other keys to good brewing are freshly ground coffee and cold water straight from the tap. Mineral deposits in the hot water pipe have an undesirable effect on coffee, so make certain it's the cold water faucet you turn. If you brew this way, we're sure that guests will want refills, no matter how hearty the meal.

To be on the safe side, allow for seconds whenever you brew. Besides, coffeemakers are actually designed to work best at full capacity. Also, pour coffee immediately after brewing so that you will capture every bit of the rich flavor and aroma. If you must hold it at serving temperature for a little while, keep the coffee pot over very low heat-but no longer than an hour.

BAKED STEAK

- 1/2 lb. mushrooms, sliced
- 3 tbl. butter or margarine
- 1 large green pepper, cut into rings
- 2 large onions, sliced and separated into rings
- 1 1/3 c. ketchup
- 3/4 c. strong coffee
- 1 slice (about 2 1/2 lbs.) top sirloin of beef, cut 2 to 2 1/2 inches thick
- Instant meat tenderizer, optional

Saute mushrooms lightly in butter; push to one side. Add green pepper and onion rings. Cook until soft but not brown; mix with mushrooms. Add ketchup and coffee; simmer 5 minutes. Treat steak with instant meat tenderizer as directed on label. Broil steak just long enough to brown well on both sides. Transfer to shallow baking pan or platter. Spoon part of the sauce over steak (save the rest to serve with the steak). Bake at 350 degrees 15 to 20 minutes for rare, longer for medium or well done. To serve, slice against the grain, on the diagonal, as for London Broil, in thin slices. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHEESE-STUFFED POTATOES

Bake 5 large potatoes. Cut thin slice from top of each; scoop out pulp without breaking skin. Mash well. Beat in enough milk or light cream to make potatoes fluffy. Add butter or margarine, salt and pepper to taste. Beat in 1/2 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese. Mound in 4 shells. (Discard fifth shell). Sprinkle a little additional cheese on top. Return to oven. Heat to serving temperature.

Beach Author Wants to 'Tell Good Story'

By Yatta Jones

If you should be lucky enough to spend some time talking to her, don't say, "When I have a free afternoon I'm going to write a children's book." Say that and you might as well leave, because that is her pet hate.

Mrs. Robert S. Mandelkorn, who writes under the pen name of Eugenia Miller, is the lady with this strong objection. She is the author of four children's books which are published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Mrs. Mandelkorn can't be blamed for feeling the way she does. She works hard at her profession. Her last book, "The Sign of the Salamander," took two years to research and write.

"Writing is terribly difficult for me...it is a matter of disciplining myself to get at it every day and stay at it," she says. She admits that there are weeks when she writes and has nothing to show for it. "I may end up throwing it all away. One has to do a lot of nothing to get anything. Every paragraph is like chipping away at marble. If it writes too easily I'm suspicious." (One chapter in "The Golden Spur" came so easily that she is still trying to find what is wrong with it!)

There is a system she uses, but not a routine. She begins her work with a first draft, which comes hard. "It is truly creative and I can only do it a couple of hours at a time." After that she starts working five to six hours a day. "When I am really finishing the book I write all day, sometimes around the clock. Toward the end I don't know where I get the drive."

Before she begins writing on a book, Mrs. Mandelkorn chooses a title and keeps it. "I don't change the title...I may not stick to my synopsis, but I stick to the title...I think it's because my original thought is in the title."

A controlled vocabulary has no place in Mrs. Mandelkorn's books. "If a big word is called for," she says, "I use it...Although I don't look for big words," she thinks that children reading her books will look the word up, ask what it means or figure out the meaning by the context of the book.

Technique is quite important to her. She notices it in her own reading and feels that it gives an author's work definite objectives by which the work can be rated. She is excited about a new technique being developed in France. "The French are innovators. Their new literature there is without a name for characters, nor does it have a plot...they try to put you in the story."

Mrs. Mandelkorn started writing at the age of 11. She wrote a continued story which was bought by a newspaper for publication before she finished the story. And then she did not think about writing any more until after she was married and had three children. At that time she went to work for "The Baltimore Sunday Sun", where she wrote features. (She was later to use her newspaper experiences in writing "Dead-line at Spook Cabin.")

Her books have been published over a period of eight years. As she talks about the books they seem to take on a special character through her eyes... "My first book, "Dead-line at Spook Cabin" now in paperback, is probably my best book technically... "The Golden Spur" is translated into German... "Rocking Hill Road" is used in remedial reading classes across the country. But when she speaks of "The Sign of the Salamander," you know which is her favorite.

This book is about Leonardo da Vinci, and in order to write it she had to research such subjects at 16th century printing and archery. She spent one year in research and another year writing the book. She researched her material in Amboise, France, where da Vinci had lived for three years. There was no material available in the libraries so she had to "dig" things up in the village itself. Some of the village families had been there for centuries and knew stories about da Vinci that had been handed down since he lived there. Mrs. Mandelkorn says that she loves the book, "I want to do a book about writing that book!"

In addition to writing Mrs. Mandelkorn has developed another interest. Painting. She started painting while she was in Paris. She enjoys it, but finds it very difficult to write and paint. She finds that she has to discipline herself not to paint when she has definite writing plans.

At the present she is writing an adult book, titled, "The Benjamin." The title is taken from a French expression which means the youngest son in a family. She uses the title in a two-fold sense; to refer to the youngest son of the family in the book, who is involved in intrigue and also to refer to the United States as being the youngest son in the "family" of countries. The setting of the book is in France when de Gaulle asked Americans there to leave the country. Mrs. Mandelkorn has some reservations about the book. "I can't wait until I get through and get back to my children's books...I feel like I'm doing something I shouldn't be doing."

Mrs. Mandelkorn has no ambitions of being a great writer. "My object is to tell a good story...to keep someone on the edge of his seat." Whenever she used a historical background she uses it because it makes her stories more interesting.

She has definite ideas about what makes a writer. "I feel that the basic idea in writing is to communicate. It is no good to write simply for yourself and then lock it away somewhere. You can't be a writer without communication."

Mrs. Mandelkorn's husband, Robert, is a retired Navy captain. He is a businessman in Virginia Beach where they now make their home after years of traveling. The Mandelkorns have three sons: the eldest, a free lance correspondent on leave of absence from "Time" magazine; the middle son, a music writer in New York; and the youngest, a freshman at Stanford University in California.

The family is credited by Mrs. Mandelkorn with helping her while she is writing. There have been times when the boys have done the family grocery shopping. If it were not for an understanding husband, writing would be out of the question. "You can't write unless your husband cooperates...the last can't cook, grocery shop or housekeep in general. However, I don't think anyone can write a good book unless he is concerned about his family."

The Mandelkorns lived in Europe off and on for about six years. They spent four years in France before coming to Virginia Beach. Mrs. Mandelkorn has found that even though the ideas Europeans and Americans have about each other have been considerably warped in the past, the people in the different countries are beginning more and more to understand each other.

While she was in France, Mrs. Mandelkorn was asked to write an article for a magazine, stressing how much children all over the world are alike. "But," she said, "I couldn't do it...I feel that children, people, are different and we have to accept these differences."

In spite of the differences, Mrs. Mandelkorn feels that there is a certain similarity between southern France and this area. "It reminds me of southern France...the light and the life are much the same."

She loves this area. "I feel that there is a lot of excitement around here...I don't feel like I'm in a vacuum...things are moving and going on here!"

Things ARE moving and going on here. Perhaps dynamic people like Mrs. Mandelkorn are the reason.

Chesapeake Beach Club Will Meet

The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 12, at the Commodore Country Club. The business meeting for members will start at 11 a.m. with a buffet luncheon to follow at noon.

Guest speakers for the day are Miss Patricia King, supervisor of reading for the Virginia Beach City Schools, and Miss Janice Gury, a student sponsored to Girls' State by the Chesapeake Beach Club. Also attending the meeting will be Mrs. H. C. Roberson, Jr., who is chairman of education for the Bayside Junior Woman's Club.

Guest speakers will be introduced by Mrs. J. F. Bogdanski, program chairman for the November meeting.

McAllen's ALLEY

By Carolyn McAllen

Lady Godiva Was So Right

"Mommy, when can I get a bra?" asked the seven-year-old innocently.

I explained that she would get one when she needed one and not before.

"But when will that be? Debbie wears them."

I pointed out that Debbie is 11 years old and is better equipped for that item of apparel.

That shut her up for a while. Then during her bath that night (with her five-year-old sister), "Mommy, I want to take a bath by myself. I'm too old to bathe with anybody else."

I carefully explained that with the price of water and little brother to bath too, that her hopes for a private bath for the time being were nil.

"Mommy, my teacher says Daddy shouldn't wash my face," I asked her why, but she couldn't give me a reason except that she was too big.

"Mommy, I don't want Susie to watch me dress," I told her that Susie had to get dressed too, and that since they share a room she had better go into a closet if she insisted on privacy. Susie, of course, peeked in the closet thus starting another family squabble.

"I want a room of my own," demanded the seven-year-old. I told her she could either move into the garage or be happy where she is.

"Mommy, why do we wear clothes?" asked Susie, now taking an interest in the conversation. I explained that clothes were to keep her warm. "Then why do we change them?" This, I told her, was for the sake of cleanliness. "Why don't animals wear clothes?" I told her because they have fur to keep them warm. By then I could anticipate the next question, and it came right on schedule. "Why don't people have fur instead of clothes?" I told her that was just the way we were made.

About that time I was saved by the bell—the door bell that is. I took off running to restrain my "modest" seven-year-old who was about to open the door stark naked.

Lover of Homemades Opens Store

Maurine Abraham is a woman who mourns the loss of handmade articles from our jet age way of life and has decided to do something about it.

On a curve of Little Neck Road, right across from the entrance to Kings Grant, Mrs. Abraham has recently opened a Country Store. Inside is everything from handmades to a "Country Casuals" shop of casual fashions.

One enters the store (it's white with red trim), through the arbor of grape vines and ivy at the back door. The store itself has quite a history. The two-story frame building was originally one of three saloons in Princess Anne County. Then it actually became a country store before it was abandoned several years ago to become a local eyesore.

Downstairs are antiques including a large collection of glass. "I'd love to take everything home," said Mrs. Abraham, whose husband, Tommy, a Navy officer, does her refinishing for her. "He loves old things and the work too."

Mrs. Abraham says she is interested in selling "anything homemade. With all the local talent we have it's silly for me to go to New York to buy handmade items." She said she would also like to sell art for some of the local artists on consignment.

The store is by no means completed. Downstairs is the original kitchen which Mrs. Abraham would like to turn into a country kitchen.

Her pride and joy upstairs is what she labels her "fun room." All sorts of handmades are in it including stuffed animals, hand puppets, (plus kits for making them), laundry bags, slippers, calico flower kits, and a variety of handmade rames—a bean bag, tic tac toe, for instance. Also in the room is a charming selection of the famous Miss Melinda candles from Chickahominy House in Williamsburg.

On one table is a collection of jams, jellies, relishes and preserves—all in attractive old-fashioned jars. She has a number of reproductions of old medicine bottles, some filled with candy, and copies of the original glass milk bottles. There is also note paper and note postcards.

Out in the upstairs hall are several antiques (her husband complains because she hides the antiques with other merchandise), dried flowers, Southern beaten biscuits and a collection of both decoupage and painted plaques which are made locally.

There are also hand-loomed scatter rugs.

Opening from the hall is a rummage room which is just that. It contains good used clothing and a variety of other items.

Next is the Country Casuals room which features several styles of monogrammed dresses. Also in this room are a number of hand-knitted tweed sweaters and dresses, no two of which are alike. "The man who does these never repeats the same colors," said Mrs. Abraham.

In speaking of her store she said, "A country store denotes the old fashioned. We've lost so much of the handmade and interesting details today.

"I've always loved antiques. I had been working, so I thought that if I was going to keep on I might as well do it for myself."

The Abrahams, who live on Holbrook Road, have three children, 16, 14 and 12. "My children love antiques too. They've been raised with them. One of my girls, though, (she's a tomboy), says she'll never have an antique in her house because you have to be careful with them."

In her immediate plans is the addition of a Christmas Shop for the holiday season. The store is open six days a week including Sunday. Monday is her day to stay home and catch up.

The store is good for browsing. "I love people," said Maurine Abraham, and one could not help believe it.

Mrs. Abraham and Mrs. Robert W. Miles discuss a dress.

This is the store on Little Neck Road.

Ad Club to Hear Plans

The Advertising Club of Tidewater Virginia will meet next Tuesday, Nov. 12, at the Admiralty Motel on Military Highway at 12:15 p.m.

President Dick Paul announced that the guest speaker will be Dennis Skinner, Director of Community Promotion for the City of Norfolk. Skinner's speech will highlight discussion of the plans for Scope and the future of the AAA Mets farm team in 1970.

Clark Joins Law Firm

Donald R. Clark recently joined the law firm of Kellam and Kellam. He is associated with Floyd E. Kellam Jr. at the Virginia Beach office.

Clark, a graduate of the Naval Academy, spent four years aboard a destroyer homeported in Norfolk. He graduated from George Washington University Law School in 1968 with the degree of Juris Doctor.

Clark and his wife, the former Faye Blanton Pratt of Knoxville, Tenn. live with their two children in King's Grant.

Rating System May Decide Title

Eight down and two to go! That's the way it is at First Colonial High School. The Patriots have now knocked off all of their opponents, and face only two more contests before being able to claim the coveted unbeaten season.

By downing Maury's previously unbeaten Commodores last weekend, the Patriots jumped a notch in the statewide standings to seventh place, replacing Maury, which held that spot last week. Now the talk centers around the Eastern District title.

Walter Carroll, principal of Cox High School is chairman of the district principals. His groups meets in closed session today to review the way the district leader can be chosen. The problem is Norview, still unbeaten in District play and likely to remain so the way things look.

If Norview finishes the season 8-0 and First Colonial finishes 7-0 in the District, no one is quite certain just who walks off with the crown.

The contention of the Patriots is that the Virginia High School League accepted rating system should be used regardless of the number of games played or won, in determining the district leader and a regional playoff berth.

First Colonial will apparently win that way, since Norview has little chance of catching the Patriots in the rating race.

Wilson, unbeaten in seven starts, has already clinched the Southeastern district title, is rated first in the state, and will likely play the leader of the Eastern district for a regional title and perhaps a share of the statewide crown.

But Maury still has the chance to play spoiler in both districts and statewide. The Commodores play Wilson this weekend and Norview next weekend.

The Patriots still have two more games to play, against Lake Taylor and Kellam. Until last weekend it appeared that Maury was the big hurdle and that the rest would be simple. Lake Taylor is still expected to be an easy target but the surging Kellam Knights (6-2) showed surprising strength in shutting out Granby. So the Eastern District title and possibly even a share of the statewide title could go right down to the wire.

The Patriots' stars, Les Whitebourne, Eddie Skovall, Clinton Graves, Bob Wareing and John Grimstead, shone brightly last Friday night, putting together outstanding running and passing offense with excellent defense to down the Commodores 12-6. Kicking still remained the weak point for both teams, but particularly for the Patriots, who have had trouble with conversions all year.

The Patriots travel to Lake Taylor this weekend and should win it handily. In fact, the SUN now regrets predicting that Maury would win last weekend.

Lake Taylor took the Cavaliers last weekend, 14-6, ending the Cavaliers' winning streak at one and ending their own losing streak at five. The PA defense was held to only 23 yards by the Titans in a not too exciting game.

Princess Anne plays host to Bayside Friday night, and the Marlins will come to Cox stadium nursing the wound of their loss to Norview last weekend, 56-0. The Patriots ran and passed all over the Bayside team. The Marlins, still winless, never even threatened at all. Although the Marlins are fast, especially on kickoff returns, Princess Anne appears to have a more balanced team and should stretch that win record to two this weekend.

Kellam takes on Great Bridge fresh from a big victory over Granby at Foreman Field. The Knights now have a 6-2 record, which is a little better than that of Great Bridge, but Great Bridge seems to have the edge in all-around teamwork. This one could be close, with the slight edge going to Great Bridge.

In the Granby game, however, the Knights put together a fine running attack for its two touchdowns to win it 14-0. It was the first shutout for the Comets this season, although they threatened twice in the scoreless first half.

Norview is expected to try for a duplication of the Bayside game this weekend as the Chiefs take on winless Kempville. Indian River, in a game riddled by penalties, managed to beat the Chiefs 7-0, but Kempville showed surprising strength for a young team.

Granby will be looking for revenge this weekend when the Comets take on two-game winner Cox. Oscar Smith grabbed a touchdown the first time it got the ball last weekend, but couldn't do any better than beat Cox, 7-0. Cox almost tied it up in the closing minutes, but the drive ran out on the Smith six.

Union Kempville, victims of a Norcom onslaught last weekend, takes on Crestwood, but the UK team appears to have run out of steam and will probably lose this one too. Norcom held the Tigers with no difficulty for a 33-6 win.

Last week's results:

First Colonial 12 Maury 6
Kellam 14 Granby 0
Oscar Smith 7 Cox 0
Indian River 7 Kempville 0
Lake Taylor 14 Princess Anne 6
Norview 56 Bayside 0
Norcom 33 Union Kempville 6

Predictions: Maury 13-0
First Colonial over Lake Taylor
Norview over Kempville
Great Bridge over Kellam
Princess Anne over Bayside
Crestwood over Union Kempville
Granby over Cox.

It was "heads-up" football like this that brought First Colonial out on top in the battle of the unbeaten. This play resulted in a broken Commodore pass.

A typical play by the Knights is shown here as Kellam ran easily for long gains and outdistanced Granby.

Bonfire Raises Spirits

By Debbie Bowman

Kempville High School

In order to boost school spirit at Kempville High School the KHS cheerleaders sponsored a bonfire on Oct. 31, the night before the clash between the Kempville Chiefs and the Indian River Braves.

Despite the fact that it was a chilly Halloween night, the Chiefs turned out in large numbers for the lighting of the fire. On hand also were faculty members and, for safety, a fire truck.

The cheerleaders arrived in a white pickup truck driven by Billy Harris and immediately began the night's activity by singing chants and victory songs. The crowd responded immediately as preparations for the lighting of the fire were made.

Jeff Bryant, newly elected Junior Class vice president started the proceedings.

Part of the band, sponsored and directed by Jerry Cole, and drum major Mike Crawford were on hand to play popular songs. The crowd responded by forming a train around the fire, led by Warren Connelley and Bud Hooper.

The highlight of the night was the pep club's stuffed dummy which had "Indian River Braves" printed on it. After taking the dummy around the fire so everyone could see, it was tossed into the fire as cheers burst from the crowd.

Nixon Elected at P.A.

By Cindy Tyson

P.A. High School

During the past two weeks, the government classes had each divided into the various political parties and researched the platform and policies of each. Several debates had taken place between the parties and classes.

On Nov. 1 there was an assembly for all government students to hear representatives from the major parties. They were as follows: Edward Brogan, Democratic party; Jack Field, Republican party; Lewis Darden, Independent party.

That program was followed by a mock election Nov. 4. There were 12 precincts located in key spots throughout the school and manned by selected government students. The voting continued all day until 2:20 p.m. The students were assigned to a precinct according to their homerooms. Each precinct was operated in an official manner with two judges and a registrar. There were six supervisors over the voting procedure. Nixon won the presidential nomination.

The students also voted on the bond issue and liquor by the drink. Both issues were passed.

Fall Clean-Up Means Yards Too

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Fall clean-up and planting around the garden can provide enjoyable exercise on sunny fall days. Be sure to keep leaves raked up from the lawn, if they are allowed to accumulate and become matted down by rain, they may kill your grass. Rake them up regularly and store them in a pile for use as mulch in your garden next summer.

And speaking of mulch, cut down the plants in your vegetable and flower garden and leave the chopped trash to protect the soil this winter. Use hand-pruning shears, hedge pruners or a sharp sickle to cut the plants into pieces about six inches long. This trash mulch will help prevent erosion and will provide organic matter when plowed into the soil next spring.

Low-growing plants like beans and dwarf flowers may be cut up by running along the row with a rotary lawn mower. If you have exercised reasonable care in controlling insects and diseases in your garden, you need not fear that these dead plants will increase your problem next year. For most home gardeners the use of trash mulch is a much more practical way of maintaining the soil organic matter than the seeding of fall cover crop of rye.

Some of your coarse material such as corn stalks, or evergreen branches may be used as mulch on your chrysanthemums. These plants need extra protection if they are to survive the cold winter weather.

A better procedure than using mulch on chrysanthemums is to cut the tops back to about three inches long and dig the plants up and place them in pots or flats in a cold frame until growth starts next spring. Cuttings can then be taken from these plants, which when rooted, will make vigorous growth next summer. Such plants usually will produce much better flowers than those from old plants.

Try sowing some hardy annual flowers to secure an early start with your garden next year. The following seeds will tolerate the cold of winter and be ready to grow rapidly when warm weather arrives next spring: calendula, California poppy, calliopsis, candytuft, cornflower, cosmos larkspur, lupine, pansy and snapdragon.

When planting these hardy annual flowers in the fall, make a shallow, wide furrow. Scatter the seeds thinly in a band about three or four inches wide and cover lightly with soil. This scattering of seeds will allow some of the young plants to be easily transplanted into more desirable locations in flower beds and borders.

Mulch your fall-planted annuals with coarse material to reduce erosion and damage by rapid and extreme changes in temperature. Mark the rows carefully so you will know where to look for your young seedlings next spring. Remove the mulch after cold weather is past but before the plants start to grow.

'Colorful' Show Planned

The Marion Crosby Garden Club of Norfolk is presenting a flower show Nov. 15 and 16 at the Norfolk Botanical Gardens featuring table arrangements.

The show, which will be from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Nov. 15 and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Nov. 16 will be in the Administration Building at the Gardens. It is entitled "Table Carrousel" and will feature exhibits conforming to the standard color wheel.

Tickets for the show may be bought from club members for $7.50 or at the door for $1. Tickets may be obtained in Virginia Beach from Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, co-chairman of the show, or Mrs. Malcolm Todd, ticket chairman.

The show will comply in all ways with the National Council of State Garden Clubs Standards.

ards for the Standard Flower Show. Awards will be presented Nov. 15 at 5:30 p.m.

Cultural and artistic entries may be brought in on Nov. 14 between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m., and Nov. 15 between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. Any entry brought in after 10 a.m. on Nov. 15 will be placed, but marked not to be judged. Registration for entries will close at 10 a.m. on Nov. 15. All exhibits must remain in place until the closing of the show on Nov. 16 at 6 p.m.

In addition to the "Color Wheel" exhibits, which will include Breakfast, Luncheon, Buffet and Dinner Decorative Units, there will be exhibits in the "Holiday Show-Off" classes (composed of anniversary and holiday units), a section for Junior and Intermediate, "Tea-Anyone?" (to be staged on a card table 30"x30") and decorative units for the supper table called "Mother's Night Off".

The Horticulture Exhibits will include Conifers, Broad Leaved Evergreens (Fruited) and Broad Leaved Evergreens (Non-fruited).

There will also be an Educational Division in the show which will show Landscape Design (Using Herbs), Publication Display and an Exhibit using lighting effects.

Considerable numbers of Japanese hollies have been observed to be dying in our city. A characteristic symptom that has been observed is the turning brown and the death of individual branches of the plant.

This is especially true of plants that have been set in particularly trying spots such as near walks, in spots where building rubble has possibly been dumped, or along highways.

The extremely dry weather, coupled with the extreme temperatures that we experienced this summer seem mostly to blame. The plants need adequate moisture. Thus far, they have not received it this summer and fall, although some relief has come.

As we go into the winter months, hopefully the moisture supply will increase to a point that these plants will not go into another summer in an already weakened condition.

Woman's Club Meets Nov. 12

The Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach will hold its regular meeting at the Cape Beach and Cabana Club, 40th & Ocean Front Tuesday, Nov. 12. The business meeting will be called to order at 11 a.m. by the president, Mrs. M. B. Zoll.

During the lunch hour, Miss Kathy Mays, a student of Princess Anne High School and Club sponsored delegate to Girls State, will relate her experiences while attending Girls State.

After lunch, Mrs. W. J. Tuttle, music chairman, will present "The Baker's Dozen" a musical group from Norview High School under the direction of Mrs. Claire McDermott.

Cavaliers Host Faculty

The education department of the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club will sponsor a tea for the faculty of Plaza Elementary School on Nov. 11 at 2:30 p.m. at the school.

Mrs. Fred Feller, chairman of the Club's education department, and Mrs. Asa Camp will be hostesses for the tea.

This is an annual event sponsored by the club each year for a different school during American Education Week.

For a delicious cream cheese topping, mix 2 three-ounce packages of cream cheese with four tablespoons or more of milk or cream, then whip it up until it's light and fluffy. Meadow Gold home economists suggest this good topping for pumpkin pie, gingerbread and puddings.

Decorations Clinic Is Success

"Christmas decorations can be anything you want them to be," Mrs. John V. Knight, Jr., who gave a program on Christmas decorating sponsored Tuesday at the Golden Triangle by the Tidewater District of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. Knight, noted lecturer, author, accredited flower show judge and instructor, is from Cayuga Falls, Ohio. Her program, entitled "Knight Before Christmas," consisted of demonstrating the making of decorations for inside and outside of houses.

"The problem is over-decorating," she said. "We feel every table and wall must be covered. A little restraint will add to the beauty of the decorations."

She began with Thanksgiving decorations by saying that everywhere she went she saw doors decorated with ears of Indian corn. Mrs. Knight said that practice dates back to the original Thanksgiving when the Pilgrims put corn on the door to show they had plenty to feed guests. Next she made a Thanksgiving wreath (which included several ears of corn) made of hops, pyracantha, lotus pods and a ribbon bow.

"Don't forget the back," she cautioned. "How would you feel if your back wasn't finished?"

She added that a harvest arrangement should be full to show abundance. "But it should have a feeling of mass, not mess," she said.

Mrs. Knight advised that women plan their decorations in advance when materials are still available. "Use decorations over but not in the same place."

350 Was Unexpected Challenge

Mrs. Edgar Tugman got more than she bargained for when she agreed to be in charge of the luncheon at the 20th Annual Galilee Episcopal Church Bazaar.

Mrs. Tugman, whose hobby is cooking, said she had served as kitchen chairman this year and had been in charge of the Merle-Club dinners sometimes to quite large crowds. "I thought the bazaar served about 125 lunches. I didn't know it was 350!"

The bazaar will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Nov. 13 at the church. Luncheon will begin at 11:30. Lunch is $1.75.

Featured on the lunch menu will be chicken salad, cranberry jelly salad, country ham, cheese biscuits and lemon tarts. Helping Mrs. Tugman on the lunch will be Mrs. Fred M. Robinson, Mrs. Arthur W. Mann, Mrs. Richard Taloe, Mrs. Allen P. Dawson, Mrs. Loring C. Smith and Mrs. Charles L. Gilliam.

This was the committee that selected the menu. "We discussed what we could and couldn't

Mrs. Knight places colored wheat in one of her arrangements.

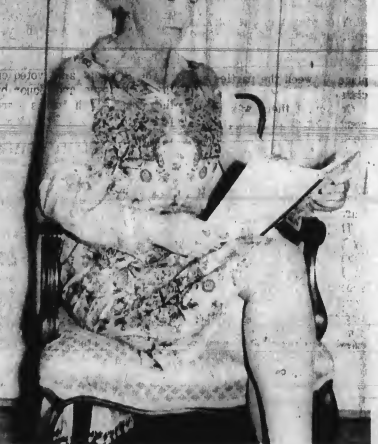

One simple tip for making a Christmas table cloth out of a plain one is to make red and green tassels of yarn to pin to the corners. She also emphasized the importance of making decorations for children to enjoy.

One she showed was a Santa figure sitting on a styrofoam disk with a brandy snifter turned upside down over it. A few pieces of greenery were placed in the styrofoam. Then a styrofoam cone was placed on top as a Christmas tree decorated with peppermint candies and tiny red bows.

A modernistic kissing ball was constructed of number 28 spool wire wrapped into a ball shape. A red bow with mistletoe sprigs tied to it was placed on the top and bottom. Mrs. Knight added that each time someone kisses under a kissing ball, a mistletoe berry must be removed. When all are gone, the kissing must end.

"There is nothing new under the sun," Mrs. Knight stated flatly. "But there are new ways of using old ideas. Everyone is born with creativity. Some of us just don't develop it." She encouraged home decorators to use a variety of colors for Christmas, not just the traditional green, red and gold.

do, then decided," said Mrs. Tugman. "When you serve a large crowd, there's just so much to do."

Co-chairman of the bazaar, Mrs. Misses deWitt; Drisk one of the oldest in Virginia Beach, are Mrs. P. Porcher Gregg and Mrs. Fred Koch.

Featured at the bazaar will be a Christmas Booth, Mrs. Joseph Canada; Sewing, Mrs. Landon Hilliard; Pantry Shelf, Mrs. H.L. Walsh; Knitting, Mrs. Darden Hunter; Jewelry, Mrs. C.W. DeWalt; White Elephant, Mrs. John Goode; Grandma's Attic, Mrs. John Cassaga; Plants, Misses deWitt; Drisk Arrangements, Mrs. C. M. Woodhouse; Brass Polish, Stationery, Mrs. J.B. Oliver; Children's Booth, Mrs. Philip Green and Youth Fellowship; Decorations, Mrs. Sydney Morecock; Waitresses, Mrs. Frank Booker Jr.; Luncheon Tickets, Mrs. Ferebee Trafton; Table Arrangements, Mrs. C. M. Baylort; Special Events, Mrs. J.R. McKenry.

There will be a nursery for children.

Reception Will Honor Teachers

On Sunday Nov. 10 during National Education Week, the Education Department of the Suburban Junior Woman's Club will give a reception in honor of club members and prospective new members who are teachers.

Mrs. Thomas J. Cummings, education chairman, will open her new home at 5600 Lawson Hall Rd., for this salute to the teaching profession and club women who not only are serving their communities through club work, but giving doubly through their profession.

Airport Still Up in Air

The Mayor's Airport committee is still holding meetings often and chairman James Sadler said that he hopes they can soon come up with a solution to the general aviation airport problem in Virginia Beach. And plans for Norfolk Regional Airport expansion go on.

Early last month Sadler and members of the committee met with Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., and sought his help concerning the location of at least one, possibly two, short airstrips in Virginia Beach. Sadler has maintained that such facilities located near the Beach Borough would generate an increased tourist population and could make Virginia Beach more attractive to industrial interests.

"We only talked in generalities when we were there," said Sadler. "The Governor said then he would talk with Col. Pientl and would let us know the result of his findings."

Sadler said that Col. William

Area Cities Census Figure May Mean Funds Should Decide Site

Several of the SUN SURVEY forms were returned this week with comments attached. The comments were all about the same thing—money.

The question was, "Should a location for a new stadium or new stadiums for all of Tidewater be decided by all cities involved instead of the decision being made only by Norfolk?"

Of those who answered, 84 per cent said "Yes" and 16 per cent said "No." One was returned with no mark, and was not counted.

The consensus of those who added comments was that all cities will furnish the customers and the income for the stadiums, therefore they should have a voice in site selection.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the entire thinking of the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to clip out the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question in the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published next week here. Future surveys will appear each week in the same spot. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more correct and responsible the opinion.

Of the 168,170 persons in Virginia Beach 41,890 attend public schools in the city.

That's the word from school officials following completion of the long-awaited school census required by law every three years.

The report also says there are 46,007 persons in the city between the ages of 6 and 19. This figure includes school dropouts, graduates and those attending private schools.

Those under six total 20,364, but this does not take into consideration babies under the age of one year, not included in the survey.

Other statistics included in the survey, which began as early as last January, point out that there are 40,809 white children and 4,639 children of other races in the city. Of that number 36,983 white children, 4,347 negro, and 530 children of other races attend public schools in Virginia Beach.

Also the report says 1,158 children between 6 and 19 are not attending school and that 989 children are handicapped, either physically or mentally.

City Council expanded the door-to-door canvassing of the school census to find out exactly how many persons live in the city. Planning Dept. figures released recently estimated the population at about 4,000 persons higher than the official survey, fairly accurate with the inclusion of babies under a year old.

The population totals are expected to bolster the city's chances of obtaining more state funds since the official estimate by the University of Virginia said the population was considerably less, about 150,000.

The school census figures are expected to be used in planning for future schools for the city and as background information for another school bond issue, this one for between $6 and $10 million, expected sometime in 1969.

City Manager Roger Scott has said previously that he does not want to see a tax increase in the coming year, following so closely on the tax increase of 1968 caused by the $18.5 million bond issues, mostly for schools.

City Council and Scott, on the other hand, have agreed that the city must come to grips with the construction boom of housing, necessitating more schools. A number of preliminary meetings between city officials and builders have been held, with many more in the offing.

Some months ago it was decided that a complete study of voting precincts in Virginia Beach was necessary. City Council was informed that a survey would be needed by Electoral Board chairman John James. At the same time a few additional voting machines were bought for the larger precincts.

Last week's election day proved that the study was necessary immediately so that all problems could be solved before the primaries in 1969. Long lines developed at several precincts throughout the day, and one precinct, Aragon, did not finish voting those in line until two hours after the polls closed.

A number of complaints were received by city officials, and within two days after election James and Planning Director Patrick Standing announced that a study would be underway as soon as possible.

Half of the present 26 precincts are actually in violation of standards set up for voting; that is, they have more than 1,500 persons registered in those precincts. James said something must be done with each one of them, and that ideally there should be one voting machine in every precinct for each 500 voters expected.

It is expected that about ten new precincts will be created at the completion of the survey and the redistricting of several others. Location has always been a problem, since central

Penn-Central Land

Industrial Future Looks Bright

Two long awaited announcements came from City Hall yesterday afternoon, one during the meeting and one just after.

During the meeting City Manager Roger Scott read a joint release from his office and the office of Norfolk City Manager Thomas Maxwell which announced an extension of the water contract between the two cities until July 1, 1969.

Then after the meeting, Scott, Industrial commission head L. Dean Curtis and Industrial Authority chairman Frank Kellam announced jointly that the Penn-Central Railroad had agreed to recommend to its board later this month that the Industrial Authority bid of $750,000 for industrial property at Little Creek be accepted.

The water contract was due to expire on Dec. 31, 1968, but Scott and Maxwell have had several meetings, which according to the release, have been "very productive and that there is every indication that they (the two managers) will be in a position to recommend to their respective councils a proposal for an agreement of the purchase of the water system in Virginia Beach from the city of Norfolk on terms that they believe will be fair and equitable to both communities.

The extension was agreed to by Virginia Beach City Council so that the complex agreement could be worked out.

"One Councilman called the acceptance of the bid for the industrial property the 'most exciting thing that has happened to Virginia Beach since merger.'"

The railroad board is expected to meet by the end of this month, and pending a final survey by the city the tentative date of settlement is Dec. 16, Kellam said. "Our terms have been arranged through Virginia National Bank for the purchase."

The 183 acres gives Virginia Beach a deep water port which is near to the Norfolk airport and all major roads. Rail sidings already serve the property.

Curtis noted that a number of feelers had been received from private industries wishing to locate both on the waterfront on the inside land.

He added that as soon as settlement is made the city will begin leveling the brush on the abandoned property and making it ready for industry.

"It is already in good shape," he said.

Scott noted that the acceptance of the bid and subsequent development of the industrial property could give the city of Virginia Beach a new base for competitive industry.

It was also pointed out that Tidewater Virginia Development Council director Fred Duckworth had been most helpful in the acquisition of the property.

Meanwhile at Scott's recommendation Council yesterday approved payment of $1,200 to A. P. Grice & Son for aid given the city in making the appraisal of the land.

Passed on second reading, the minimum housing ordinance became part of the City Code at the meeting Wednesday afternoon.

At City Attorney Harry Marshall's request Council took no action on a resolution to improve the 20-foot alley between 51st and 52nd Streets just off Atlantic Avenue. A dispute arose when Council attempted to satisfy all residents of the area, including Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans whose driveway area will be part of the alley, in an informal meeting last week Council decided to handle the matter to the letter of the law as put forth in the state code. It will come before the next meeting of Council on Nov. 25, as was recorded in the minutes of the last meeting.

Council also adopted an architectural fee schedule to be followed in the future by the city on all municipal building projects. The schedule is in line with that used by Norfolk and was recommended by the AIA. Scott said the schedule would adequately protect and compensate all architects on future projects.

Scott also presented Council with his findings in the matter of Frere Jacques School. He pointed out last week in informal meeting that while a building

Last Apts. Approved Under Old System

City Council approved zoning applications and use permits yesterday afternoon for 1,728 new apartments and townhouses in various parts of the city, then served notice that these and those pending from Tuesday's City Planning Commission meeting would be the last handled in this manner.

City Manager Roger Scott presented a recommendation from a joint School Board-City Council subcommittee that has been under consideration for some time. The subcommittee studied complaints from school officials that large housing, apartment, and lowhouse developments were being passed by the planning commission and subsequently by City Council without consideration of how they would affect the school situation in the area.

Scott earlier asked that school officials and planning officials work together to see whether new schools would be needed or additions to existing schools would be necessary if possible to build them. School officials have in several cases had difficulty finding property in the area of newly approved developments at a reasonable cost and at times a number of applications were held up while school problems were worked out.

The recommendation which was approved by Council calls for all future residential units rezoning and use permit applications to contain all pertinent information regarding schools and school problems to be prepared by school and planning officials.

This does not end the problem that exists between builders and school officials, but may open the door to future negotiations. Builders say they are responsible for much of the growth and it is up to the city to provide the schools. In other areas builders are either required to donate school sites or sell to the city at raw land costs.

The largest single application that was approved yesterday gave United Mortgagee Servicing Corp. the proper zoning and use permit for 904 apartments on Birdneck Road near Old Virginia Beach Road.

Bernard Jaffe was granted a use permit for 368 apartment units between Bonney Rd. and the expressway near Boggs Av-

Beach Misses Brunt of Storm

A total of 28 poles fell, according to Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. spokesmen, many in the chain reaction caused by tightly pulled wires. Only a few were actually downed by the winds. The area affected was between Edwin Avenue and Landstown Road, C & P employees spent much of the day repairing damage.

Virginia Beach fared better than most of Virginia in the early winter storm which raced up the eastern seaboard Monday night and Tuesday. While snow was piling up in the western reaches of the state, Virginia Beach temperatures were in the low 50's.

Rain and heavy seas, coupled with winds up to nearly 50 miles per hour, buffeted the coast for 24 hours. As the storm moved northward temperatures dropped sharply.

The unusually warm weather so far this fall kept the trees full of leaves, but all that changed during the storm. The trees are bare now, and many a homeowner will spend many an hour raking the yard this weekend.

Damage in Virginia Beach from the storm was slight. Several signs were knocked down by the winds. A few fall trees held up traffic mostly in neighborhoods and a few homes were slightly damaged. Police attributed a number of minor traffic accidents to the slick roads and the storm.

Along Holland Road southward from Rosemont Road traffic was rerouted for several hours because of a number of utility poles that were toppled by the storm. The poles were beside the area of Holland Road that was widened and resurfaced this summer. Deep ditches had been cut around some of the poles for drainage, which may have made the poles more vulnerable to high winds, according to one spokesman.

Tides were only one or two feet above normal and little flooding was reported except in extremely low-lying areas. Little or no beach erosion was caused. A sand buildup was noticed at Hives Inlet channel, but was not considered to be serious.

Police and utility crews stayed on the job through the night and all day Tuesday to clear trouble spots. No major injuries were reported.

Work crews moved into the field early Tuesday morning to repair telephone lines and poles, blown over along Holland Road, between Edwin Avenue and Landstown Road.

Judge Waits for Developments

A trial date still has been set for the suit being brought by Commonwealth Attorney, Andre Evans, against Richard Stanley Holland for alleged conflict of interest.

Judge Robert S. Wahab has continued proceedings in the suit until Dec. 6 in Circuit Court. Judge Wahab has declared that he is not yet ready to rule on the question of Evans' authority to file the suit.

The suit against Holland and his firm, A. Wrenn & Sons, was filed by Evans in July after Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Sutton stated it was penal in nature and should not be considered as a debt. Collection of debts is part of the comptroller's duties. Judge Wahab feels that the question of jurisdiction depends upon the words, "payment of money." If forfeiture were different from debt the legislature should have said so instead of "payment of money."

A decision in the suit is also hampered by the uncertainty of what conflict of interest is in Virginia Beach. A special resolution in the Virginia General Assembly early next year is expected to hear recommendations for a new conflict of interest law.

Judge Wahab

declared Holland had violated state law. Evans has filed to recover $215,000 in sales the company made to the city while Holland was a member of the Police and Trial Board.

Gordon Campbell, lawyer for Holland, has filed a demurrer asking that the suit be declared null and void since state law requires the state comptroller to institute proceedings to enforce payment of money to the Commonwealth. Evans, as a local Commonwealth attorney, has no authority to file such a suit, according to Campbell.

Evans contends that the for-

Drinks by New Year Forseen

About 30 large restaurants and dining rooms in large hotels and motels in Virginia Beach are expected to begin applying for mixed beverage licenses shortly after the first week in December.

Following certification of the official victory of liquor-by-the-drink in the resort city under provisions of the new state law, applications may be made 30 days later. Certification came Nov. 7. The first applications could come as early as Dec. 7. Challenges in Norfolk and Portsmouth because of allegedly not meeting referendum advertising requirements are

This windowless, one-story structure, in the Windsor Woods section of the City, will house the new Virginia Beach Emergency Operation Center, starting tomorrow.

Center Will Open Tomorrow

Barring any unforeseen difficulties the new "Emergency Operation Center" for the City of Virginia Beach will be placed into service tomorrow, Nov. 15.

This new Center, located adjacent to the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department at Rosemont Road and Plaza Trail in the Windsor Woods section of the city, has been in the planning and construction stage for three years.

It is designed to serve as an emergency nerve center for the city in the event of disasters. Built at a cost of $84,498, part of which is being covered through the use of federal funds, the Center has been designed to offer protection from fallout radiation in the event of an enemy atomic attack.

The importance of this is pointed out in the very construction of the building with thick brick walls, the lack of windows, restricted entrances and exits (one of which leads through a "decontamination shower"), and permitting persons to remain in the building for long periods of time without physical contact with the outside world.

The structure contains kitchen facilities, areas for storage of food and medical supplies, office space which can be converted into sleeping quarters and toilet and bath facilities.

When placed into operation the new Center will serve as the permanent dispatchers' headquarters for the fire and rescue departments of the city and Civil Defense Headquarters. Provisions have also been made to handle police communications from the Center in the event of a major disaster.

Tomorrow's initial planned operation of the center will involve the fire and rescue dispatchers. Standby equipment placed in the new Center will be switched into service to handle any emergencies while the regular equipment is being relocated from the present dispatcher location in the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Station at 20th Street and Arctic Avenue.

Earlier plans to include the City's Fire Prevention Bureau offices in this new structure have been revised. An evaluation of the overall operation of the Center made it more feasible to find more suitable quarters for the Fire Prevention Bureau which should be accomplished in the near future.

Rezoning Approved At End of Toll Rd.

In a public hearing on Tuesday the Virginia Beach Planning Commission approved application from the city for a change of zoning on 21st and 22nd Streets.

This property, which extends from Pacific Avenue to the entrance of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway, has been rezoned for business and apartment use. Residential housing located on the north and south boundaries of 21st and 22nd Streets will be zoned for multi-family dwellings, whereas the blocks between 21st and 22nd Streets will be zoned for retail business. Zoning between Parks and Caspian Avenues will be mainly motel-hotel. The primary purpose for this rezoning is to provide an entrance to the city from the toll road.

Greenco Corporation was granted a use permit to construct a 200-room motel with related facilities on property located on the southeast corner of Laskin Road and Atlantic Avenue.

Approval was granted to Marcus M. Weinstein for zoning changes on property located south of Laskin Road across from Victor Road in the Markey Manor-Hilltop area. Approval was also granted for a use permit to construct 427 apartment units on the same property in spite of objections raised by School Supt. E. E. Brickell.

He contended that the apartment would crowd schools in the area. Kernal Realty Co. and Selma Properties, Inc. were denied zoning changes to permit construction of 336 townhouses and apartment units on property located south of Virginia Beach Blvd. east of Clearfield Avenue.

Action was deferred for 30 days on the application by the city for zoning changes along Virginia Beach Blvd. from Birdneck Road to the intersection of Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Blvd. This action was taken after Oceana residents objected to the changes, which would result in changing part of their residential area to limited commercial.

Residents of the Great Neck Road area who wanted a 1964 zoning of Dey Farm rescinded were directed to take their petition to Circuit Court. They objected on the grounds that they had received no notice, rather than the necessary two, of a 1964 hearing.

Sentence Suspended
Two Virginia Beach men were convicted of disorderly conduct after charges of strong-arm robbery against them were nolle prossed in Municipal Court. James G. Sadowski, 21, and Malcolm charged with carrying a wallet from a teenager on Oct. 23 in the parking lot of Pembroke Mall.

Services Held

State Sen. Henry E. Howell Jr. was the featured speaker Sunday at the Veteran's Wreath-Laying ceremonies held at Rosewood Memorial Park.

Using the occasion to help establish himself as a gubernatorial candidate, Sen. Howell spoke on what he termed discriminatory practices against service personnel by insurance companies doing business in Virginia. He admonished Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. to end such practices.

Marion Summer, a 95-year-old veteran of the Spanish American War, placed a wreath on a tombstone which commemorates the American war dead as the main event of the occasion.

The 384th Army Band from Fort Eustis played for the event. Other participants in the ceremonies were a color guard and rifle team, also of Fort Eustis, various veterans organizations, scout troops, and police color guards from Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach.

In addition to Howell, others who spoke on the program were Robert B. Cromwell Jr., vice-mayor of Virginia Beach; Gordon Ragsdale, state commander of the American Legion; Sidney Oman, of the Portsmouth Disabled Veterans' Association, who was master of ceremonies; and Alan T. Davis, president of the Tidewater Veterans Association.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Inspector Fred Quist, who is recovering from recent surgery, says he hopes to return to limited duties Monday with the City's Fire Prevention Bureau. In discussing the large number of persons who answered calls for blood donors and other emergency needs during his illness, Quist said "Man, I never knew I had so many friends, and I don't know how I'll ever thank all the people for their thoughts and prayers".

Virginia Beach police department was well represented during Veteran's Day services which were held in Norfolk Monday. The new police departmental flag was displayed during the parade and ceremonies escorted by the Color Guard comprised of Sgt. K. A. Belangia and officers R. F. Lippert, R. R. Monette, D. L. Rinick, Jr., W. N. Knowles, and R. H. Meeks. Virginia Beach's traffic bureau was also represented by motorcycle officers G. L. Byron and F. R. Scarborough.

Men of the Seateck Volunteer Fire Department last weekend played host to approximately 45 high school students. The group representing Virginia Beach and other Tidewater cities, as well as areas from North Carolina and South Carolina spent Saturday and Sunday in a "work camp" making repairs to various homes and other buildings in Seateck. The brotherhood movement is sponsored by the Friends Service Organizations.

Congratulations are in order for Carey Lee Atkins, 19 years of age, who becomes the first civilian employee of the Virginia Beach police department under a new program of employing young persons in important inside positions with the department. Atkins, who reportedly is doing a fine job, is employed at one of the department's various complaint positions.

Two volunteers with the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department are among the latest to earn citations for their fishing abilities. Worth Morse captured a 16 pound bluefish while "Pee Wee" Morse brought back a 19 1/2 pound blue. We understand a number of neighborhood youngsters were along on the trip some ten miles off the coast, and they did themselves proud by also capturing a few citations with their catches.

Justice of the Peace W. Irving McClanahan is another fisherman who reportedly is bringing back the big ones. Those who tell us of McClanahan's talents, describing the size of the catches and their quality, also say they are wondering how McClanahan's doing it.

Fourth in a Series

Police 'Moonlight' To Supplement Pay

"A man cannot serve two masters," said the report released by the Virginia Beach Police Association regarding the necessity of many officers of the Virginia Beach police department having to hold a second job in order to support their families. This was discovered by the FOPA in their four-month evaluation of the department to determine if any steps are necessary to improve operations.

The FOPA report points out that many police officers are forced into a sideline job and just as strongly points out the dangers in this forced moonlighting. These dangers lie in a man perhaps losing pride in his profession and interest in his police work, and possible reduction of a man's efficiency and effectiveness as a police officer due to the strain of a second job, according to the report.

The only alternative, says the FOPA, is to raise salaries. The starting salary of a patrolman in Virginia Beach is $468 per month, compared to $490 per month in Norfolk.

Other Tidewater cities have basic salaries for police officers lower than Virginia Beach, however these cities have what appears to be superior retirement and pension allowances.

Several positions within the Virginia Beach police department have an even lower basic salary of $428 per month. Officials say these men are employed as dispatchers, complaint personnel, and other inside personnel who occupy information and assistance positions. These same officials questioned the value of offering these officers a lower salary, however, because of a job classification.

The recent Yarger report adopted by the city last July reportedly set pay increases for police officers, as well as set classifications and salaries for all city employees.

These job reclassifications failed to provide an across the board salary increase within the department and actually prevented some officers from obtaining a pay increase.

Those persons who were reclassified and received no increase include policemen working as dispatchers, complaint personnel and others working inside precincts, as well as some women stenographers and clerk typists. In addition some administrative and supervisory personnel received no pay hike.

Capt. G. C. Riley, admin-trative assistant to the chief of police, said the report reflected his participation of his duties from "Captain-Executive Officer" to "Captain", thus preventing a possible 10 per cent salary increase.

In calling for higher salaries for members of the Virginia Beach police department, the FOPA report recommends a first step of setting starting salaries for new police officers at a basic rate of $ 2 per month.

This FOPA recommendation is coupled with recommendations that police officers face the same expenses and cost of living as other citizens; that a better paid police department results in a more conscientious department which can attract and retain top-rated men; and that police officers should be prevented from necessity of moonlighting.

Austin Attends Banking Meet

Franklin B. Austin, assistant vice president of Virginia National Bank, will attend the District IV, American Institute of Banking, Midwinter Associate Councilman Meeting to be held at the Statler-Hilton in Baltimore, Maryland, on Nov. 16.

Austin, a past president of the Tidewater Chapter of A.I.B., is currently serving the chapter as an associate councilman for Eastern Virginia.

Health Week Is Set

In keeping with the Presidential Proclamation that Nov. 17-23 designated as National Family Health Week, Mayor Frank A. Dusch has asked the people of Virginia Beach to observe this week as such.

Mayor Dusch met recently with Dr. William D. Stallings, president of the Virginia Beach Medical Society, Dr. C. W. Dewalt Jr., chief of the Department of General Practice of the Virginia Beach General Hospital, Hunter Phelan, president of the Board of Directors at General Hospital, and W.E. Willis, administrator at General Hospital. They went over the Virginia Beach Proclamation of National Family Health Week, making note that there are 17 doctors in general practice here.

Dr. Stallings specified that one of the purposes of this week is to "get young people to consider going into the practice of medicine, particularly into general practice because the profession is so short of family doctors."

Gels Suspended Sentence

A 23-year-old Navy man attached to the Norfolk Naval Air Station has been given a two year suspended sentence following his conviction of the charge of possessing narcotics. Police said John (Ace) White was arrested last April when they found him "cuddled around a street sign post" near Kendall Street and Shore Drive.

Boat Ramp Expected In January

A public boat launching facility on a four-acre site adjacent to Owl's Creek is now under construction and scheduled for completion Jan. 13, 1969.

The Game and Fisheries Commission and Outdoor Recreation Commission gave the city a $40,000 grant to build the boat ramp, but the cost of the ramp will be $47,850.43. According to city manager, Roger M. Scott, the difference between the grant and the cost of the job was made up of funds already allocated to the City Parks and Recreation Department.

There are to be approximately 100 parking spaces and a small picnic area at the ramp site. The site is part of 35 acres given to the city by the state last March.

The contractor, Thomas J. Crooks Jr., started putting pilings down on the property last week.

The Republican ticket garnered 16,316 votes to 10,962 for Wallace's American Independent Party and 10,101 for the Democrats.

Rep. Thomas N. Downing piled up 25,041 votes in his successful re-election bid. James Stafford received 3,015 and Rev. Cornelius Fautleroy received 2,032.

The total vote for liquor by the drink was 24,840 in favor and 9,792 against. Higher education bonds were passed 24,840 to 7,183 and the mental institution bond issue passed 26,894 to 5,961.

A total of 284 votes went to the Socialist Party candidate for president in Virginia Beach. The Prohibition Party candidate drew 25 and the Peace Party candidates polled 53.

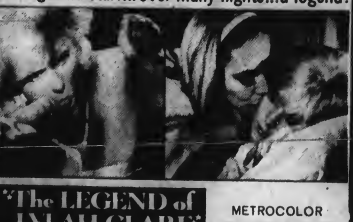

There were 11 write-in votes for John A. Field and two for Richard Brydges for Downing's Congressional seat. Neither name appeared on the ballot. Downing was not opposed by a Republican.

Several appropriations were made by Council, including $3,156 for furnishings and equipment of the Plaza Fire Station, Emergency Operating Center and Civil Defense Office. The new communications center in Windsor Woods off Rosemont Rd. opens Friday. No appropriations were made earlier in the name of economy.

An appropriation of $6,091 was made for the newly established post of Clerk of the Council, a position filled by Richard Webber. John Fentress served for several years in that position with no compensation. An additional appropriation of $1,118 was transferred to the Industrial Development Authority.

The largest single appropriation was for equipment for the Dept. of Public Utilities. The purchases had been held up earlier pending the outcome of the new Norfolk-Virginia Beach water contract.

Council also agreed to loan $39,200 to the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire and Rescue Dept.

The General Assembly of Virginia required the establishment of a highway safety commission in Virginia Beach at the 1968 session. That commission must present a program to the state by the first of the year. Several names were suggested privately to Council and appointments will be made at the next meeting.

Scott also reminded Councilmen that a meeting will be held with the division of State Planning and Community Affairs this morning at 9:30 in the school board conference room to discuss the establishment of planning districts as recommended by the state and the Virginia Municipal League.

Council referred a request for sewers in Diamond Springs to the health dept., since a problem reportedly exists and as yet not enough residents of the area have requested city sewerage.

Airport

In state and federal funds so that engineering consultants could study the entire matter and draw first plans.

The city would have to foot a small part of the bill, about $5,000 to $10,000, according to estimates, and Sadler said he has no plans at present to ask Council for any appropriation. He said he planned to confer again with Pientl and state officials in the near future.

At the time of the original meeting in Richmond a location on part of Seashore State Park was being sought, but either location on Broad Bay or near North Virginia Beach would appear now to be out of the picture. No new location has been made public.

Since that time there has arisen the possibility that the airport at Ft. Story may be upgraded and used for joint military and civilian use, according to published reports.

Reportedly the Pentagon is studying the feasibility of opening certain military strips to civilian use in several areas of the country. The Ft. Story strip is short and constructed of steel mats laid on the sand. It is used only in emergencies now and in some training exercises. Army spokesmen say the strip requires an excellent pilot to use it safely.

It is only in the talking stages in Washington. He said his committee is investigating the possibility and will continue to do so. He would not comment on the possible use of the strip by the city.

Tuesday afternoon three professional planners named to prepare a development plan for Norfolk Regional Airport discussed their first efforts at a meeting of the Norfolk Rotary Club. Newsmen from all of Tidewater were invited.

J. L. Donahue, Henry Shriver and Paul Garcescu, who represent consulting, architectural and landscape firms joined J. J. Gara, board chairman of the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority, on the platform to discuss the city's $12 million expansion of the present airport.

Bonds for the expansion of the airport and development of 30 to 50 acres of the present city grounds will be issued shortly and construction may start as early as next year.

While many have criticized the expansion without regard to future needs and lack of land around the present airport, Sadler said he feels it is a good move.

"The present airport is in a very fine location for most of the population of Virginia Beach. A move would make it more difficult to reach."

Critics have suggested a new international airport of the future should be built near major highways where much land still exists in Chesapeake or Virginia Beach.

After the meeting Donahue said the present expansion is less costly because the nucleus of all systems is now at the present site and to establish a totally different site would cost about $25 million. He indicated that funding this amount could be a serious deterrent.

But Donahue did say that while the expanded Norfolk Regional Airport will serve all probable needs through 1990 and perhaps a bit beyond, this may not be the final answer to airway needs. He said his company's report does not consider another airport but that one may well be needed after 1990 to serve the area.

He said that many cities are purchasing land on the outskirts for this purpose and considering the cost of land in the south

Tidewater complex perhaps some thought should be given to the setting aside of some land for an airport in the near future.

While Gara said all cities in the area should work together and "stay flexible", the preliminary plans appear to show that Norfolk intends to go it alone as soon as possible to meet present and near future needs.

Spokesmen for airlines serving the airport now still maintain that less money could be spent on expansion while accomplishing the purpose of solving immediate problems. At the same time they say it would be better to start over on a new major international airport elsewhere.

They also doubt the proposed 9,000 foot runway is really capable of handling the superjets of the near future under all conditions. However they add that they can fly to Europe from any large international airport, even if Norfolk does not provide one. The indication was that Norfolk could be bypassed.

No new information came from the Tuesday meeting and many old questions remained unanswered.

ene. The property, which used to be a club, has been vacant for some time.

Another 195 townhouses were approved on Reagan Avenue near Great Neck Road on an application of Vacation Home Builders of Tidewater, Inc.

Sixty apartments on Norfolk and Rudee Avenues were also approved, as were 20 more at 33rd Street and Holly Road.

Gas stations ran into trouble with Council. Only one application was recommended for approval, while four were recommended for denial.

Two of them, on Holland Road and Lynnhaven Road and on Independence Blvd. at Tulip Road, were approved by Council over the objections of the planners and when additional facts were presented in open hearing.

Two others, at Indian River Road and Thomkins Road, were denied after several Councilmen noted there had been much opposition to the stations in the sparsely developed area.

The only one that had received planning commission approval, at Pleasure House Road and Shore Drive, was deferred for two weeks while a dedication of land for street widening is being worked out. The station would replace an old station there and would be of colonial design.

The application of Bessie L. Codd on property at Chinese Corner was approved. The changes to general commercial will allow the Zayre Dept. Store to be built on the property.

Use permits were also approved for the City of Virginia Beach to construct its municipal golf course adjacent to Camp Pendleton and to construct the Owl's Creek boat launching ramp being paid for by the state on land donated to the city by the state.

Another application by the city that would have changed the City Code concerning dumping or storing of manure near property boundaries was denied on planning commission recommendation.

Approved also was a use permit to build a post office on Princess Anne Road, near Landmont Road and a use permit for the Masonic Lodge to operate at its new site on Princess Anne Rd. after being moved there from the Courthouse grounds in expansion of the municipal complex.

6 Back Battle In Race

Before all the expected entrants in next year's Democratic gubernatorial primary are in, five Democratic officeholders and a well-known lawyer in Virginia Beach, have announced their decision to endorse the candidacy of William C. Battle.

Del. Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. is the only one of the six who himself will be on the ballot in July. He is expected to announce soon his intention of seeking re-election to the Virginia House of Delegates along with Del. B. R. Middleton.

Two City Councilmen, Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell and Councilman Curtis Payne, also signed the statement of endorsement.

City Democratic Chairman Owen Pickett and committee treasurer Donald Reid are the other two officeholders who signed. William Culverhouse, attorney, who has offices with Cromwell and Whitehurst, is the sixth signer.

Battle is reported to have accepted the support of the Virginia Beach men with delight. The six met with Battle recently at the home of Councilman Murray Malbon.

City Treas. V. A. Etheridge is also reported to be a strong supporter of Battle, who was Sen. William B. Spong's state campaign manager in 1966 when Etheridge was the Senator's Virginia Beach campaign manager.

Each of the six signers of the Battle endorsement stressed that the decision was made independently and was not to be considered to be a wholesale defection from the Organization in Virginia Beach headed by political leader Sidney Kellam.

There are at present three announced candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial primary. They are State Sen. Henry Howell; representing the liberals, Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard, long-time state Organization member but running without solid support; and Battle, a Spong moderate.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute president, T. Marshall Hahn, considered a strong middle-of-the-road candidate who would be acceptable to the state Organization, has said he will let his decision be known within the next week or so. He is reported to have the support of a number of influential statewide officials who are urging him to get into the race.

At the same time the possible candidacy of First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing is again being mentioned. Downing, who has the support of a number of state Organization members, is also considered a moderate politically.

Downing, just re-elected to Congress, has made no comment on the possibility of his entering the gubernatorial race, but the rumors still persist. Should Downing choose to run, his candidacy is considered to be a strong one and probably would prevent the entrance of Hahn.

Should Downing actually enter the primary the six who have just endorsed Battle will find their position difficult. Whitehurst was co-manager of Downing's highly successful campaign in Virginia Beach recently. Pickett, Cromwell and Payne were also active Downing supporters.

So far Kellam has made no endorsement of any candidate and he is not expected to do so until all the candidates are in the race.

The Republicans are expected to run Linwood Holton again, who made a good showing in the race against Mills E. Godwin, Jr. in 1965.

not expected to hold up applications there.

A number of restaurant and motel-hotel operators and operators of private clubs have said they plan to file an application but have made no progress so far in the actual filing. They say their establishments are ready, however, to meet the letter of the law.

The first license will probably be issued within ten days to two weeks after application following rigid investigation of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to see that the applicants meet all the strict requirements of the law.

If all goes according to plan that glass of Christmas cheer may be had at a restaurant table or at least the toast to the new year.

A number of large motel and restaurant chains are reportedly expected to be watching the outcome of the successful vote in Virginia Beach. One source said they are probably watching the next summer season to see if the new law helps upgrade tourism and if more top-notch entertainers will be willing to come.

The two approved bond issues are also expected to bring aid to Virginia Beach. The city's expected two-year college, the site of which will be known soon, will come partly from funds approved in the higher education statewide bond issue. In addition funds were provided for a Tidewater facility for retarded children in the other bond issue. This facility would serve Virginia Beach.

Little significance was put on the Richard Nixon visit at Virginia Beach by Democrats, since few top-level Democrats campaigned actively for the national ticket. Neither political leader Sidney S. Kellam or City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge played any role in the Democratic campaign. Etheridge took little or no part in the campaign at all, while Kellam strongly supported the re-election of Congressman Thomas N. Downing, the two bond issues and the vote for mixed beverages. Kellam also let it be known he supported the national Democratic ticket.

City Jail Improves Security

Additional steps have been taken to improve security measures at the City Jail of Virginia Beach. The move primarily involves "sealing off" those areas frequented by inmates of the jail and jammers from the general public.

The door which opens into the jailer's office from the street has now been arranged so that it can be opened only from the inside, thus providing jailers a chance to identify people.

Another security door has been constructed in the area which opens directly into the jail, so that movements of prisoners, and that of visitors is through the jailers office to enter and leave the main security section of the jail.

These changes have resulted in the relocation of two important offices which are housed in the City Jail building: the Justice of the Peace, Princess Anne Courthouse office and the office of Mrs. Marjorie Fletcher, secretary to City Sgt. John E. Marr.

The J.P.'s office has now been relocated to the right front corner of the building and is readily available to needing the services of a J.P., as they enter the building. This is the office formerly occupied by Mrs. Fletcher, who is now in office space more accessible from the office of City Sgt. Marr.

Indications are these moves are already accomplishing the purpose for which they were intended—namely, curtailing confusion resulting from a large number of persons congregating in areas important to the function of the City Jail, and allowing the performance of the duties of the various offices to such a degree as had not been possible in the past.

Cmdr. Clarence C. Hobdy, USCG, stands before a mural in the Search and Rescue School depicting the activities of the Coast Guard from early days to the present.

The nerve center of the Coast Guard is the regional control center, this one on Governor's Island. A similar facility is in Portsmouth, Va.

Foul Weather Means Action for SAR Units

When the weather is like it was off the coast Monday and Tuesday, there's bound to be trouble for shipping or for pleasure craft. While most pleasure boaters know to make for port immediately when seas are rough or when storm or gale warnings are given, there's always "someone who just doesn't get the word."

When that craft is in trouble or when a merchant ship experiences any type of problem on the high seas, the U. S. Coast Guard moves into action with search and rescue teams.

If there is a disaster in the interior of the country involving lost aircraft or occasionally even a lost camper it is the U. S. Air Force that moves into action with its search and rescue tactics.

The search and rescue methods used by both government services are not at all haphazard. The personnel employed in this often dangerous business are highly skilled technicians trained at a joint national search and rescue school on Governor's Island, N. Y., home of most of the Coast Guard operations in the east. The school, dedicated exclusively to search and rescue techniques of the present and future, was established in the spring of 1966, because of the urgent needs and complexity of such operations and equipment.

The small classes, which include lecture and actual laboratory field problems, include personnel from the Air Force, Coast Guard, the FAA and foreign military personnel directly involved in the same business. The course is four weeks in duration and alternates between enlisted and officer personnel. Nothing in the course is classified information.

The intense training in that time crowds a large number of related subjects into the curriculum. Lectures include a study of search and rescue (SAR) facilities, communications, responsibility, planning, equipment, wartime operations and legal aspects.

Emphasis is also put on future SAR problems, including operations in space.

A number of guest speakers are brought in, including experts in their own related fields.

The commanding officer of the school is Cdr. Clarence C. Hobdy, who along with his small staff, has prepared the curriculum with great care. Hobdy is proud of the work the school has done in a short time. Much of the success of the school has been due to the drive and intense dedication.

The motto of the school is "That others may live," and 250 students a year help live up to that motto.

Actually the Coast Guard has been involved in SAR since it was designated to do so in 1832. Aircraft were added to the mission in 1916.

Fixed wing aircraft, helicopters and Coast Guard cutters of all sizes can be dispatched with the proper men and equipment at a moment's notice because of the school. Each Regional Control Center, such as the RCC at Portsmouth, Va., has men trained in SAR. The near future holds tilt-wing aircraft, space vehicles, underwater vehicles, sophisticated sounding devices and missiles all to be used in the SAR mission.

The SAR people are trained to cope with any problem, from recovery of astronauts to fire aboard a ship; from ditching of a plane at sea to rescue in the polar regions; and from handling of SAR in natural disaster to functions in an all-out war.

Cutters from Portsmouth were sent into the Atlantic Tuesday to deal with ships in trouble off Cape Hatteras in the winter storm. These men, trained in their mission, risk their lives. "That others may live."

Each year more and more students will pass through the SAR school on Governor's Island, and plans call for doubling the size of the facilities within a year, so important is this mission.

As technical equipment becomes more complicated and as shipping continues on the increase internationally the mission of the Coast Guard and Air Force in search and rescue becomes even more intensified and more important to the safety and well being of all.

This map in the regional control center shows the present location of all Coast Guard vessels available in any mission. The RCC commander points to the sector of the east Coast served by the Governor's Island center. The Air force planes on the map represent that service's responsibility inland.

Cox Students Top Subscription Goal

By James McCracken
Cox H.S.

The Cox High School S.C.A. last week ended its "Periodical Push" by selling $4,015.81 worth in magazine subscriptions for a total profit of $1,493.87. High salesman was Lou Ann Baker, a pre-freshman, who sold over $183 in periodicals. Both the pre-freshmen and the freshmen surpassed their respective class goals of $1100 and $1000.

Nov. 1-5 was Cox's "Support America Week." Under S.C.A. Program Chairman Sherry Goldberg, the week was planned to encourage patriotism and get area adults to vote. The first program was an assembly on Friday featuring Sing Out Virginia Beach. Saturday saw the Cox Support America March, organized by Project Chairman George Francisco. Cox students visited residential areas served by the school with posters and leaflets encouraging voting.

The highlight of the week's activities was the two-day Mock Elections. On Monday simultaneous assemblies were held where students spoke as the candidates and presented the issues in opening remarks and questions. The assembly in the auditorium for seniors and pre-freshmen featured Pete Striffler (Humphrey), David Bradshaw (Nixon), and Fenton Priest (Wallace), while grades 9-11 listened to Ronald Todd (Humphrey), Copy Berg (Nixon), and Jay McCracken (Wallace) in the gym.

Tuesday morning all students voted in homeroom. Each homeroom was assigned electoral votes equal to the number of voting students. These results were announced by each homeroom representative at the first bell Student Council meeting, the majority winner in the homeroom receiving all the electoral votes. A total of 714 electoral votes (out of 1426) was needed for a majority.

Nixon received 1283 electoral votes (730 popular), Wallace received 100 electoral votes (370 popular) and Humphrey pulled in 43 electoral votes (308 popular).

Cox will hold tonight (Thursday) its annual Open House for all parents. The program will allow adults to visit the same classes as their children, with 15 minutes for each class. During study hall refreshments and displays will be set up in the cafeteria.

Friday night will be the Senior Night Game at Cox, with the mighty Falcons expecting a victory over the Princess Anne Cavaliers. After the game the Senior Class will sponsor the Senior Night Dance featuring the Venerable Bedes.

SCA Backs Funds Program

By Debbie Bowman
Kempville H.S.

Randy Wait, the president of Kempville High School's Student Cooperative Association, has announced the establishment of a funds program for a future foreign aid student and a scholarship fund by the SCA.

The purpose of the foreign aid program is to provide some student from another country the chance to broaden his knowledge of the social systems of the United States.

The scholarship funds will be used to provide outstanding students at Kempville an opportunity for further education.

Other SCA officers working with Randy in setting up the programs are Leslie Falls, vice president; Jenny Meredith, secretary; Linda Lane, treasurer; and Debbie Bowman, historian.

In addition to the other projects, the SCA is presently conducting a magazine drive and making plans for a future roadside bulletin board.

Dr. Howell Will Speak to Group

The Tidewater Pre-School Association will meet Saturday, Nov. 16 at Hampton Institute, Hampton Va.

Dr. Henry Howell, outstanding in the field of early childhood education, will speak. There will be a tour of one of the most modern pre-school facilities in the South, plus a wealth of educational materials in the Resource Center.

Survey To Check Livestock

Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr. announced today that Rural Mail Carriers and Star Route Contractors will begin distributing Dec. 1, 1968, Livestock Survey cards to farmer-patrons on their routes about November 18.

Livestock cards returned by farmers to their carriers will be mailed direct to the Virginia Crop Reporting Service in Richmond. Information from each card, if properly reported, will then be tabulated and combined with other reports to give indications of changes in livestock on farms in the Old Dominion. Using these facts, estimates will be made of the number of cattle and calves, hogs and pigs, sheep and lambs, and chickens on farms at the end of the year.

In addition to the end-of-year inventory counts, the number of milk cows, the calf crop, fall sows farrowed and pigs saved, and plans for spring farrowing will be determined from information obtained from the Dec. 1 Livestock Survey. Recipients of the survey card are urged to fill out the card and return it to their carrier as soon as possible. It is important that the cards be returned since only a given number of farms will receive these cards and the community will be represented according to the number of cards returned.

High-Flying Comedy Is Fun

The current offering of Lake Wright Playhouse is a bit of lightest comedy called "Boeing Boeing" (after the airplane) by Marc Camoletti. It doesn't have much to say, and while the plot is highly unlikely, it is a funny play.

The action deals with an English architect playboy and his three "flances," all recruited from airlines which fly from Paris to opposite ends of the world. . . . and at different times. The recruiting was done through use of a master worldwide airline schedule to which he often refers.

In this way he always has one live-in fiancée on the ground, one flying and one pending. The situation is ideal for the bachelor, since he picks one French stewardess, a German one and an American girl. He explains he gets variety in women and diet too, since they all like different foods.

Although there are some close calls in timing everything is fine until the girls are transferred to new Boeing jets which make the runs faster, or a storm forces one to return to Paris unexpectedly or there is a schedule change. With the help of an all-too-willing friend who has come to visit for a week, catastrophe is narrowly averted several times until a final confrontation comes. A maid, far too nervous for her harrowing job, also is helpful in keeping the girls apart until that fateful moment.

David Kitchen, while not necessarily suave enough for the role, does a nice job as the playboy, but his characterization is not always consistent. Thus his age becomes a problem for the audience.

Bryon Predika, as his friend, is excellent. His comedy timing is partly responsible for the success of his characterization of the slightly awed, but ready for action and fun plotbatter.

Judy Case plays the over-sexed American stewardess well, and Teresa Stallings gives a lot of ooh-la-la to the role of the French stewardess, but it is Terri Jones as the passionate German stewardess who walks away with the honors. Her voice patterns and movements are a delight to watch.

As the slightly befuddled maid who has to put up with all the changes in girl and diet, Lyn Howard is actually too young and attractive. But she turns in a nice, acceptable and very funny performance.

Director Tim Jones had held the pace up at all times and the play moves very well. There is a lot of action, some almost bordering on the slapstick, to keep the audience alert. There are also some excellent intricate pieces of business.

"Boeing Boeing" won't win any awards as the best play of the year, but it has a few nice twists and it is fun, while it also has a lot of what audiences enjoy. HJL

Streamline the Polls

Busy Virginia Beach voters turned out in record numbers last week, and hopefully they will again. But unless some changes are made before the next election, especially in the large precincts, we would not blame the voters for being miffed. In fact they might stay home, which would be far worse for everyone.

The lines were long in many places. There were still a number of voters still in line when the polls closed in many places. At one precinct voting continued until two hours after the poll itself was closed. Some got tired, hungry or cold and went home.

Some time ago members of the Electoral board met with City Council to warn of the possibility of these problems. A few more voting machines were bought for the big precincts. But actual redistricting of the polls and the creation of new precincts was left until after this election. Now steps must be taken to settle this mess before the July primary. Fortunately the planning commission and the electoral board have already announced their intention to begin a study.

About 40,000 went to the polls last week. Two large precincts voted nearly 4,000 each. A few others voted slightly over 300, a large percentage of the total registered there. This type of inequity caused a lot of irritation to those who had to spend a long time in line, while others breezed in and out in small precincts.

Virginia Beach is fortunate that 75 per cent of its registered voters went to the polls. Now City Council, the Planning Commission and the electoral board must get busy and streamline procedures or watch that percentage drop. A disgruntled voter is not a credit to anyone.

An Unpopular Decision

U. S. District Court Judge Richard B. Kellam of Virginia Beach took a courageous stand last week in sentencing three people to ten-year terms for an 87-cent robbery inside the Norfolk Naval Station.

In a state court on the same day the same three received suspended sentences for another robbery—this one for $3—on the same night outside the base. None had any previous criminal records.

Kellam was immediately criticized for his severe punishment, and talk of an appeal began. The merits and circumstances of this one case are not important, however. In principle Judge Kellam is to be highly commended for his tough stand.

His reasoning is clear and leaves much room for thought. He asked, "Have we completely surrendered in this country to violence? Is there to be no law and order?"

He asked also what would the public think if an individual is not safe on an armed base, known to be the greatest naval base in the world? His point is well taken.

Too long have the courts given light sentences for serious offenses. Robbery after all, is punishable by death in Virginia. Too long have both the police and our legal system been hamstrung by court decisions which seemingly favor the criminal. Now is the time for calling a halt to this type of permissive attitude toward crime.

We support Judge Kellam's decision and highly endorse his action, however unpopular it may be with some lawyers and criminals.

A New Abortion Law

Yesterday in Richmond a Virginia Advisory Legislative Council public hearing was held as part of a study aimed at possibly revising the state's rigid abortion laws.

Too long has this matter been ignored, and we feel that the laws must be relaxed somewhat, perhaps quite a lot. The laws now make it extremely difficult for a woman to have a legal abortion, even in extreme cases. Other states have found it desirable to relax those provisions to make it less complicated and more possible where real circumstances warrant such a drastic move.

While we cannot condone abandonment of all restrictions, it is possible that the new law should take individual circumstances into consideration, not just allow or not allow. We do not mean to imply, however, that abortion should be used as a simple solution or that legal abortions should be a simple solution to poor conduct.

Less stringent laws will necessarily have moral, religious and legal ramifications, but these problems should be faced instead of perhaps bringing into the world so many retarded, unwanted, or deformed children, or even those of mothers not capable of caring for them mentally or emotionally. In the case of an unborn, unwanted illegitimate child, obviously other judgments must be made, but they should be made on the facts of the case.

This is a modern problem and must have modern solutions. It is up to the VALC committee to take all those suggestions made, sift out the superstition and moral aspects and come up with a realistic and enforceable law. Doctors, women, the courts and society must be able to live with a law, and this one needs revision.

'ONWARD, EVER ONWARD!'

Dangerous

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Last week the second collision with serious injuries occurred at the same intersection in two months. When is the city going to do something about it, when somebody gets killed? I'm speaking of the intersection where Little Neck Road, Kings Grant Road, North Lynnhaven Road and another street all meet at crazy angles. You have to look five ways at once to turn or get through. Then it's a mad dash during rush traffic hours.

Little Neck Road was built, I'm sure, when a winding country lane was well suited for the area. However, the population in that area has increased tremendously. Now houses are being built in Kings-ton and all along Little Neck Road. And it is the only access road that goes to Virginia Beach Blvd.

There are now two schools and six churches serving the area. If you want to see a real traffic jam just try to pull out on to Little Neck Road about noon on a Sunday! It's impossible.

Not only that, the road is much too narrow for the traffic it carries. There was some improvement when a traffic light was installed at Virginia Beach Blvd., but that still doesn't help traffic from the various subdivisions trying to get on Little Neck in the first place. It took the local civic leagues 13 years to get a traffic light installed. Will it take 13 more to get the "country lane" improved? Sincerely, Mrs. M. Lewis Britt

Favors Tracks

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I was very much amused by your editorial last Thursday recommending one or more racetracks in Virginia Beach. Of course, that is a situation devoutly to be wished, and was the dream of our former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

But I am sure you must realize the problems all of us who would enjoy a day at the tracks face, it took us years to break down the objections to liquor-by-the-drink and the forces who opposed the "evils" of liquor itself.

I certainly support you in your efforts to bring either a harness track or a "regular racetrack" or even a dog track to Virginia Beach. I know there are many like me, and I hope they will come forward and be counted now, not wait around until it is the popular thing to do.

I heard that the state of Maryland poured a considerable amount of money into Virginia to keep out liquor-by-the-drink, since the people of Virginia often went to Maryland to enjoy a cocktail before dinner and the Maryland resorts already had liquor-by-the-drink. Those efforts to block failed here, but with the successful racetracks in Maryland bringing in thousands each year to that economy, think how they might help oppose such a move at Virginia Beach.

I think too that we will eventually get our racetrack, and I hope it's not too many years in the future, but I think the road ahead is a bumpy one. Ronald P. Morton USN, Ret.

Special Report

What the Results Mean

Just what effect the Nixon win in Virginia Beach will have on the statewide races and local races of the future seems to depend on whom one talks to.

The Republicans are widely enthusiastic after the decisive Nixon win, and are already talking about fielding topnotch candidates for the House of Delegates next year against the expected candidacy of the incumbent Democrats. They are predicting close races there and maybe even an upset, all based on last week's presidential election.

The GOP is also using the Whitehurst win in Norfolk and Portsmouth as further evidence of the inroads gained in the area.

Linwood Holton made as good a showing against Mills E. Godwin, Jr., in the 1965 gubernatorial race as has been made by a Republican in many years in a state election. The GOP in Virginia Beach is optimistic of his chances of being their candidate for governor again in 1969, his taking Virginia Beach and even the state.

The Wallace supporters in Virginia Beach, while happy about the second-place run for their man in Virginia Beach, are not enthusiastic about the chances of success of the American Independent Party nationally or even in Virginia. They will try, however. The Virginia Conservative Party already fields conservative candidates in all elections.

The Wallace group, however does feel that the voters of Virginia Beach clearly voiced their opinion and let it be known they are against most of the policies of the past administration and the future one of Nixon.

The Democrats, on the other hand, who hold all offices in the city, say they see little significance to the Nixon victory and do not see the win as the beginning of the end for the Democrats in the city.

Most Democrats agree that the voters of Virginia Beach have always been independent in the way they vote in national elections, but in state and local elections the Democrats have crushed all comers.

tainly considered a conservative. The same voters, however returned Thomas Downing to Congress by an overwhelming majority. Downing is considered a moderate. He had no Republican opposition because as one GOP spokesman admitted, they couldn't find anyone who could beat him this time.

The outcome has caused, however, to worry the more liberal wing of the Democratic Party in Virginia Beach, under the titular head of V. A. Etheridge. Etheridge took no active part in the campaign, but is apparently bitter the city went for Nixon.

Etheridge has been quoted as saying, "I think it is a clear indication that Virginia Beach voters are more independent than they have been in the past. And it is equally clear that the days of the political bosses are numbered. They no longer put up puppets and get people to accept them simply because they have a party label."

It is not clear whether Etheridge is referring to Humphrey and Wallace as "puppets" or not, but several analysts have read the statement that way.

It is possible, however, that the "independent" voters are acting more conservative than would please Mr. Etheridge's group. Perhaps the forces, lined up behind Sidney Kellam who have been more conservative are gaining new strength. But all that remains to be seen in the elections of 1969.

Meanwhile the only major issue that the Virginia Beach supplement to a Norfolk newspaper could stir up against the Democrats after election is that garbage men were seen by one of its reporters picking up trash on the lawn of Democratic headquarters the day after election while waiting for someone to arrive and give them the garbage inside.

This garbage service was done for all the headquarters, but the men were not told to pick up lawn garbage. That they did on their own while they waited. The BEACON was not satisfied with that, however. They took it all the way to the city manager and blew it into a major story in the paper. And the same reporter who allegedly did all that, Roger Provo, worked the polls on election day for Nixon.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Am I ever glad she's gone to school this morning," he said. "I don't believe I can stand many more Sundays like yesterday."

"Do you mean the inquiring mind of our five-year old first grader is getting to you?" she wanted to know.

"Yes!" he said emphatically. "That, along with the way her mother says, 'Ask your father,' to any question she can't answer."

"Well, you don't want me to look stupid to her, do you?" she asked. "I'd rather you looked stupid."

"Thanks," he said wryly.

"But sometimes you paid too easily. Like the time she asked you where she came from and you started to go into the whole process. All I said was, 'You came from Richmond,' and she was happy. That's all she wanted to know."

"So I was wrong that time," she admitted. "But I just didn't know what to answer yesterday when she asked me how eggs were made. She didn't seem at all satisfied when I told her the hen made them. She just wanted to know how the hen made them."

"I think I handled it very well when you told her to ask me, I didn't ever really answer her," he said. "But her answer nearly floored me when I reversed the procedure and asked her how she thought they were made."

"I think her answer was quite astute," she said. "She examined that bit of scrambled egg carefully, tasted it, thought for a minute and said, 'I guess it's a lot of banana and a little salt.'"

"Your eggs do taste something like bananas," he said. "But anyway, when we complimented her on that observation that seemed to end that subject. But I guess we'd better be ready for the next time. How are eggs made anyway?"

"In no way that we can explain to her," she said.

"Then you didn't help at all just a few minutes later when she asked how many leaves were on a tree," he said. "Why did you tell her to ask me. I don't have the slightest idea."

"Neither do I. That's why," she said. "And I couldn't think of any way to answer."

"I thought you did very well, though," he said. "You managed to compound the problem nicely when you told her it depended on whether the tree was coniferous or not."

"But you didn't have to tell her 'coniferous' meant that the trees ate meat," she said.

"I thought you said 'carnivorous,'" he said. "Although I've never heard of a meat-eating tree at that. And I have a suggestion for you. If you really are interested in knowing how many leaves a tree has, go out in the yard, count all the leaves you haven't raked up like you promised and divide by the number of non-coniferous trees."

"Very funny," she said, not smiling at all. "You know, it's the art work both the girls are doing that I can't understand. I hate to keep asking them what it is they draw when they bring one of their creations to show me."

"Don't ask," he said. "Just say, 'That's lovely. Tell me about it.' It's simple."

"And just what do you do when a three-year old says impatiently, 'Can't you see, it's a bird in a tree?'"

"Ask her if it is coniferous?"

"The tree or the bird?"

"All these comedians out of work and I have to have you," he said. "Anyway I'm beginning to find out why the younger generation doesn't think the older generation knows anything. We just can't answer simple questions or tell what's in a drawing."

"Makes you feel stupid, doesn't it?" she asked.

"That's one I won't answer," he said. "I'm going to work, where people appreciate me."

Virginia Beach Juvenile Court
Case Summation Nov. 1 to 7, 1968

The court had hearings on 41 juvenile petitions which concerned persons 17 years of age or under accused of violating state laws or city ordinances. Included in these hearings were 23 cases involving felonies, 1 of which was not prosecuted, 2 continued to future dates, 1 forwarded to a grand jury, 2 continued generally, 1 ended in a 9 month jail sentence with 8 months suspended, and the entire sentence being appealed, and 1 ending in a 6 months jail sentence, all of which was suspended.

Other cases which the court settled involved 13 on alleged traffic law violations and 10 on family domestic problems. There were 3 cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Mrs. Arnesen (Century Studios)
Spry-Arnesen Wedding

Married on Oct. 4 in a candle-light service in the South Congregational Church in Peabody, Mass., was the former Miss Anne Lee Spry, daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Norman Lee Spry of Peabody, to Knut Magne Arnesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Magne Arnesen of Oslo, Norway. A reception was held at the officers' Club, Headquarters, First Naval District, Boston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a brocade gown fashioned with a high neckline, long sleeves and detachable train. Her gown was designed with a princess line that flared into an A line skirt. Beadwork outlined the neckline, wrists and chapel length train. She carried a maribu muf to which was attached her bouquet. The muf matched the six inch border of maribu at the hem of her gown. From a camelot style headpiece fell a three-tiered bouffant silk filigree veil.

Attending her cousin as matron of honor was Mrs. Carl Hardwick of Virginia Beach. Miss McCollum
Miss McCollum Engaged

The engagement of Miss Alice McCollum of North Landing Road to Staff Sgt. James Walter White, U. S. Air Force, is announced by her father, John Curtis McCollum of Virginia Beach.

Sgt. White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Farthing of Route 1 and the late Walter Ford White.

Miss McCollum graduated from Princess Anne High School and from Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S. C. with a B.A. degree in English. While in college she was named to the Dean's List and was a member of Sigma Epsilon Kappa English Fraternity, History Club, and Canterbury Club. She is currently a teacher at Princess Anne High School.

Miss Lucy Tucker Wise of Virginia Beach was among the 140 Sophomore Scholars at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro who were honored at a special tea and reception Wednesday, Nov. 6, at the Albemarle House on campus.

Purpose of the reception is to acknowledge outstanding scholarship and to give the students an opportunity to talk informally with various faculty members about areas of study in which they have all interest.

Paul E. Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Carr of Kensington Street, a senior in the College of Agriculture at Virginia Tech, has been awarded the Hunt Country Garden Club Scholarship Award for the winter quarter. He is presently the custodian of the greenhouses at Tech as well as a Naval Reserve Officer candidate.

Jewelry Caters to Men

This Christmas may be the time for your man (with an able assist from you) to emerge from his "drab camouflage," says the Jewelry Industry Council. New vogue is vibrating in men's wardrobes at last, with more daring dash and drama in colors and styles. Men are beginning to enjoy distinctive jewelry again, as their ancestors did in most of the centuries preceding ours.

This year the jeweler has a wider and most exciting assortment of jewelry for men. Heavy pendants in motifs flavored for masculine appeal, heraldic or primitive in design, are guaranteed to give him a jewel of a Yule. Opulence can be tastefully his for Christmas in a chain of cultured pearls, dangling an impressive pendant of hammered gold and precious gems.

Dramatic pins for the roll of his turtleneck, stone-set I. D. bracelets, and even charms are gifts that will excite and delight him this Christmas.

The turtleneck shirt with French cuffs provides a warmly welcome opportunity for him to sport the latest and most deluxe in men's cufflinks. Color-matched to his shirt, or stone-matched to his watch, these cuff accessories are resplendent in coral, turquoise, lapis, pearls, diamonds, and other precious and semi-precious gems.

A surefire Christmas gift suggestion for the Mod-ern man is the swashbuckling look of chiseled steel, chased gold or other textured metal in belt buckles that can be detached and worn on his evening shoes.

Men's watches are excitingly innovative too. They feature colorful marble dials, exposed balance wheels, stone-set Roman numeral markers, and the happy ability to remind him when to reload the parking meter, or to tell the time half a world away, or keep a perpetual calendar, without adjustment, for four years!

Masculine rings to give him manly pride and pleasure for Christmas are stone, set with cat's eye, tiger's eye quartz, Wyoming jade and lapis lazuli, as well as diamonds, Linde Stars, and the traditional precious stones. Birthmonth rings are, as always, high in sentiment and significance, and signet and emblem rings remain tops in masculine appeal.

For his office the jewelry store carries handsome desk accessories in leather, silver, ebony and marble. There are even desk clocks built into novelty enamel paper clips. Bar accessories—tumblers, cordial sets, ice buckets, coasters, beakers, cocktail shakers and wine coolers—gleam in silver. Steak pocket lighters, cigarette cases, wallets and key chains have added distinction when personalized with message or monogram, and his Christmas will last long in pride and pleasure when you give him your picture in a silver frame.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Friday night I decided to cover some of the activities of the Breezy Point Officer's Club at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk. On several occasions I had been asked by the Virginia Beach people to cover this club.

I was accompanied this week by Miss Betty Boss also of this paper. When we arrived we were met by Claude Cox, one of the assistant managers, and he was most gracious as he introduced us to some of the people as well as to show us our way around the club.

We attended the Happy Hour of the key civilians and the Navy. This is the time they take to relax and discuss many topics that both the Navy and civilians of the Naval Air Station work together on through the week.

Some of the first ones we met were: Cmdr. Ray Del'ito, executive officer, Bill Williford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Humphries, Lt. (j.g.) Joe Scarola, Cmdr. William Cecil, Lt. Cmdr. Joe Greenwood, Capt. and Mrs. John Shepard, Harvey Bowden and Harrell L. Durham.

The club has been newly decorated and it is quite attractive, cozy and very inviting. Margot Phillips, is the interior decorator, and I might say she has really done an outstanding job on the club. The ceilings are black with red velvet drapes and paneling of charcoal brown. The carpet is a beautiful red.

In the banquet room the sofas will be black patent, the walls are of red flocked voile. Of course the hanging chandeliers have made this room outstanding.

The manager of the club is Irvin Wright, and the two assistant managers are Claude Cox and Paul Kovach. I would like to thank all three of these men for the kindness they showed Miss Boss and myself.

Buffet was being served, but before telling you about the food let me say that their chef, Lam Laguna, puts this wonderful food on the buffet table: Southern fried chicken, rice, chow mein, snaps, marinated artichokes, combination bean salad, herring in sour cream, cauliflower with french dressing, cucumbers with vinegar and oil, potato salad, macaroni salad, steamed shrimp, relish tray, 70 lb. roast beef you could have rare, medium or well done, Danish pastries, cheese cake, tarts, eclairs.

I bet now that those who can will go to this club after all the food and the new decorations I have mentioned. They would certainly get you to thinking about visiting this club very soon.

As Miss Boss and I were about to leave there were a few others whose names I was able to obtain: Lt. Doris Peterson, Lt. Frank King, Lt. (j.g.) Betty Hagbert, Ens. Wayne Smith, Lt. (j.g.) Ellen Trussell and Cmdr. Tony Schneider.

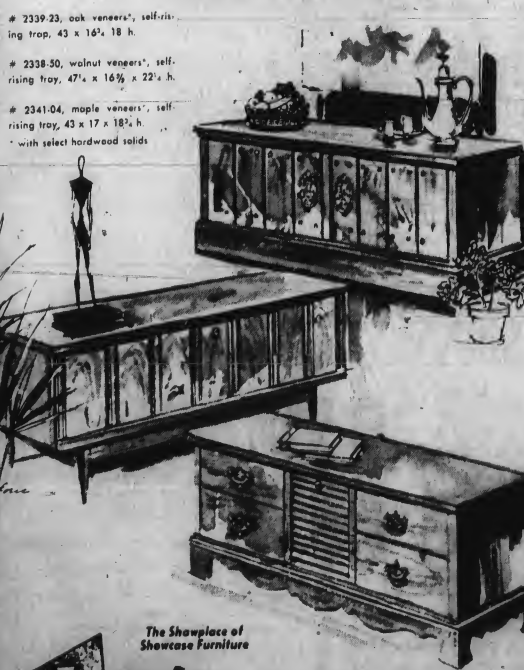

I shall look forward to my next trip to the Club.

Two Homes Included in Tour

Christmas in the country—that brings to mind a warm kitchen filled with spicy smells, the scent of pine logs burning in a fireplace and a comfortable home in a beautiful setting, then reserve Dec. 4.

That is the day of the annual "Christmas in the Country" open house sponsored by the Cape Henry Woman's Club. This year two homes, side by side, will be featured. One is the home of Cdr. (Ret.) and Mrs. George W. Webber, and the other is owned by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Powell. A small waterway separates them, but Mrs. Powell has constructed a covered bridge for the occasion. To add even a more Christmasy touch, one house is painted green and the other is red.

The homes are on Oak Lynn Path, which is reached by driving off Little Neck Road past Kings Grant and Kingston until you reach Little Haven Road. Follow Little Haven to Oak Lynn Path. There will be signs.

The open house also includes a visit to Santa's Kitchen, another club tradition, which this year will be located in the Webber's guest house. There visitors can purchase candles, baked goods, salad dressings, jellies and preserves, old blue Mason jars, wooden kitchen utensils, antique items, balsam items and recipe boxes filled with club members' recipes.

Tickets, for a $1 donation, are available at the door or may be purchased from any club member. The tour will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visitors are asked to wear low heels, not only to save the floors of the homes but to save their own feet, since they will walk not only through the homes but between them.

Club members will decorate both homes and the kitchen for Christmas. They will also don old fashioned costumes to guide visitors and to serve refreshments.

Paint Records Petticoat Progress

By Yatta Jones

After a year's business, Speer and Jones Painting Contractors, better known as "the Petticoat Painters" are going strong. This may not be earth-shattering news to the business world, but since Speer and Jones are both women it could be considered another breakthrough in the war of equal rights for women.

It was a year ago that Mrs. Ila Speer, half of the partnership, became a "Petticoat Painter." At that time she had another partner, and Mrs. Detra Jones, the other half of the present partnership, was bookkeeper for the firm. During the year's progress Mrs. Jones bought out the other partner, the firm added another woman and seven men to their painting staff and purchased two trucks. I painted in pastels with their "Petticoat" trademark on the side.

Not only do they paint, but Speer and Jones also plaster and wallpaper. By next year they hope to add another truck and a secretary to their staff. And looking into the future, they are planning to add an interior decorating branch to their firm.

That isn't bad for two relatively inexperienced businesswomen, or businesswomen, is it?

Their only claim to any sort of preparation for their work is Mrs. Speer's background as an apartment manager in California. When asked what made them choose to go into this line of work, they said, "Why not? A lot of women do most of the painting around the house anyway...why shouldn't women run a painting business?"

That being women has created only one serious problem so far. They have been unable to raise a bid bond in order to do any government contract work. They were told, quite honestly, by one company that the primary reason for refusing them a bond is because they are women.

Mrs. Webber and Mrs. Richard L. Counselman, chairman of Christmas in the Country, pet Calico, Mrs. Webber's tailless cat.

As an added note, it should be mentioned that Mrs. Webber's home was the original home toured six years ago. It is not only a country home (situated on the Eastern Branch of the Lynnhaven River), but it also houses Mrs. Webber's various and assorted antique collections.

Enjoying the festivities of the LFTC NCO Staff Marine Corps Ball are Mrs. Daniel J. Docherty, S. Sgt. Daniel J. Docherty, Mrs. John D. MacDonald, S. Sgt. John D. MacDonald, Ernest A. Toth and Mrs. Ernest A. Toth.

When they paint, Mrs. Speer and Mrs. Jones wear the same type clothes that any other painter would wear, except they have lace on their caps! They are well known by other painters in the area, who never fail to wave at the Petticoat Painters as they pass by in their truck.

At the same time they feel that they have earned respect from the builders and contractors with whom they work. "We're very serious about our work. They (the builders and contractors) realize this and they treat us like fellow workers, not just women."

Speer and Jones are justifiably proud of the fact that they do their own estimating. Within the year's span of business they have learned the "lingo" connected with the job. They claim that when they hear themselves speaking of such things as caulking, priming, base coats, etc. it amazes them to realize how much they have learned in such a short time.

When they paint, Mrs. Speer and Mrs. Jones wear the same type clothes that any other painter would wear, except they have lace on their caps! They are well known by other painters in the area, who never fail to wave at the Petticoat Painters as they pass by in their truck.

They never know what sort of reaction they will get. It isn't uncommon at all for them to walk in to a job where they have worked for several days and be told, "Oh, you look nice today. Did you have your hair done?"

(See "Painters", p. 7)

Marines Mark 193rd Birthday

Last weekend Marines all over the U.S. celebrated their 193rd anniversary. Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic (FMFLANT) were no different.

There was a full schedule of social activities, beginning with a pre-Birthday Ball dinner for Marine officers of the Headquarters staff at the American Motor Lodge in Virginia Beach on Nov. 9. Later that evening, officers and guests of the LFTC group met at Rockwell Hall, Little Creek Amphibious Base, for their annual Marine Corps Ball.

Even though the evening was a miserable one weather-wise, there was a festive and spirited air about the crowd inside the huge hall. A red carpet, literally and figuratively, was rolled out to greet the guests as they walked in. Posters, depicting the different Marine uniform changes since 1775, were hung around the walls. There were floral arrangements of red and white decorating the tables. As a memento of the evening, each guest was given a red disc, commemorating the 193rd anniversary of the Marine Corps.

The evening was one of tradition and pageantry. The cake cutting ceremony was accompanied by Drum and Bugle Corps and a Color Guard. Lt. Gen. Richard G. Weede, Commanding General of FMFLANT cut the Birthday Cake, baked by Sgt. William Cronan at Camp Elmore. Guest of Honor for the evening was Gen. Christian F. Schilt, USMC (ret.).

The ladies attending the Ball were very elegant in their long, colorful gowns. Their escorts were no less impressive in their dress uniforms.

Music for the event was supplied by the Philband Band.

Enlisted Marines and their guests of the LFTC group were attending their Ball, which was held at the same time as the Officer's Ball, at the old "56 Club", also at Little Creek. The format for the evening there also included a cake-cutting ceremony. The cake was supplied by Fort Story and the School of Music played for this event.

On Nov. 10, the NCO Staff of the LFTC group held their Ball in the Tidewater Ball Room of the Lake Wright Motel. Again, the cake was supplied by Fort Story and the music was provided by the Little Creek School of Music.

The Birthday Cake was cut by Col. Nels Anderson, who then gave the first piece to the oldest Marine present, Gunnery Sgt. Edward O'Brien.

Parents To Replace Children

Kempville High School will hold an open house—back to school night from 7 to 9:18 p.m. on Nov. 18, at 574 Kempville Rd.

Parents will go to school in the place of the students on an abbreviated schedule of classes. They will start the night with a tour of the building. At 7 p.m. they may check into homerooms for student schedules.

"The purpose of this occasion is to have parents see our school building, meet our teachers, and to acquaint them with what we are doing to meet the needs of young people and give a little insight into how we are trying to do it," says the principal, N. W. Morris.

Beautification Is Theme Of Garden Club Council

"The potential here is amazing," said Harold Whitehurst, director of parks and recreation, of Virginia Beach as he spoke to the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach, Inc. Wednesday, Nov. 13.

"But time can run out on us," he warned. "We have enough athletics. I'd like to see the preservation of historical and natural areas. I think we have a birthright we shouldn't sell."

In speaking of the future, Whitehurst said he would like to see four recreation centers and three or four parks like Redwing. There should be 10 acres for recreation for every 1,000 people, he said.

The treasurer, Mrs. A. H. Culpepper, reported a balance of $3,131.24 in the treasury. Of this $315.50 came from profits from the council's booth in the Pembroke Charity Bazaar last month. The Council voted to participate in the bazaar next year if it is staged.

Taking a rehearsal break were Director Gregory, Chairman Mrs. Bartee, Patrons Chairman Mrs. Jenkins and Talent Chairman Mrs. Johnson.

18th Follies Is Two Nights

The 18th Annual Follies of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club will feature a new idea—a theatrical-type presentation (hamillies) on Friday night and the traditional cabaret on Saturday night.

Proceeds from the follies, whose theme is "Up and Away to the Cabaret," will be used for the Kindergarten for Retarded Children which has classes at Galilee Episcopal Church, the first kindergarten of its kind in the Virginia Beach area. Also, Camp Civitan in Virginia Beach will receive some of the proceeds this year as they have in the past several years.

The Follies is produced by Jerome H. Cargill Production Agency, Inc. of New York and directed by Bob Gregory. Dance music will be by the Johnny Horne Band.

The Nov. 15 performance will be from 8 to 10 p.m., and tickets are $1.50 per person. The cabaret on the 16th will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and tickets are $4 per person. For tickets contact any club member or call 464-5624 or 428-8991.

Chairman of this year's Follies is Mrs. William E. Bartee, Jr. Mrs. Ronald B. Wiles and Mrs. Frederick E. Windree, III are co-chairmen. Other chairmen include Mrs. W. H. Lyons Jr., acknowledgements; Mrs. Winfree, ads; Mrs. John E. Menden, backstage and make-up; Mrs. Philip J. Terveer, cast party and baby sitters; Mrs. William W. Brooks, costumes; Mrs. Daniel D. DeHart, decorations; Mrs. M. A. Negro, door prizes; Mrs. A. S. Gallup, finance; Mrs. William K. Jenkins, patrons; Mrs. John S. Salmons, printing; Mrs. Wiley C. Harrell Jr., programs; Mrs. John R. Viar Jr., props and telephone; Mrs. Wiles, publicity; Mrs. A. L. Smith, raffish; Mrs. William E. Watson, reservations and ushers; Mrs. Harvey H. Shifflet III, special committee; Mrs. Robert P. Johnson, talent; Mrs. Charles E. Holland, tickets.

Child Center Symposium Set

Two sub-committees of the Citizens' Committee on the Status of Women in Virginia have collaborated to bring about one of the most necessary programs for working women with young children. A symposium on Day-Care Centers will be held by the Minority Groups and the Home and Community committees next Saturday, Nov. 16 with registration at 9 a.m. at the Branch House Restaurant in Richmond.

The symposium is open to anyone in Virginia interested in the legal aspects, the training of personnel and the requirements necessary to set up a Day-Care Center in their city. Reservations will not be necessary since box lunches will be supplied and will be available in quantity.

McAllen's ALLEY

Knit One, Purl Two

The weather, as everybody is well aware, has been lousy the last couple of days. I got home from work Monday and was greeted by the shouts of the four-year-old, "Mommy, Mommy, it's going to snow tonight. My teacher said so." He even convinced the two girls.

The three sleepyheads who usually have to be bodily dragged out of bed in the morning were up before it was light Tuesday. No snow. "But Mommy," wailed the four-year-old, "Kim said it was going to snow." Now Kim happens to be a five-year-old neighbor who knows as much about the weather as my four-year-old. It took some fast talking, but I finally convinced them that it was too early for snow, and that we'd have plenty of snow before the winter is over—over, it hasn't even officially begun yet!

Next was the problem of the hats. Bill, the four-year-old, couldn't find his. I was a little suspicious because I had just knitted new stocking caps for the girls, and he was jealous. Finally his answer was that the dog had eaten it.

That meant a trip out in the soggy back yard at 6:30 a.m. to try to confirm. Well, the sad remains were under a bush. Really the only thing wrong with the cap was that the pom pom on top was missing. Plus it was soaking wet. So into the dryer it went and was ready by school time. Bill finally agreed to wear it after I promised to knit him a hat too.

Then Susie had to get into the act. The first thing she did was stretch her hat so badly she couldn't keep it on. She then announced she wanted to wear a scarf. I reminded her that the last time she wore a scarf she chewed the corners to pieces. She wound up wearing an old cap that was considerably too small. Their teachers must think I get their clothes out of the Goodwill boxes.

By that time I was more ready for a nervous breakdown than a day at the office, and I breathed a sigh of relief as I watched them run down the driveway to the kindergarten bus.

But just as I stepped out the door myself, it started raining. Not one of the kids was wearing a raincoat. I'll worry about that some other time. Now I've got to get busy with the knitting needles.

A new club, Alanton Trails Garden Club, joined the Council.

Land Sentenced

Peter Edward Land has received two sentences of life in prison following his conviction of rape and murder charges. Land, 29, was named by police as the attacker of Carol J. Dorschel, 28. The woman's partially clad body was found last December in a ditch along Virginia Beach Blvd. a week after she was reported missing from her job at the Pine Tree Inn. Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab in sentencing Land denied a defense motion for a new trial.

Clark Sentenced

John Lewis Clark of West Neck Road has been sentenced to serve one year on the State's road force on his conviction of the unlawful wounding of Riley H. Bailey, Clark, 26, had originally been charged with attempting to murder Bailey, 32, during a shooting last July in Pungo. Court proceedings against Clark on the charge of the fatal shooting of Stanford Ray Lewis, 30, have been continued in Circuit Court. Police said the shootings occurred in an Indian River Road restaurant and dance hall known as Buddy Morris' Ball Park.

Man Dies in Fire

A fire early Saturday morning in a residence in the 1700 block of Jefferson Avenue resulted in the death of one man and the severe burning of another. Police officials said Benjamin Smith of Creeds was fatally burned, while William A. Wilson, of Jefferson Avenue received third degree burns over approximately 70 per cent of his body. Wilson was transferred to Medical College of Virginia Hospital in Richmond for specialized treatment and was last reported making satisfactory recovery. Volunteer fire men from the Oceana and Seaside departments were on scene of the fire for over four hours. An exploding oil heater is believed to have caused the fire which, police said, destroyed the building.

2 Charged in Robbery

Two men have been charged with the June 8 $35,000 jewelry robbery at Miller and Rhodes Department Store in Pembroke Mall. The men were identified by police as Frederick R. Yokom, 22, and Gerald A. Cooper, 23. According to officials the FBI arrested Yokom in Los Angeles, Calif., and he is currently in Florida to face trial on a series of felony charges. Cooper was reported taken into custody by FBI Agents in Atlanta, Ga., where he is being held pending extradition proceedings. Virginia Beach police indicate further proceedings against both men will depend upon legal proceedings in Georgia and Florida. Authorities indicated Yokom was on the FBI's list of the 10 most wanted criminals when the Miller and Rhodes robbery was committed.

Police Lower Minimum Age

Carey Lee Atkins, 19, one of the police complaint clerks employed under the recent program of lowering minimum age requirements for some police department jobs.

Miller's Offers Service

Miller's Discount Department Store at Plaza Trail and Virginia Beach Blvd. inaugurates two new services to its customers tomorrow. Just outside the front door a portable building has been set up as a pickup and return point for items to be dry cleaned and shirts to be laundered and also for shoes to be repaired. J. Colick, manager of the Miller's store branch said the new addition, to be known as Miller's Cottage Dry Cleaners, is another convenience to customers of the store. He said that all service will be one-day service, and stressed that the work will be of the best quality at discount prices.

The department store chain also has two other stores in the area. The store at Military Highway and Indian River Road in Virginia Beach and the store at Little Creek Road and Tidewater Drive in Norfolk will also both begin the same services in the near future, according to Colick.

During 1969 two additional Miller's Discount Dept. Stores will be completed, one in Portsmouth and one in Hampton. Both will offer the same services to their customers.

The minimum age requirement for employment in a number of positions within the Virginia Beach Police Department has been lowered to 18.

Officials told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the program has a two-fold purpose: making more regular police officers available to perform outside duties or with the various bureau's within the department and to attract younger individuals into the police field who may possess the qualities necessary in such an exacting profession.

Present plans call for using such persons in certain desk positions, as communications personnel, handling teletype messages, and complaint personnel. Each of these positions will offer a starting salary of $425 monthly. Those who are selected for the program will undergo on the job training.

Requirements for this new program are high. Applicants must pass the same educational requirements as regular police officers, including oral and written examinations, however physical requirements are slightly under those of a regular police officer. The applicant's draft status will also have some bearing on his consideration and overall evaluation. Those desiring to apply for the program should do so at the Personnel Office for the City of Virginia Beach.

There are several major differences between individuals who enter this new program, and regular police officers. These men are not sworn in as police officers, they will have no powers of arrest, nor will they carry firearms.

The program will allow police administrators to evaluate persons who feel they would like to become police officers when they are 21 years of age and also allow the individuals to make an honest evaluation of the profession of a police officer.

Youths Warned of Shoplifting

Albin R. Mailhes, Executive Director of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has announced a project by the Chamber of Commerce's Retail Merchants Bureau to distribute 10,000 copies of a pamphlet to high school students in the area. The pamphlets, entitled "Shoplifting can Ruin Your Future," are being distributed by D.E.C.A., Distributive Education Clubs of America. The pamphlet describes the consequences of shoplifting.

The Retail Merchants Bureau feels that this is an especially good time for distribution of the brochures since so many millions of dollars are lost each year by merchants during the Christmas season.

C. of C. Elects 10 Directors

Ten new directors have been named to the board of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. Their three-year terms begin Jan. 1, 1969.

The new directors are: J. Roy Alphin of Alphin Motors; Edward P. Brogan of CMB Associates; Joseph deCreny of GEM, Inc.; Robert H. DeFord, farmer; and James H. Downing of Atlantic Industrial Loan Co. Also Dr. Ira Hancock; Mrs. George Leary of the Homestead Hotel; John B. Smith of the Mariner Motor Hotel; R. H. Spessard of the White Heron Motel; and John S. Waller architect.

The election of the new members came as the result of mail balloting of the membership at large. The ten new members join the other 20 to elect officers of the Chamber for the coming year on Nov. 26.

Each year ten additional board members are elected on a staggered basis. The election this year came on Saturday, Nov. 9.

Supervisor Will Lead Training

Peter D'Murs, a Watchtower Society district supervisor from New York, will conduct a three-day Bible and ministerial training conference for instructors, ministers and ministerial students of Jehovah's Witnesses Nov. 22-24.

The meetings will be held in the Kingdom Hall located on Prichard Road. The local congregation will be hosts to the visitors who will come from as far as Petersburg, Virginia and Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina.

Dog Owners Plan Outing

The Saint Bernard Club of Eastern Virginia will hold an outing on Nov. 17, 2 p.m., at 1101 Kempsville Rd., Chesapeake.

Included in the outing is a country style picnic and a Fun Match. Meal tickets will be $1.75 for adults and $1 for children.

Aromatic Sauce Comes from Genoa

There are parts of Italy where home cooking is more richly aromatic, that elsewhere, Genoa has such appetizing recondite, much of it coming from a sauce which mingles the aromas of basil leaves, garlic, Parmesan cheese, olive oil and pine nuts, crushed and mixed to a lustily seasoned paste.

This provocative Genovese Sauce is called "pesto" in Italian, meaning that it has been pounded together in a mortar. It can be stored for weeks in a refrigerator and used as a pesto seasoning for all kinds of authentic Italian dishes. It is a famous last-minute addition—one dab per serving—to a soup such as minestrone. Spread it thinly on tomato halves before broiling. Add Genovese Sauce to softened butter and spread it on sliced Italian or French bread before heating. It's a convenient seasoning of crisply cooked vegetables such as zucchini, Italian peppers or green beans. Spread it sparingly the length of broiled fish fillets, too, or add it, to taste, to a meat ball mixture which will be served with pasta. (The latter could be called Pasta Pronto Pesto.)

In this country the use of basil has increased right along with the popularity of pizza and Italian dishes generally. The tomato-basil combination is the greatest, but don't stop there, for the "royal herb" can give delightful aroma to many all-American dishes: mashed potatoes, tossed green salads, stuffed lobsters or seafood stuffings.

When getting acquainted with an herb or spice which is new to your kitchen, use it sparingly at first, in the case of basil about a teaspoonful per six servings.

But back to Genovese Sauce which was discovered by home economists of the American Spice Trade Association. It couldn't be easier or more convenient to use in a soup, spaghetti sauce, or stuffed mushrooms.

Basil sings right out as one of the savory ingredients which has made Genovese Sauce (PESTO in Italian)—world-famous.

"Genovese Sauce" we may call it in the U. S. A., but in northern Italy this rich mingling of basil, garlic, Parmesan cheese and olive oil is called "pesto," meaning it has been pounded and crushed to smoothness.

GENOVESE SAUCE

1/4 c. basil leaves, crumbled
1 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 c. grated Parmesan cheese
5 tbl. olive oil
2 tbl. pine nuts, crushed
1 1/2 tsp. instant garlic powder

Mix basil with 1-1/2 teaspoons water and lemon juice; let stand 5 minutes for flavor to develop. Add remaining ingredients; mix to form a paste. Store in a closed jar in the refrigerator and use as needed. Yield 4 cups.

It takes just a spoonful of basil-flavored Genovese Sauce to give an Italian accent to this easy clam sauce for spaghetti.

CLAM SPAGHETTI SAUCE

1 pkg. (1 lb.) spaghetti
1/4 c. olive oil
1 can (10-1/2 oz.) minced clams
1 tbl. Genovese Sauce

Cook spaghetti according to package directions. Five minutes before spaghetti is to be drained, heat oil in a medium-size skillet. Stir in clams and Genovese Sauce. Cook until just heated, stirring constantly. Pour over drained spaghetti. Yield 4 portions.

Genovese Sauce keeps well in the refrigerator, ever-ready for appetizing uses such as in stuffing mushrooms.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 lb. (18 to 20) medium-sized mushrooms
1/2 c. oil
1 tsp. salt
2 tbl. butter or margarine
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 to 2 tbl. Genovese Sauce
3/4 c. soft bread crumbs
Paprika

Remove stems from mushrooms. Chop stems (makes about 1-1/2 cups); set aside. Brush caps, inside and out, with oil. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Place mushrooms in baking pan, cavity side up. Heat butter in medium-sized skillet. Add chopped stems and saute until lightly browned. Remove from heat. Stir in egg, Genovese Sauce and bread crumbs. Fill caps with mixture. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Garnish with paprika. Serve as a meat accompaniment or as an hors d'oeuvre. Yield 18 stuffed mushrooms.

A dab of Genovese Sauce gives aroma to hot soup. This is its most famous use.

VEGETABLE SOUP

1 can (10-1/2 oz.) vegetables or minestrone soup
1 tbl. Genovese Sauce

Prepare soup according to label directions. Just before serving blend in Genovese Sauce. Serve hot. Yield 4 portions.

Convention Plans Made In Advance

Plans are already well underway for the 35th Annual Convention of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs to be hosted by the Tidewater District on May 28-29, 1969 at the Golden Triangle in Norfolk.

The theme of the convention is "Past-Present-Future." The Virginia Federation was originally organized in Norfolk 35 years ago. Charter clubs and their members will be honored at a luncheon.

Included in the convention plans are a tea, plus tours of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens. New state officers will be elected also. Besides a variety of interesting programs, there will be special displays in an exhibit room.

Included in the Virginia Beach women who will be taking part in planning the convention are Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, co-chairman; Mrs. A. H. Culpepper, hospitality chairman; and Mrs. R. C. Dunaj, exhibit room chairman.

A Real Star: How could you goof on roasting or grilling a turkey that was buttered from the inside out? Armour asked itself this one; for 2 years they have been getting the right answers in test markets. The Butter goes into the turkey before freezing, "metered" according to weight. So a 12-pound might get about 1/2 lb. top grade butter in its innards. Self-basting, he is, this Golden Star turkey, for as he roasts the goodness oozes through, giving flavor, preventing dryness.

Plant Bulbs Now Before Frost

Editor's Note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, extension horticulture specialist at Virginia Tech.

This is the last call for planting spring flowering bulbs and lilies this fall. It is not too late for this important autumn job in most parts of Virginia. The bright flowers next spring will add much beauty to your home grounds.

As a rule, your fall bulb planting should be finished not later than a month or six weeks after the average date of the first killing frost in your area. If you hurry you can still beat the deadline.

As we have said before, buy only large, firm bulbs from reliable dealers. High quality U.S. bulbs are just as good as those from foreign sources.

At this time we would like to make another sales pitch for lilies. These queens of the garden are given much less attention than they deserve. They add regal beauty to the landscape which can be secured with no other flowers.

Lilies are easy to grow. In fertile, well-drained soil they will endure for many years. After they become established, they will send up several fine spikes of blooms from each plant each year.

Be sure the soil is well drained where you plant lilies. If you have a heavy clay, work in a liberal amount of peat moss or other organic matter. If the ground is flat and water may accumulate during a rain, you may need to plant your lilies in a raised bed. Regardless of how you do it, they need good soil drainage.

You do not need to worry too much about planting depth except for Madonna Lilies (L. candidum). These must be shallow, with not more than an inch of soil over the top of the bulb. All other lilies should be covered with about four inches of soil.

Lilies need plenty of fertilizer, but do not put manure or other fertilizer in the trench or hole when planting the bulbs. The best practice is to apply about four pounds of 5-10-5 fertilizer per ten square feet of flower bed or border. Scratch it into the top inch of soil. If you are planting in rows, use two pounds per 25 feet of row.

Be sure to water your lilies thoroughly after planting. This will stimulate root development which is necessary for vigorous growth next spring. If the weather is dry during the fall, apply more water each week if necessary to maintain a good moisture supply.

After the ground freezes, apply a one inch mulch of sawdust, wood chips, peat moss or other organic material. This will help reduce erosion this winter, conserve moisture, and prevent damage by extreme cold and alternate freezing and thawing.

VIRGINIA BEACH Garden Club News

Lynette on

Mrs. Jack Allen spoke on "Hobbies" at last week's meeting of the Lynnhaven Garden Club at Lynnhaven Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Allen brought a table filled with articles she had made, including Christmas decorations and accessories, jewelry and gift ideas, complete with instructions for making.

Blue ribbons for arrangements in the advanced class were awarded to Mrs. W. E. Smith, Mrs. Harry Billups, Mrs. C. W. Jernigan, Mrs. Dean Potter, Mrs. Tom A. Schaeffer. Blue ribbons in horticulture were awarded to Mrs. Billups (3), Mrs. Hunter (2), Mrs. Smith, Mrs. W. R. French (3), and Mrs. Walter Gresham (2).

Cardinal

Elgia Easter, horticulturist for the VPI Extension Services, gave an illustrated talk on landscaping and horticulture at the Nov. 12 meeting of the Cardinal linal Garden Club of Birdneck Point. The meeting was at the home of Mrs. Ervin W. Murden. Easter told members that now is the time for shrub and tree planting suggested numerous shrubs and trees which could be planted for more attractive yards.

Mrs. Ray Downing will host the club's December meeting.

Thalia Garden Club

A bus trip to Williamsburg was arranged for members of Thalia Garden Club on Wednesday, Nov. 13, by Mrs. J. F. Eaton, chairman of visiting gardens and tours.

Club members met at Pembroke Mall and went from there to Williamsburg, stopping for lunch at the Williamsburg Inn. A special, stop was made at the pottery factory.

The next meeting of the club will be at noon on Nov. 20 at Thalia Methodist Church.

Eastern Star Plan Bazaar

Virginia Beach chapter No. 75, Order of the Eastern Star will hold its annual Bazaar on Friday and Saturday, November 15 and 16 at the Masonic Temple, 20th and Artie Avenue, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Items for sale will be Country Store, Baked Goods, Wood Work, Needle Work, Novelties, Christmas Decorations, Ceramics, Flower Arrangements.

Christmas House Is Dec. 5

Broad Bay Garden Club is again having a Christmas House.

This year it will be on Dec. 5 at 2225 Windward Shores Drive, the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wither. A new feature, besides all the beautiful Christmas decorations and arrangements, will be lunch. There will also be items for sale.

The club hopes to make $2,100 so they can buy a piece of special equipment for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The donation is 50 cents, and

Club to Mark Federation Day

James C. Mounie, director of secondary education for the Virginia Beach Schools, will be the speaker for the Kempsville Woman's Club Federation Day luncheon on Tuesday, Nov. 19 at the Ocean Hearth.

The program will be presented by the education department of the club. Mounie has been principal of First Colonial, Virginia Beach and Bayside High Schools.

White Elephants and Costume Jewelry

Clam chowder, hot dogs, coffee and desserts will be served for luncheon, and fried chicken, parsley potatoes, green beans, rolls, iced tea and coffee will be served for dinner.

All proceeds from the Bazaar will be used for charitable contributions within our city and the Tidewater area.

The Reel End

What's the most important part of any meal? The end—when you sit and savor all the good things that have gone before. Instead of rushing away from the table, Europeans traditionally linger over a cup of the double-roasted coffee called Espresso—difficult for most Americans to make, without the help of the steam-making machines found in many Italian households. Now you can do without the equipment—with the introduction of after-dinner Espresso in instant form. The new Progresso specialty makes a flavorful drink by itself, with a twist of lemon peel, and it's even better dressed up with a dollop of any liqueur. For a treat the whole family will enjoy, flavor your favorite refrigerator ice cream or sherbet with a spoonful of the instant Espresso, dissolved in a half-cup of hot milk or water. Make the night before and allow to ripen in the refrigerator; dessert will be ready when you are, with no last-minute work.

You might think about using the Japanese adromeda (Pieris) or the Japanese aucuba. The Japanese adromeda is usually grown for its graceful blooms which resemble lily-of-the-valley. Aucuba is grown for its foliage, although when both sexes are planted in the same proximity, it will bear berries.

There are other materials that do well in shade, too. A few are pittosporum, glossy privet (Ligustrum), Japanese and American hollies, barberry, boxwood, and Oregon holly-grape (Mahonia).

Juvenile Crime Is Panel Topic

Cape Henry Woman's Club will have a panel discussion on juvenile crime at its November meeting today, Thursday, at the Americana. The business meeting begins at 11 a.m. with luncheon at noon.

The car I want costs $3,495. How much in dollars and cents will it cost if I finance it for 3 years?

It'll get straight answers from Loan People & Merchants.

Speaking on the panel will be Juvenile Judge Philip Russo, Del. Stanley Walker and School Supt. E.E. Brickell.

Patriots Must Win for Title Chance

The First Colonial Patriots will be playing this Friday night like there's no tomorrow. And unless they win, there isn't. If they do win, there's a regional playoff battle against Wilson still in the offing.

First Colonial is rated sixth in the state with its impressive 9-0 record. Wilson, with its 8-0 record, is rated first in the Southeastern district.

The picture in the Eastern district, of which First Colonial is a member, is not quite as clear. While Norview has lost one game to Wilson, that was in inter-district play, and does not count on the Eastern district standings. The Patriots therefore lead the district with a 7-0 record. First Colonial has a 6-0 district record. Norview has scored 236 total points to their opponents' total of 51. The Patriots have scored less total points, 201, but have held their opponents to 39.

There is some grumbling about the Eastern district decision to name the leader strictly on Virginia High School League rating points and more grumbling about the less difficult season that First Colonial played, but if First Colonial loses this weekend Norview wins the district title and probably a berth in the playoff. If Norview loses its game this weekend to a faltering Maury team and First Colonial should also lose, Norview still wins the title, according to the rating system. With all this unrest in the Eastern district, First Colonial takes on three-time loser Kellam this weekend for all the marbles. The outcome is anything but clear.

The Patriots had a close shave last Friday night, but managed to get by the air attack of Lake Taylor 19-14. As usual the Patriots ran all over the field at will and piled up rushing yardage, but the Titans used passing to pile up 121 yards to the Patriots' 28.

The Titans scored first and the first quarter ended in a 7-7 tie. Lake Taylor scored the Patriots with another touchdown in the fourth quarter but a late rally for the winning touchdown fizzled. The Patriots scored two touchdowns in the second period but, as usual, bobbled the extra points.

Lake Taylor, with its 2-5 record, was not supposed to be much of an opponent for First Colonial, but it was a close one that surprised coach, players and spectators alike.

Kellam was downed by an energetic Great Bridge team and its 15-year old quarterback Lora Hinton in a cliff-hanger. He scored three touchdowns and piled up 241 yards alone. The Patriots managed to score on four running touchdowns, two by Mike Futrell, but it wasn't enough. The Wildcats of Great Bridge made it 34-27 before the final gun, and showed what a threat they will be in the next few years to come.

The Kellam record is now 6-3. All six were won in a single streak. The Knights would like to play spoiler for First Colonial and the game is a cinch to be a good one and most likely a close one. Only the records give the Patriots the edge and the chance for an undefeated season. The Patriots should win it, however.

Princess Anne edged winless Bayside last weekend, 6-0, for its second win, and it took a 14-year old freshman to do that on the first play from scrimmage. The game was a defensive battle the rest of the way, and neither team looked really good.

Princess Anne plays Cox this weekend and both teams will be looking for their third season win. Princess Anne should be the one to do it. The Cavaliers are looking far better after a shaky start as defending State champions.

Cox took it on the chin and elsewhere last weekend at the hands of the Granby Blue Comets. Granby broke its two-game losing streak and downed Cox 19-0 in the rain at Foreman Field. Granby did not score in the first period, but managed to get on the scoreboard in each of the other quarters mostly by a strong ground attack. Granby, incidentally, plays Wilson this weekend.

In a battle of the winless, Kempville is at Bayside Friday night, and it should be the one that breaks the losing streak for first-year Kempville. The young Chiefs have shown much promise in recent weeks while Bayside's Marlins have not.

Norview, however, soundly trounced Kempville last weekend 38-7, as expected, but the Patriots have won seven in a row. For the Chiefs this week's game is the last chance for a victory and that victory looks possible. Bayside will have another chance the following week against Lake Taylor. That will be the only game that weekend in which a Virginia Beach team will play.

Union Kempville closed a disappointing season and its football career last weekend with a loss to Crestwood, 51-0, after winning its first game this year 8-0 over Northampton. Union Kempville is to become a special education school next year. Last Friday night everything went wrong and UK ended with a total of 9 yards gained passing and running against 401 for Crestwood.

This weekend, for the first time this year, there are only three games involving Virginia Beach teams, since all six schools play city rivals.

LAST WEEK'S RESULTS

First Colonial 19, Lake Taylor 14
Princess Anne 6, Bayside 0
Norview 38, Kempville 7
Great Bridge 34, Kellam 27
Granby 19, Cox 0
Crestwood 51, Union Kempville 0

Parents' Workshop Planned

The Child and Family Service bureau will present a program on Family Life Education at Thalia Lynn Baptist Church on Nov. 19.

The program, which lasts from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., is geared for parents of children from infancy to six. It is part of an overall program on family life education to help further understanding in the inter-family relationships.

Speaker for the morning session of the program is Dr. William M. Lord, director of the Lor-Berg Family Guidance Clinic in Richmond. Dr. Lord will comment on a play which will be presented as part of the program.

In the afternoon session there will be three workshops operating simultaneously under the guidance of the Child and Family Service workers. These workshops are titled "Babies are Human Beings," "Understanding the Two-to-Five," and "The Six-Year-Old and His School Adjustment."

There will be luncheon served between the sessions. Registration and luncheon fee is $2.75. Anyone interested in attending the seminar should contact Mrs. Eunice Clay at 622-7017.

Mike Futrell (12) throws up his hands to signal another Kellam TD as teammate Connelly pushes over the goal line along with a number of Great Bridge defenders.

Synchronized Swim Teams Compete

The Barraquettes and the Sandpipers, synchronized swim teams, competed in a dual AAU Developmental Synchronized Swimming meet Nov. 2 at Navy Fleet Park Pool.

A beginners group competed in stunts only, while the more experienced team members participated in stunts and musical routines. Team scores were Barraquettes, 31, and Sandpipers, 18.

Beginners: 12 and under, 1. Marian Sheppard, Barr, 2. Mary A. Kennedy, SP, 3. Karen Keating, SP; thirteen and over, 1. Letitia Weymouth, Barr.

Routines: Solos, 12 and under, 1. Carolyn Swartz, SP, 2. Frances Chadwick, Barr, 3. Linda Scheid, Barr; 13 and over, 1. Linda Stecher, Barr, 2. Liz Stecher, Barr, 3. Julie Heyer, Barr.

Golf Pro To Speak

One of Virginia's most distinguished sports figures, golfer Chandler Harper, will be guest speaker at the Virginia Beach Sports Club Nov. 19, 1 p.m., at the Capes Club.

Harper, a native of Portsmouth, served notice on the sports world of bigger things to come when he won the State Golfing Championship some 30 years ago. Since that time Harper has added numerous National and International awards to go along with many amateur and professional State titles.

Two of his outstanding golfing titles bridged a gap of almost 20 years. Harper won the National PGA title in the 50's and just recently went abroad to bring home the World's Senior Golf Championship.

A near record crowd, with many guests attending, is expected to be on hand to welcome the veteran golf professional.

Proposal Made For Park, Ring

City Council heard a proposal Monday at its informal meeting for a "small Redwing Park" to be on a 25-acre site of the city-owned Green Run Farm. As envisioned by Harold Whitehurst, director of the city department of Recreation and Parks, about 12 acres of that will be cleared and used for a horse ring and ball fields. Whitehurst pointed out that the park can be built within the present budget of the department and that no additional appropriations will be necessary. He said the park will include picnic tables, grills, playground equipment and a natural area in the part where only the underbrush will be cleared away from the trees.

Council agreed this was a good use of the land and instructed Whitehurst to proceed with the help of those interested in horse shows in the city. City Manager Roger Scott read a letter from Fire Chief E. B. Bayne, with three recommendations offered by a committee Bayne headed. Other members of the committee were Fred Quist, fire chief of Chesapeake Beach V.F.D.; Floyd Waterfield, chief of Creeds V.F.D.;

Beach Rejects Offer

In executive session Monday City Council declined to accept an invitation from the city of Norfolk to participate in the cost and building of a proposed 8,000 seat stadium in Norfolk. The invitation came from Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin. Reportedly similar invitations were sent to Chesapeake and Portsmouth also. Both cities are also expected to decline.

Martin reportedly said the letter was sent out of courtesy and that the other cities were not expected to participate in the baseball stadium. Recently Norfolk chose its own site near Landside Circle in Norfolk to build a two-stadium complex without regard to areawide needs and amid efforts by others to spur areawide cooperation. One Virginia Beach Councilman said this was probably Norfolk's way of trying to appease Virginia Beach and the other cities after making the unilateral decision.

Norfolk has already agreed that the Mets will pay one-half of the cost of the stadium and that a Triple A farm club will play there. The other stadium will not be built immediately. Efforts of other interested groups have been stymied since the Norfolk decision was made.

Speech Therapists Report on Progress

Progress being made in speech therapy in Virginia Beach schools was described to the School Board Tuesday by Mrs. Mary Sanford, speech therapist with the public school system.

"Speech therapy has come a long way in the last three years," said Mrs. Sanford. "Then we had just one therapist who tried to serve five schools each semester." Now there are eight speech therapists who serve the 1,000 students enrolled in speech therapy for all types of speech disorders. Each elementary school enrolled is seen twice a week while the secondary students have therapy once a week. Used in their work is a self-contained mobile speech laboratory which can be used for both teaching and testing. School Supt. E. E. Brickell told board members that the therapy program has received state recognition.

Not only do the therapists

FAA Plan Urges Beach Airport

More developments have come about in the past week concerning the possibility of a general aviation airport for Virginia Beach on at least two separate fronts.

The Federal Aviation Administration issued an airport plan which forecasts development of airports nationally through 1973. Two airports in this immediate area are strongly urged, one in Chesapeake and one in Virginia Beach.

Without mention of the $12 million plan to expand Norfolk airport, the same report suggests expansion of that facility to include a fire and rescue building and extension of runway aprons.

The FAA will shortly receive the full expansion plan from the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority which calls for a new terminal building and extension of the present runway to accommodate the new, larger planes to approximately 1990.

The length of the runway suggested in Virginia Beach is 3,600 feet. No site for such a facility is mentioned, however, but that may be settled with the help of others.

The Mayor's Airport Committee, headed by Industrialist James Sadler is still working with Virginia officials including the Governor to speed up the building of a small airport in the resort city.

The possible use of the present emergency strip at Port Story for civilian use also got a big boost with the promise of help along that line from First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing. City Manager Roger Scott informed City Council Monday of Downing's letter offering assistance. The announcement was made in closed session and was not released until Sadler's committee had been informed.

An FAA spokesman report-

Airport to Brief Media

The Dulles International Airport Development Commission, established by the 1965 session of the Virginia General Assembly, has invited a number of news media representatives, civic, municipal and industrial leaders and travel agents to the Chantilly, Va., airport tomorrow.

Former State Sen. William P. Kellam of Virginia Beach serves on that commission by appointment of the governor. He said that the purpose of the commission is to look into ways to generate more business and more passengers to the airport which serves northern Virginia and Washington.

The Dulles facility was hailed when it was built as new in concept and as a solution to overcrowded conditions at Washington National Airport in Alexandria. It has not proved to live up to expectations, however. The airport is far from downtown Washington and the cost of commuting there is considered quite high.

A number of airlines say they will not use it until more ticket space is built. Airport officials say more ticket space will follow when more airlines use it.

Single District Supported

A number of Virginia Beach officials, including City Councilmen, told representatives of the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs that Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach should ideally be combined in a single planning district being set up by the state.

The planning districts, which will be eligible for federal planning grants amounting to $5,000 for each 25,000 population, are edly has said the Pentagon is willing to consider expanding the steel mat over sand runway at Port Story so that it will be more useful to both military and civilian use. The city must request such use, however, and Downing noted in his letter that he would take care of the official contact if such request were made.

Port Story officials have not been too receptive to the idea in the past, but are remaining generally silent concerning the current proposals.

low when more airlines use it. Much of the international traffic that was supposed to come to Dulles is still using Friendship International near Baltimore.

A number of suggestions have been made to remedy the problem, including a high-speed, low-cost rapid transit system from Washington to Dulles, but until the commission was formed nothing was done about any of the suggestions.

Single District Supported

being set up statewide as part of the implementation of the Hahn commission suggestions adopted into law by the 1966 Virginia General Assembly. The districts will be responsible for the orderly planning of the metropolitan areas they serve.

Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott told the director of the state division, T. Edward Temple, that the four south Tidewater cities would comprise an ideal "minimum" district, but that he thought the inclusion of Suffolk, Franklin, and the counties of Isle of Wight, Nansemond and Southampton would be a "maximum." Virginia Beach now deals with all of these either through the present Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission or the Tidewater Virginia Development Council.

Temple noted that he had received the suggestion on the Peninsula that Virginia Beach be included in a district with Hampton and Newport News, inclusion of the two Peninsula cities did not draw entirely favorable comment on the south side of Tidewater. At least one city, Portsmouth, is completely against such a district.

The districts will be drawn by mid-1969 and should begin cooperative operation before the end of next year. The districts have been hailed as a first step toward planning for the future of urban areas.

Penn-Central Reply Expected Any Time

The Virginia Beach Industrial Development Authority may possibly hear today that the board of directors of Penn-Central Railroad has officially accepted its offer to buy the 183 acres of prime industrial property at Little Creek for $75,000.

A week ago officials of the railroad wrote to Virginia Beach officials informing them that they looked favorably on the city's bid for the land and would recommend acceptance of the bid at the next directors' meeting.

It was unclear, however, just when that meeting would be, it was reported the meeting would be held either yesterday or on the 27th. The letter only noted that the meeting would be "later this month."

Meanwhile, as requested by the railroad, the Authority has gone ahead with plans for survey of the land. The firm of Frank D. Tarrall, Jr. & Associates has been engaged to do the work. The survey must be finished before the sale is completed. Tentative date for final settlement is still set for Dec. 16.

Industrial Development Authority director L. Dean Curtis said he did not know how long it would take to complete the survey, Tarrall said he was not certain either. But both are hopeful of meeting the original settlement date.

The Planning department of the city will also assist in preparing any documents needed to meet the requirements, according to City Manager Roger Scott.

About 47 acres of the total is waterfront, but part of the channel leading from Chesapeake Bay to the property was the entrance of the Little Creek Amphibious Base must be dredged. The 19-foot channel that now exists to the property is not adequate to handle large ocean-going merchantmen. Depending upon proposed usage of the property Congress will probably be asked to help the city in dredging a wider, deeper channel. There is no estimate of when those funds could be forthcoming, but city officials are hopeful the matter would be given top priority if requested.

Curtis has also said the Navy has informed city officials of plans already in the works for dredging the channel but with no date given.

There is also a possibility that the name of the Industrial Development Authority will be changed in due time to the Virginia Beach Port and Industrial Authority, but again officials say there is no rush in the matter.

Because of the roads, rail spurs and dock facilities already existing on the part of the property on the north side of Shore Drive, a number of industrial firms have already contracted Curtis about the possibility of locating there.

"The inquiries have been general," said Curtis. "Most have said that when we are in a position to discuss the matter fully, they are also ready to talk."

Curtis added that he was frankly surprised at the large number of industries that have expressed more than a little interest in the property.

"But this is not something that can happen overnight," said Curtis. "It's going to take time and a lot of good planning."

He stated that he had not heard from Penn-Central officials since the original communication, but said he was hopeful favorable board action would be forthcoming very shortly.

Since the announcement of the tentative acquisition a week ago, the move has been hailed generally by civic leaders from all of Tidewater as an excellent one for the city of Virginia Beach to make at this time.

Downing Opens Door

First District Congressman, Thomas N. Downing of Newport News, who was just re-elected by a large majority, now has left the door wide open for his entrance into the already crowded 1969 Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Downing, whose name has been mentioned off and on as a possible candidate for more than a year, said Monday he would let his final decision be known within the next ten days. Until then he had said he was not going to become a gubernatorial candidate. In his campaign for re-election in his sixth term, Downing said the only office he sought was his Congressional seat.

Following the Nov. 5 election Downing vacationed for a few days in Florida. It was apparently during this time that a number of influential persons across the state began to look to Downing as a candidate.

In his statement Monday Downing said, "Just returning from a short vacation, I have been greatly surprised and naturally honored by the telephone calls, telegrams and personal messages that I have received from numbers of people throughout Virginia urging me to become a candidate for governor next year."

He reiterated, however, that his statement of interest only in his Congressional seat had been his true feeling until now and that this was the only office he had ever sought.

But he went on to say, "I realize however that the office of governor of Virginia is the highest honor the people of the Commonwealth can bestow on anyone. It would be both improper and unworthy of me to brush aside the many requests that I have had to reconsider my position."

He added that he wanted to serve the people of Virginia where he can be of the greatest value and that he would give every consideration to becoming a candidate.

Downing, considered a moderate, has strong ties with the Democratic organization in the state. His supporters say he would make an extremely strong candidate statewide.

Virginia Polytechnic Institute president Dr. T. Marshall Hahn is also expected to make known his intentions within a few days. It is thought now he would not enter the race if Downing does, although he does have some organization support.

Already in the field are Norfolk State Sen. Henry E. Howell, Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard and former ambassador to Australia, William C. Battle, son of former governor John Battle.

The DAILY PRESS of Newport News contacted Pollard, Battle and the office of Howell

Vocational School Awaits Federal Funds

"We'd be ready to put it out for bids if the funds were released today," said School Supt. E. E. Brickell.

He was referring to the long-delayed start of the vocational-technical high school for Virginia Beach which will be built on a portion of the city owned Green Run Farm.

The federal funds which will be used for much of the construction and equipment costs have been held up by President Johnson. The Virginia Beach project has been approved, and Congress has already passed the appropriation bill for such allocations, but President Johnson has not authorized the release of the funds by the Director of the Budget, according to Brickell.

"We feel that the funds will be released in the near future," said Brickell, "but meanwhile we can't go ahead."

5-Phase Driving Program Begun in Public Schools

In September the Virginia Beach City Schools initiated a new five phase driver education program. This program was created as the result of a federal grant of $62,382.79 on a matching funds basis from the United States Department of Transportation.

The principals objective is to teach students a safe, courteous and efficient method of driving. In order to accomplish the goals of the program and in order to make the course available to every eligible student, it was necessary to change from the traditional driver education program to the five-phase system. This change of necessity brought about changes in the driver training curriculum and teaching procedures. The new driver training program is taught on a 28 day cycle with the five phases of the program integrated in content. At the completion cycle, a student will have covered all five phases of the program - classroom, simulation, range, practice driving, and night driving.

The classroom part of the program is taught by certified teachers as a part of the first semester health and physical education program in the 10th grade. This program extends to a minimum of 36 class periods. The textbook used is the fifth edition of "Sportsmanlike Driving." There is a workbook used in addition to the textbook. The teachers have available an extensive collection of film clips to aid in the classroom presentation. As a part of the regular classroom instruction, the application and examination for a learner's permit is taught. The students are required to pass the examination, but they are not required to obtain the driver's permit.

An important part of the program and the unusual part of it is the use of driving simulators. The Virginia Beach School System has purchased two mobile, 12-place driving simulators for use in its driver education program. The driving simulators are similar in construction to the "link" trainers used so advantageously in the field of aviation. The use of the simulator offers the driver education teachers opportunities for instruction that can be obtained through no other teaching method.

Some of the advantages of using the simulators as a teaching device are:

The teacher has the opportunity to drill a number of students simultaneously in dashboard familiarization and in manipulative procedures. Through the use of full color cinemascopic instruction films, taken from the driver's side of the car, a student is able to practice driving under a number of environmental conditions - such as highways, expressways, and crowded cities.

The instructor is free to teach and the student is free to learn, neither is concerned about his safety. The student has all mistakes recorded on an information panel and this permits him to readily recognize and correct his errors.

Each student has the benefit of 10 or 12 hours of experience in the simulator. The driving range is another phase of the driver training program which is fully integrated into the complete program. Driving ranges are spaces which are marked off in the school parking areas. The multiple-car method which permits two or more cars to be operated simultaneously in a controlled procedure is used on the range.

The instructional procedure is to follow a systematic pattern beginning with the basic skill development and moving to driving experiences involving the students' judgement. This

False Arrest Insurance

Many Are Unaware of Protection

One of the major concerns of the Fraternal Order of Police Associate Lodge #8 in suggesting possible ways of improving the Virginia Beach police department was that in addition to a pay increase, the City should provide false arrest insurance for each man on the force.

Many officials and officers of the police department were unaware that such protection has already been obtained for police officers.

The existence of such protection was confirmed by Giles Dodd, assistant to the city manager for finance. According to Dodd the coverage is included in a liability policy with the Aetna Life & Casualty Insurance Co., of Hartford, Conn. Dodd indicated the protection, which costs the City an annual premium of $2,000, was the result of a discussion between city officials and Aetna representatives during the last quarterly meeting to review revisions of insurance protection for employees of the City.

He said the basic coverage of the policy is broken down into three categories: false arrest, detention or imprisonment or malicious prosecution; liability, slander, defamation, or violation of right of privacy; wrongful entry or eviction, or other invasion of right of private occupancy.

The maximum protection has been set at $250,000 per aggregate, and $500,000 general aggregate, with the city bearing the responsibility of 25 per cent of these limitations.

The F.O.P.A. recommendation had stated the difficulty of carrying out police duties while living "in fear of civil redress for exercising what he believes to be acts in the best interest of the City - accomplished in a reasonable manner."

A life insurance program is also offered members of the Virginia Beach police department. It is handled through the Life Insurance Co. of Va. The policy coverage is based on an officer's annual salary and is in no way connected to his length of employment with the police department.

The life insurance, which costs an officer 60 cents per month per thousand dollars of coverage, provides double indemnity benefits in the event of accidental death, as well as provision for cash payments and re-insurance in the event of the loss of limbs.

The age of a police officer has an effect on the overall insurance program. If a police officer to the age of 51 is making an annual salary of $5,000, his insurance coverage is equal to twice his salary although he pays a monthly premium rate on $5,000. After age 51 coverage reduces gradually on an annual percentage basis until age 65 at which time his insurance protection reverts to an amount equal to his annual salary. After age 65, however, the officer no longer pays premiums and the amount of coverage reduces at the rate of two per cent per month until it reaches one-quarter of the value it had when age 65 was reached.

Since it is possible for a man who retires at age 65 with life insurance protection of $5,000 eventually to have coverage equal to only $1,250, additional coverage has been recommended by a number of interested persons.

Chaplain Appeal Denied

The State Supreme Court of Appeals has denied Russell Wilson Chaplain, Jr.'s petition for a writ of error and has upheld his Circuit Court conviction of misdemeanor assault on police officers. Chaplain, 21, remains free on $2,500 bond following his conviction of the charges, but is now faced with the possibility of paying fines totalling $1,500 and a 90 day jail sentence as punishment set by the jury which found him guilty. The charges arose out of scuffle on the Princess Anne Courthouse lawn on June 1967 which resulted in police detectives William Barone and James Wright, as well as Patrolman J. T. Haley requiring treatment at the Virginia Beach General Hospital.

2nd Death in Fire

The second death to result from a Jefferson Avenue house fire Nov. 9 occurred Sunday at the Medical College of Virginia. Officials said William Alfred Wilson, 40, died of second and third degree burns over 70 per cent of his body. Wilson was burned in the fire which claimed the life of Benjamin Smith. Officials said an investigation is still under way into circumstances behind the fire.

Heart Recipient Dies

Death came Sunday to Darrell D. Starcher at the Medical College of Virginia following his receipt of a new heart as an indirect result of a traffic accident last month on Northampton Blvd. in Virginia Beach. Starcher, 32, received the heart of Norfolk police officer William Peyton Ford, who was fatally injured in the accident. The transplant operation took place in Richmond Oct. 30, and Starcher appeared to be making good recovery until last weekend. He was the fourth transplant operation to be performed at MCV.

McClanahan Cleared

Lawyer Glenn N. McClanahan has been cleared of charges in connection with the traffic fatality of Gladys Spruill, 38, of London Bridge Road. Police said the woman was fatally injured when she was struck by McClanahan's auto on Holland Road on the night of Oct. 25. McClanahan had been charged with manslaughter and reckless driving. The charges were dismissed in Municipal Court. McClanahan was quoted as testifying the woman appeared to be crawling across the road, and he did not have time to stop after he saw her.

FBI Enters Search

FBI agents have entered into the search for those who burglarized the Virginia Beach Federal Savings and Loan office on 25th Street. Investigators said the building was entered through a side window. A safe was ripped open during the break-in, and officials indicated some $1,300 in cash was taken. The Norfolk FBI Office entered into the case due to the federal government's insurance of funds on deposit.

Driver Cleared

Stanley Calhoun, of Orkney Drive, has been cleared of manslaughter charges resulting from an accident Sept. 28 which eventually took the life of Arval E. Thrift. Calhoun was identified as driver of an auto which collided with Thrift's car at 22nd Street and Arlic Avenue. Thrift, 43, of 22nd Street, died on Oct. 31. Calhoun had been convicted earlier of charges of failure to yield right-of-way in connection with the accident. The manslaughter charges were dismissed following defense arguments that there was no evidence of drinking, malice, or gross negligence on the part of Calhoun.

Neighbors Protest Pigs

Legal action is under way in Virginia Beach Circuit Court seeking an injunction to restrain Guy Malbon from raising hogs on his property on Dawley Road. The injunction is being sought by F. E. Harrell, Lloyd A. Murden, Walter Munden and Floyd E. Bonney, Jr., each of whom have farm land which adjoins the Malbon property. Harrell reportedly is raising some 60 pigs on his property. The legal action reportedly is being taken on behalf of 142 residents of the region who contend raising hogs makes it impossible for them to enjoy their homes; is creating a serious health hazard, and is resulting in property depreciation.

Glue Charge Dismissed

An 18-year-old Virginia Beach resident has been cleared of glue sniffing charges in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. Police officials said Woodrow W. Hartless, of Paladin Drive, was charged Nov. 2 when he was discovered with three older men in an area behind Princess Anne Plaza shopping center which reportedly contained a number of paper bags and glue containers. Judge Mary Speight ordered a dismissal of the charges on grounds that investigation failed to produce evidence that Hartless actually took part in glue sniffing.

Safes Robbed

Burglaries are increasing at Virginia Beach business firms. Police officials report between $1,200 and $1,500 taken from a safe during a break-in at Puritan Foods on Virginia Beach Blvd. Investigation indicated an estimated $600 stolen from Atlantic Motors on First Colonial Road, where a safe was ripped open. A safe containing about $300 was reportedly taken from the Hilltop Pharmacy during a burglary of the Laskin Ro Firm. A check writing machine and checks valued at approximately $500 were reported stolen following a break-in at the United States Sales office on Laskin Road.

Body Possibly Identified

Virginia Beach police have tentatively identified a body which washed ashore on a beach at Kitty Hawk, N.C., this past week as that of Vincent F. Rapino, 21, of Jersey City, N.J. Rapino, a sailor attached to the USS Gygis, had been reported missing since last March.

Kizer Bound Over

Jerry Kizer of Hill Prince Road has been bound over to a Virginia Beach Grand Jury in connection with the burglarizing of a South Military Highway home Sept. 19. In addition to Kizer, 19, police say they have also charged two 20-year-old men identified as James Sadowski, Jr. and Malcolm West in connection with the crime. A sum of $36 was reportedly taken during the burglary.

Riot Equipment Demonstrated

The Virginia Beach police special weapons range was the site last Friday of a demonstration of new equipment recently developed for the handling of large crowds which may be present during civil disturbances, riots, or similar potentially dangerous gatherings.

Those witnessing the demonstration included officers of the Virginia Beach police department, members of the police departments of the cities of Norfolk, Chesapeake, Hampton, and Suffolk, officers from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Commission Police, the Virginia State Police, and students of the Tidewater Police Academy.

The new riot control equipment developed by Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Salisbury, Pa., was demonstrated by Jim Oerldick, the company's area representative, and Don Peace, chemical technician who took part in the equipment's development.

Featured in the demonstration was a light weight, portable, "Turb-O-Fog" machine, "Mini-Grenades", new types of "shot-gun grenades", and a "gas axe".

The Turb-O-Fog machine could be used by police in dispersing an unruly crowd through the means of spraying a thick cloud of smoke or tear gas into a gathering of demonstrators, rendering them momentarily helpless to allow police to move in.

The new types of grenades include mini-grenades, light weight, compact items which can be thrown by hand into a building to release a heavy concentration of smoke or tear gas to force occupants into the open; an improved 12 gauge shotgun grenade, which permits the lobbing of a smoke or gas grenade into a building, or over a barricade, up to an effective range of 125 yards; the adoption of previously existent 37-millimeter gas grenade guns to permit the firing of cartridges containing 42 pellets of "00" buckshot, thus affording an officer some protection against a rioter who might attack him with a gun or knife.

The gas axe consists of metal tubing fashioned to resemble an axe and containing a smoke or gas grenade in the head of the axe. The axe is designed to allow penetration of hardwood doors, and/or plaster walls of a building or room by a metal tube through which smoke or gas can be forced inside to force occupants into the open.

Thus far there has been no official word released by any of the officials on hand for the demonstration as to whether any of this new equipment will be stocked by any of the local law enforcement agencies of the area.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

This Saturday will be a big day for police officer Stanley F. Bennett, Jr., attached to the 2nd Precinct. Bennett will exchange marriage vows with Miss Linda W. Jackson, Precinct sources report that Bennett instead of sending the customary wedding invitations has been "issuing summonses" to those persons he and his bride wish to attend the important occasion.

This past week saw the installation of a new slate of operational officers for the Kempsville Volunteer Fire & Rescue Department. Those who will direct the units' operation for the coming year are Eldon Swartzentruber, Chief; Robert Smith, 1st asst. chief; Stuart Buxbaum, 2nd asst. chief; Graham White, 3rd asst. chief; Paul Hershberger, 1st capt.; Linwood Culpepper, 2nd capt.; and Al Basnight, 3rd capt.

The welcome mat has been rolled out for two new officers in the Virginia Beach police department. Walter R. Abrecht, Jr., who has a good background in security work and communications gained in the military service, has taken up duties in the communications room at police headquarters. Gerald H. Fockler, who is just entering into law enforcement, has joined the duty roster at the 3rd Police Precinct.

Dinner Will Honor Moore

A dinner honoring retiring Virginia Beach Police Chief J. E. Moore will be held at the Civic Center on Dec. 12, at 8 p.m. About 350 persons will be invited to attend the informal occasion.

The dinner is being sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police Association Lodge # 8 of Virginia Beach, according to Gus

Men of the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Dept. will hold their "Annual Benefit Dance" next Sat. evening, Nov. 30. Proceeds from the dance, which will be held at the Civic Center and feature music by Henry Lee's Orchestra, will be used to purchase fire fighting equipment. Tickets may be obtained, or contributions to the department made, at fire headquarters at 20th Street and Arlie Avenue.

Lt. C. W. Simmons will return to duty next Monday with the police department's Detective Bureau following his graduation from the Southern Police Institute at the University of Louisville. Lt. Simmons completed a 12 week course of study which included police administration; police personnel management; constitutional law; evidence and criminal procedure; and psychology for law enforcement personnel.

This weekend will witness the staging of several turkey shoots for those wanting the traditional "gobbler" for next Thursday's Thanksgiving Day feast. Davis Corner and Thalia Volunteer Fire Departments are jointly sponsoring a shoot at the Thalia fire headquarters. The men of the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Department will also hold a turkey shoot at the unit's headquarters building.

Riganto. Entertainment for the evening is also being planned. Moore retires on Dec. 31. Capt. W. W. Davis is his successor.

more play area. The school now has soccer, football and softball areas and plans to contact Cox High School about use of its track.

The School Board agreed to dedicate approximately 27,000 square feet in front of Kempsville Landing School for the widening of Kempsville Road to four lanes.

The Board also agreed to transfer $18,931.50 from the textbook fund to the general fund for the purchase of 5,409 books for the libraries at Bay-side, Kempsville and Princess Anne High Schools to meet new accreditation requirements.

Airport

The commission is expected to unveil part of its findings tomorrow during the special briefing at the airport. Robert C. Fitzgerald, chairman of the commission said the meeting is being held to acquaint those attending "with the facilities, progress and potential of this valuable asset in the Commonwealth of Virginia."

Representatives of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN and Radio Station WVAB will attend the reception, luncheon, briefing and special tours of the facility.

Downing

concerning the possibility of the Downing candidacy.

Follard was quoted as saying, "Mr. Downing is a fine, able, attractive gentleman for whom I have high regard. He would make a worthy opponent in the primary."

Battle was quoted as saying, "This was certainly an interesting development. Mr. Downing would make a formidable opponent."

Howell's campaign manager, Bob Brown, was quoted as saying, "... It has always been his (Howell's) consistent position to welcome competition." Hahn was quoted as saying that he was still considering the race and did not feel it proper to comment on the possible Downing candidacy at this time.

A number of Virginia Beach democrats who have been strong Downing supporters have already endorsed the candidacy of Battle, including Deis, Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. and B. R. Middleton, who were Downing's Virginia Beach campaign managers, in the recent election.

Both now say they are already committed to Battle and could not support Downing.

Within the last week, as expected, Virginia Beach Treas. V. A. Etheridge, Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, City Sgt. John Marr, State Sen. Edward T. Calton III, Middleton and City Councilman Murray Malbon stated their support of Battle.

Earlier Whitehurst and five other influential democrats had noted their support of Battle in a joint statement. At least two of the total of 12, who asked not to be identified, said they could possibly switch to Downing if he chooses to run.

Va. Bar Assn.

To Meet Here

Contracts have just been signed for the Virginia State Bar Association to hold its June 15-17, 1972, convention here at the Virginia Beach Civic Center.

Bill Spencer, chief of Davis Corner V.F.D., and Bryan Glover, assistant chief of Ocean Park V.F.D.

The committee recommended the hiring of a full-time fire-fighting instructor with the rank of assistant chief to be chosen on the basis of a competitive examination. The instructor would provide training for all paid and volunteer firemen in the city on a regular basis. Scott indicated this position would most likely be included in his next budget and would not become an official position until next July. The paid department in the Beach Borough now has an instructor, W. R. Curley.

The second recommendation was that all firemen, including volunteers, receive 75 hours of training instruction per year for 75 per cent of the force. Several Councilmen and Scott thought this might be too stringent a requirement for volunteers and recommended that the fire council again look at this provision.

The final recommendation was a long-range one. The committee recommended that the city attempt to acquire a site near a water-filled borrow pit for the construction of a fire tower and training school for firemen. Several Councilmen noted the location near a water supply would save a considerable amount of money and took the matter under advisement. Council also heard a report on speed limits on Shore Drive from the Norfolk City Limits.

to the west gate of Fort Story. Traffic Safety chief Reeves Johnson had recommended that the limit along the entire route be made 50 m.p.h. to do away with high and low limits which have created speed traps. Some Councilmen thought the proposed limit would be too high in some congested areas, and Scott said he would have those Councilmen meet with Johnson to discuss the matter. Johnson pointed out that safety along the route had been good and that only a relatively few accidents had occurred for such a busy road.

Speed limits along Laskin Road from the White Heron to Hilltop were also discussed. At least one Councilman thought the limit should be reduced to 45 from 55 m.p.h. Scott said he would have Johnson look into it.

Council then went into executive session to discuss acquisition of land and financial matters of the city from which the press was excluded. (See Stadium story.)

Next week in regular session Council will probably appoint members of the Virginia Beach Highway Safety Commission being created to meet requirements of the state, in addition the matter of opening a controversial alley between 51st and 52nd Streets behind Atlantic Avenue will also be discussed again. Part of the land involved is that of Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans.

Tidewater police officers give their close attention to new equipment designed to disperse a cloud of smoke or tear gas recently developed as a means of controlling rioters.

Kids Meet Turkeys; Turkeys Meet Kids

The day began with a lineup for busses - six busses, two cars and many many children.

The turkeys were just as curious as the kids.

Where do turkeys come from? From the grocery store, naturally. Thanks to one local kindergarten, several hundred Virginia Beach youngsters know better. Early Monday they boarded busses to visit the turkey farm owned by Cecil Flanagan of Pungo.

According to the principal of Sunnybrook School, this is not the first year the kids have visited the farm, and Sunnybrook is not the only school to do it, but they were the original school to do it.

Cries of "There's Tom Turkey," filled the air as many noses pushed against the wire fence for a closer look. And the turkeys on the other side looked just as interested in the children.

"He's the king," commented one small girl of the turkey with his tail feathers outspread. And he really was as he pranced up and down the fence gobbling at the children.

Only one disappointment in the venture—there weren't any turkey feathers for the kids to pick up.

"That's a turkey!"

Thanksgiving Services Planned

Evening Service Planned There will be a community Thanksgiving service for the Bay-side area Nov. 28 at 10 a.m. at Bay-side Presbyterian Church. Joining for the services are Bay-side Presbyterian, Bay-side Baptist, Bay-side Christian and Bay-lake Methodist Churches. Rev. Fletcher C. Hutcheson, pastor of Bay-side Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service, assisted by Rev. Alfred Stables of Bay-lake Methodist. Rev. Carl Martin from Bay-side Christian Church will bring the Thanksgiving message.

The offering taken at the service will go to the Bay-side branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library as it did last year. Everyone is invited to attend.

Bow Creek To Host Service

A Thanksgiving Eve Service will be held this year at Bow Creek Presbyterian Nov. 27, 7:30 p.m. This will be the fourth Union Service of the Churches in the immediate vicinity.

In the past the loose offering at this service has gone to projects and needs within our City. It was decided by the clergy this year to send the offering to assist in the Biafrican Starvation Problem.

Churches participating this year are Bow Creek Presbyterian Church, Plaza Baptist Church, Princess Anne Plaza Methodist Church, St. Francis Episcopal Church, St. Nicholas Roman Catholic Church, Lynnhaven Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Thomas Summers, Pastor of St. Nicholas Roman Catholic Church will conduct the service.

Bow Creek Presbyterian Church is located at Rosemont Road and Plaza Trail.

Foundry Hosts Holiday Service A community Union Thanksgiving Service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thanksgiving Day Nov. 28 at Foundry Methodist Church, 2801 Virginia Beach Blvd. The Rev. Stanton H. Sizemore of Kings Grant Presbyterian Church will deliver the sermon.

Library Exhibit Planned

The City of Virginia Beach Schools will hold a library book and materials exhibit at the Virginia Beach Civic Center on Tuesday, Dec. 3, from noon to 6 p.m., and on Dec. 4, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The purpose of the exhibit is to give to librarians and other educators an opportunity to examine library books and materials. Many publishing companies will display their newest materials and publications.

The public and educators from other school divisions are invited to examine the exhibit.

Does instant credit make saving obsolete?

Emphatically not.

The myth of credit card magic is rapidly helping to make thousands of Americans prisoners of their own finances.

Instant credit should be called by its equally accurate name, instant debt.

Regular saving is a necessity if you are going to feel secure, meet your obligations and enjoy the future.

Rev. Walsh Will Speak

At its regular Sunday Forum program on Nov. 24 at 3:30 p.m. the Association for Research and Enlightenment will present the Rev. Tracy F. Walsh, who will speak on "Edgar Cayce Readings as Related to the Teachings of the Church."

Mr. Walsh is a retired Episcopal rector recently come to Virginia Beach from the Eastern Shore of Maryland. He is widely known for his work with the Order of St. Luke, an international, interdenominational organization promoting spiritual healing.

A question period will follow the lecture, after which an informal coffee hour will take place. This event is open to the public. Further information may be obtained by calling the Association, located at 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Correspondent To Be Speaker

The Advertising Club of Tidewater Virginia will meet next Tuesday, Nov. 26 at the Admiralty Motel at 6 p.m.

President Dick Paul of WAVY-TV has announced that the guest speaker will be Sid Davis, White House correspondent for Group W, the Westinghouse Broadcasting Corporation. Davis' topic will be "The Strange Case of the Brown Shoes."

This newspaper is sent to the offices of physicians and dentists in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach as a courtesy of Wynne-Wright Motor Company, your Chrysler-Imperial Dealer.

The Future Is Bright

The future of Virginia Beach looks bright indeed. In a city that has seen its population mushroom and its number of homes spread from border to border in recent years, the announcement of a tremendous potential for industry is welcome news.

For some time the tax base, almost entirely revolving around the thriving resort industry and real estate taxes of the homeowner, has not been considered broad enough to meet imminent and future needs. Industry has always been considered the answer. But good land, moderately priced and well-placed has been a problem in the city.

Now the city has a magnificent 183 acres of excellent land for industry almost within its grasp. Only the technicality of approval by Penn-Central Railroad's board remains, and the city will have bought the prime industrial land at Little Creek at a reasonable price and can develop it in an orderly fashion.

Not only is it a fine port; but it is near all roads, rail lines and the airport. Already industry is more than mildly interested. The property could prove to be the beginning of a salvation for the city.

Ironically on the same day this announcement came, another major issue which has proved to be a thorny one in the past came a step closer to an equitable and workable solution. City Manager Roger Scott announced that the water contract between Norfolk and Virginia Beach had been extended while a fair and advantageous solution to both cities is being worked out.

Virginia Beach is coming into its own as a major force. Norfolk sees it. So do others. And the future seems to hold nothing but more growth and more even breaks.

No Quorum

An item went almost unnoticed recently that needs attention. The Virginia Beach Industrial Development Authority could not transact its business at a regular meeting because a quorum did not attend. And this is not the first time. Just the chairman and two others showed up. Now we have to do better than that or get a new commission for a city striving for new industry.

Riots? Where?

We take great exception to the argument used by insurance companies seeking a hike in our insurance rates. They are asking for more money on the basis that some heavily populated urban areas of Virginia are potential riot sites which will cause heavy losses to the companies in the event it ever happens.

First Virginia has an excellent history of no major problems along that line.

Secondly nothing of that sort is likely, and it is ridiculous of the companies to suggest it. Virginia Beach is included in the proposed riot-hike area. That is foolish. This city has never experienced any such problems and civil rights leaders agree this city has excellent racial relations. And we don't like the inference.

If the insurance companies want another hike, let them find a more sound reason.

Planning Ahead for Growth

The city has taken another giant step in its future planning by requiring the School Board, the City Planning Commission and builders of potential housing, townhouse and apartment complexes to furnish City Council all pertinent information on school location and enrollment problems.

There was no excuse in Council's being caught short and finding an $18.5 bond issue was necessary last January mostly for schools because so many new living units had been approved without regard to school conditions. The same thing was about to happen again when city officials finally put their heads together and came up with the new requirement.

The city should still welcome new building, but with a complete plan for all services needed. Growth is still mighty important to us, but by 1985, projections show we will triple our present 170,000 population. Without proper planning these tax-raising bond issues are going to become mighty tiresome. Certainly taxes will still have to be raised more, but our taxes are still relatively low when compared to other major growth areas. But at least with proper planning it can be a gradual rise, not one big one like we have just faced.

In addition the state planning district, which should include only Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach, is being discussed now.

Where Were You?

We have heard the complaint often that there is little to do in Virginia Beach during the off-season. But when name entertainment of top quality comes here, at considerable expense, the people just don't seem to care.

Less than 1,800 people went to the Dome during two shows recently to see and hear the fabulous internationally known Baja Marimba Band, and the advance publicity and advertising had been excellent.

This was good music and outstanding entertainment, and it was missed by most. Could this be why officials are somewhat loath to bring the best to us? The best costs money and needs and deserves support.

No Racetracks

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
As if liquor-by-the-drink in our city is not bad enough, you have the nerve just two days after the vote on that to suggest that Virginia Beach sink even further and become the home of a racetrack. (Editorial - "Now About Those Racetracks", Nov. 7, 1968).

I am not certain just what this world is coming to, but gambling and liquor are certainly not going to help. The family unit is already in enough trouble with such little respect for the marriage vows and moral laws. With temptations like racetracks and bars there is no telling what will become of our morals.

You are right in saying that liquor and racetracks will bring in more money, but do we really want that kind of money in our city? Perhaps we can do without some service to keep that element out.

Special Report

Trial Ballons Are Up

This is the time of the trial balloon. And at this time the trial balloon which would appear to be soaring the highest is that of First District Rep. Thomas N. Downing.

Following persistent reports that he would seek the Democratic nomination for governor of Virginia in the July primary, Downing finally acknowledged that his friends and supporters have finally made him think about it. Until this week he has said he would not run, wasn't interested, and was perfectly content to serve his constituents in Congress only.

But that was before he took a short vacation. When he returned he found a number of influential Democrats camped firmly in his corner and looking to him as the possible candidate who could rally the forces of many moderate and organization Democrats into a solid, unified front.

While a number of moderates are jumping on the surging "Battleground" of William Battle, many might jump off to support Downing. Those organization Democrats who belong more to the conservative camp find him more attractive than Battle, liberal-minded Henry Howell and Lt. Gov. Fred Pol-

You are also right when you say people don't have to frequent a racetrack, but it is better not to offer the temptation in the first place.

I hope you and so many others like you will consider the dangers before you recommend such doubtful pleasures for the city I love.

(Mrs.) Louise E. Perkins

Thanks

A Real Shock

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
Your editorial favoring the proposed liberalization of abortion laws in Virginia was a real shock to me. How can you possibly suggest the taking of a human life regardless of the circumstances?

I hope you also noticed that at the hearing in Richmond there were just as many against liberalizing the law as were for it. For one, hope the strict laws remain on the books, or we will be giving way to more permissiveness in our society.

I have signed my name to this letter, but if you print this I would appreciate it if you would just sign my name.

(Mrs.) B. M. Hanbury

Our moral and religious teachings show that abortions are wrong. I feel that I am a broad-minded person, but the fine Christian principles I have been taught all my life cannot forsake me in this matter.

I certainly hope you will reconsider your support of liberalizing the abortion laws.

Name Withheld

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:
I would like to commend you on your stand on abortion (Nov. 14, 1968). I agree 100 per cent that the present laws are too stringent. And I should know, because I speak from the voice of experience.

Several years ago it became necessary for the life of my unborn child to be terminated. I won't bother to go into the reasons now, but they were good and sufficient. Anyway, in order to go through with it, I had to travel to another state. This, on top of all the other trouble.

I would like to state that I am married, was married at the time of the abortion, and loose morals had nothing to do with the situation. I was also very lucky because I could afford the expense incurred.

So, again I would like to commend you for your courageous stand. I wish there were many others who felt the same as you.

I have signed my name to this letter, but if you print this I would appreciate it if you would just sign my name.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Now, eat your dinner," he said to the three-year old. "I don't think I can go through another meal telling you to eat every 15 seconds."

"But I don't feel good," she said with a tragic look on her face.

"What hurts?" he asked.

"My nose," she said. "It hurts on the end."

"I'm so sorry," he said. "But since you don't eat with your nose, it shouldn't bother you at all. Hold your breath and eat your green peas."

"My teeth hurt," she pointed out.

"Okay, eat the mashed potatoes," he said. "They're soft and won't hurt your teeth."

She took a bite, and swallowed with difficulty. "My throat hurts too."

"Drink some water, I'll feel better," she said.

"Now I have to go to the bathroom," she said with great urgency as soon as she put the water glass down.

"Go," he said. She went.

"Now, may I speak?" asked his wife. "I didn't want to interrupt that amazing conversation you were having with her."

"Of course," he said. "But make it brief. She'll be back in a minute, I hope."

"All right," she said. "Now you see what I go through at breakfast. That kid is fast. She's got an answer for everything. Just like her father."

Before he could answer that one, he was interrupted by the five-year-old.

"Look, Daddy," she said. "I've cleared my plate. I'm not like that little monkey."

"Little monkey? Where did you get that?" he asked her.

"That's what Mother calls her," she said. "And she is too."

"I am not," said the three-year-old, who came back struggling to get her long pants up. "Call me that again, and I'll hit you."

"Daddy, don't let her hit me."

"Just get back in that chair and eat your dinner," he said, as his wife laughed.

"It's cold," she said, as she tasted the meat. "I can't eat it."

"Perhaps that's because you spent too long in the john," he pointed out. "So eat your salad."

"I can't," she said. "My stomach hurts."

"It does not," he said. "Just your teeth, nose and throat."

"Yeah," she said with a big smile. "I forgot."

"All right, I've had it. Get down. You haven't eaten enough to keep a flea alive," he said.

"The flea bit me," she said. "My arm itches."

"Oh, for heaven's sake, go away."

"Don't I get any dessert?" she wanted to know.

"No, but your sister does. She ate her dinner," he said.

She stuck out her lip and forced out one tear. "All right, I'll eat."

"Oh, thank you for that personal favor," he said. She ate most of it.

"Now, we'll all have dessert," he said with satisfaction.

When it was all over and they had gone to play, his wife turned to him and said, "Congratulations, dear, you've done it again. You got her through another meal. It's always such an interesting thing . . . to watch you two fight the battle of wits. But somehow you win again over a three-year-old."

"Don't be so sarcastic," he said. "I always enjoy these quiet dinners at home."

Africa Is Popular New Trend

A young man with his fingers in several different pots is planning to open a shop in Virginia Beach which will, to say the least, be different.

W. K. Hammaker has just recently opened Africana, Ltd. on Boush Street in Norfolk. "We're planning to franchise in six to eight months if it goes as well as we expect," said Hammaker. "It's a trend, like Spanish. Of course we hope it will last."

As might be guessed from the name, the shop features wares from Africa. One room features African clothing which includes not only the traditional African styles but everything from pants suits to formal, Aseel room contains African art and hand

Show Winners Announced

Several Virginia Beach women were winners in the Marion Crosby Garden Club "Table Carrousel" flower show, whose theme centered around the color wheel, last weekend at the Botanical Gardens.

Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher won the Tri-Color Award for her violet table in the color wheel. She also received the Sweepstakes Award in Horticulture for the most blue ribbon specimens.

Mrs. Malcolm Todd, Jr. received a Special Award for her Educational Exhibit on effective lighting.

Mrs. Woodrow Dixon was awarded two blue ribbons: one for her Silver Anniversary Table and the other for her Yellow-green Breakfast Table in the color wheel.

Other winners included Mrs. Frank J. Lukach of Norfolk, president of the Tidewater District of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, who Sweepstakes runner-up and received the Award of Merit for the best Cultural Specimen. Mrs. E. P. Grigby of Norfolk received the Marion Crosby Award for her Valentine Chapel Table.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Saturday night at the Dome was the 18th year for the Virginia Beach Princess Anne Junior Woman's club Follies.

The Dome was packed and to my knowledge it was handled a little differently this year. Friday night, the first night of the Follies, it was theatre style. Saturday night was cabaret style with persons seated at tables which were reserved for the individual parties.

Johnnie Horne and his orchestra played for the dancing at the Dome before and after the follies. The follies started about 10 p.m. I talked with Mrs. Wiley Harrell, Jr., and it seems the follies did unusually well this year.

On entering the Dome some of the first people I caught as they were coming in were Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Ratble, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huerta, Mr. and Mrs. James Bernard, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Landrum and Cmdr. and Mrs. Robert Stanck.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kellam were in attendance to hear their daughter Mary Jo who sang two solos. Mary Jo has a beautiful voice and of course her being attractive always helps any young lady, I would add that it helps whether you are young or old.

Douglas Barnes getting to be a tradition with the follies, this year sang songs with a bear (a human bear that is). What a shame to put Charlie Cherry in a bear suit he is much too attractive a man to hide.

Mrs. Wiley Harrell, who was in charge of the program, stayed quite busy. In fact she had to come to our office so often during the printing of the program I asked her if she was now one of the employees.

Others attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Doug Festress, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barrer, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McLenny, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilson Nelliger, Miss Constanca Cafferata from London, Mr. and Mrs. David Looman, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Pickett, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Malbon, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. McConlogue, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph DeMarco, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dormire, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Stanton.

Mrs. Ralph DeMarco was quite attractively dressed in an aquamarine sheath dress with silver stripes around the neck of the dress forming the pattern of an eight in the front at the neck. Her shoes were silver and she wore drop ear rings to complete her outfit. Mrs. Tom Lukish was wearing a very attractive black crepe dress with shoe string straps, silver shoes, to match the largest silver buckle on the front of her dress. Being a blond always helps a lot when wearing black.

Others seen were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winfree, Mr. and Mrs. David Foxwell, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burlage and Mr. and Mrs. Don Burlage, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Gidley and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Groves. Buddy Dupree was most kind in helping me to obtain some of the names of those attending.

When the follies were over the cast and members of the club with their invited guests left for the Bow Creek Country Club for breakfast and dancing. You can bet after the show and the hard work they were all ready to eat. The breakfast menu consisted of scrambled eggs, sausage, hash brown potatoes, bacon, toast and coffee. I am sure that none of this crowd had a hard time falling asleep that night or should I say Sunday morning.

CHICKEN PARMESAN is a delicious way to impress the family—or the boss.

3 medium-sized chicken breasts cut in half
Grated Parmesan cheese for dredging
1 egg, beaten with 3 tsp. water
1 tsp. paprika
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 stick margarine
1/2 cup cooking sherry (optional)

Dip chicken pieces in egg; dredge with mixture of Parmesan cheese, paprika, salt and pepper. Melt margarine in skillet over medium heat. Cook chicken slowly until brown and tender (about 30 min.). Drain. If sherry is used, pour fat from skillet, replace chicken and pour sherry over it. Cover and simmer for 45 min. or until fork tender. Serves 6 moderate eaters.

Cost of ingredients: less than $3; cost of electricity: 1c. Chicken and electricity—an economical combination.

Synchronized Swimming Gains Popularity

By Yatta Jones

Did you know that we may be training a future Olympic winner right here at Virginia Beach? That future winner might very easily be a girl between the ages of seven and 17 on a synchronized swimming team.

The Sandpipers, a synchronized girl's swimming team, is one of two such teams in the area. The other team, the Barquettes, is a Norfolk-based team, sponsored by the Navy. The Sandpipers are sponsored by the YWCA of Virginia Beach. Both teams are Amateur Athletic Union Synchronized Swimming Competitive Teams. The AAU is the governing body for the Olympics.

Synchronized swimming is an extremely well-organized sport on the West coast. In fact, the girls' synchronized swimming team from Santa Clara, Calif., are the national champions. It is just beginning to take hold on the east coast, but there are competitions held locally, state-wide and regionally in addition to the Junior and Senior Nationals.

The Sandpipers have competed in local, tri-state, and regional competition. They placed third in the state and fourth in the regional competition in Pennsylvania this summer. Included in the competition are solos (for which the girls have to qualify), duets and teams.

The competition judging is exacting. In stunt and routine competition there are five stunts singly judged by seven judges. The stunts are listed in the AAU Handbook and must be performed as described in the book. The contestants are judged for control, body position smoothness, height, circles, tucks and pikes. Scoring is rated from 0-10.

There is a different score for each stunt, according to the stunt's degree of difficulty. In addition to the described stunts the girls include stunts they have made-up. The competition is similar to ice skating.

The girls are judged for synchronization with each other and the music, for construction difficulty, variety and action.

There are 24 girls in the Sandpiper group, divided into three teams—A, B and new girls. The Sandpipers were formed a year ago under the leadership of Mrs. Barbara Eaton, who is coach for the team.

Mrs. Eaton is a national judge, a position which requires time, energy and enthusiasm. She travels extensively to the national meets (at her own expense) to judge. In order to maintain her status as a national judge she has to periodically re-qualify for the position by taking written exams in addition to the actual judging. Her husband, John F. Eaton, is the national vice-chairman of the National AAU Synchronized Swimming Committee. Mrs. Eaton has traveled to Richmond, Baltimore and Pennsylvania with the Sandpipers.

Mrs. Eaton is happy with the development of the Sandpipers. She strongly feels that the aims, (See 'Swimmers' p. 10).

A Mod Time Was Had by All

The "action" was at the home of Mrs. James Hutchinson, first vice president, as the officers' department and committee chairmen of the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club entertained and educated new and prospective members at an orientation - Mod Party, Monday evening, Nov. 18.

Richard Johnson, home life; Mrs. Newton Dance, fine arts; Mrs. F. L. Hughes, public affairs and Mrs. Victor Similie, public welfare. Also committee chairman, Mrs. J. V. McCall, Jr., membership; Mrs. M. D. Brooks, social; Mrs. Fred Feller, education; Mrs. L. A. Wicks, community improvement, and Mrs. Joseph Watson, Photo Cardie Scan.

The structure of the district, state and national levels of the Federation of Women's Clubs was outlined. Emphasis was placed on the organization at the local level, the goals and work of the committees and departments within the Cavalier Club.

"Making the scene" were new members, Mrs. Francis D. Holladay, Jr., Mrs. Robert E. Philyaw, Mrs. H. Leon Ware, Jr., Mrs. Dennis B. Griffin, Mrs. Charles E. Ridenhour, Mrs. Jack A. Savage, Mrs. Thomas F. Coyne, Jr. A prospective member attending was Mrs. James Parker.

Assisting were Mrs. William B. Jones, 2nd vice president; and department chairman, Mrs. Robert M. McCall.

Bazaar Keeps Flavor

Old Donation Episcopal Church will hold its annual Oyster Roast and Christmas Bazaar Nov. 23, beginning at 11 a.m.

Formerly called the Oyster Roast and Country Fair, this Bazaar is probably one of the oldest in the area. The first one was held 33 years ago. The women of Old Donation take special pride in preserving an old-time country flavor for the Bazaar.

One of their booths, the Baked and Freezer booth, has all items made from "scratch". Other booths at the Bazaar are Pickles and Preserves, Dried Flowers and Plants, Needlework and White Elephants.

The luncheon menu will feature oysters—raw and roasted, Smithfield ham, sandwiches, celery, bread and butter pickles, apple pie and coffee. There will also be an oyster bar outdoors where people may be served.

An interesting feature of the Bazaar is the pony rides, which will be run by the Episcopal Young Churchmen. This was a successful event last year and the church youth are sponsoring it again. The young people are also going to act as waitresses and bus-boys.

Old Donation Church dates from the early 1600's. The annual Bazaar is a tradition with devotees who come as far away as Suffolk and North Carolina to attend the event.

Bazaar Is Fri., Sat.

Scott Memorial United Methodist Church at 409 First Colonial Road will open its two-day bazaar at 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22.

Hours will be 4 to 9 p.m. on Friday and 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday with dinner beginning at 4.

In addition to the barbecue dinner on Friday and the ham, turkey or oyster dinners on Saturday, there will be a snack shop featuring hamburgers, hot dogs, etc. from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Proceeds from the bazaar will go toward the installation of a divided Chancel and restroom facilities and enlargement of the church kitchen.

Among the many "shops" at the bazaar will be Fantasyland, featuring dolls, stuffed toys and doll furniture, Christmas Shop, Williamsburg Shop, Country Store and Bake Shop.

Somebody Pass The Bologna

After eight years of carrying sandwiches to work for lunch, my husband is dissatisfied. He's tired of taking the same thing every day. I pointed out to him, to no avail, that his eldest daughter and I eat the same thing for lunch every day that he does.

It all started when the seven-year-old let slip the fact that she had liked her lunch one day last week. That particular day I had jazzed up her menu and mine by fixing cream cheese and date spread. Frankly, I didn't think her father would care too much for that.

His feelings were hurt. I had some left over so I fixed his sandwiches with it the next day. That night he came home and said he didn't care what I fixed just so it wasn't date again.

So over the weekend I got ambitious and made a loaf of bread using creamy peanut butter. Then I made peanut butter and sliced banana sandwiches. Everybody was happy for a change.

My husband said two of the women in his office wanted samples, and he wouldn't let them have more than a taste.

Now what do I do for an encore? There's just so much you can do with a sandwich. Worse yet, the other two kids are demanding equal rights.

Her Home Centers Around Kitchen

By Carolyn McAllen

A visitor could spend a whole day just looking at Rose Webber's kitchen.

It is almost a home within itself, lacking only sleeping space. At one end of the large room is a fireplace with raised hearth. In front of it are a love seat and several chairs. Besides the usual kitchen equipment, the room also has an antique table and chairs and a meal chopping block used as a work table. "I don't know how I ever got along before I got the chopping block" says Mrs. Webber.

On the walls are hung a vast assortment of antique kitchen utensils including, besides some of the more familiar items, a cigar mold, cookie mold (not a cutter), a ceramic rolling pin, two organ tuners, and one thing she had some trouble identifying at first—a pick to remove doughnuts from hot fat when frying.

On one wall is a telephone that is one of the earliest models. "You can tell because the wires are exposed on the receiver," explained Mrs. Webber. "People could get shocked if they touched them. Later models had the wires covered."

Inside the phone is Mrs. Webber's real telephone. "It really confuses people who ask to use my phone and I tell them it's over there on the wall."

On her mantel is her collection of antique potato mashers and butter presses. "I travel a lot," said Mrs. Webber about the origin of her many pieces. "I get most of them from flea markets in New Hampshire."

Mrs. Webber's home is one of two which will be open for the Cape Henry Woman's Club annual Christmas in the Country tour on Dec. 4. The second home is owned by her next door neighbor, Mrs. E. G. Powell. Also included will be Santa's kitchen (Mrs. Webber will be Mrs. Santa) where all types of goodies will be for sale.

Six years ago, Mrs. Webber's house was the original Christmas in the Country home. "I was ways and means chairman at the time, and we just wanted to do something different," she said. "A couple of friends suggested it."

Mrs. Webber has been told that her home on Oak Lynn Path, just off Little Haven Road near Rind's, is over 100 years old. "But I don't think it's but about 75," she said.

She and her husband, George, have lived there 13 years since his retirement from the Navy. Originally from Oregon, the Webbers were childhood sweethearts and have now been married 36 years. "We went back to Oregon when George retired. We stayed a week and came back here. You lose touch," she said. "We were real happy right here where we were."

In one window Mrs. Webber has shelves filled with brightly colored Victorian holders. They are glass and have candles inside. In Victorian times the holders were tied to branches of Christmas trees much as people use colored electric lights today.

In her utility room is Mrs. Webber's collection of flat irons. They range from tiny ones for small corners to very large and rather clumsy ones. Some were warmed directly on a stove or fire. Others were heated by charcoal, kerosene and alcohol. One unusual one is narrow and was used to press seams flat. Other irons were used to press material. Several are imported.

Along the walls of the bathroom hang Mrs. Webber's button books. These range in size from a few inches to about two feet in length. Some are quite fancy, some of heavily decorated silver. Others are pewter or with plain handles. Several fold.

Mrs. Webber was formerly assistant director of nursing services at DePaul Hospital. Then she was adult program director of the YWCA. In 1965 she was named Woman of the Year for Cape Henry Woman's Club. She stays in condition by jogging, and she likes to knit, garden, sew and refinish furniture. "I just enjoy my friends," she said. Among the family friends are two dogs and two tailless cats.

Tickets for Christmas in the Country are available from all club members and will be on sale the day of the tour. A $1 donation is asked. The tour will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For the sake of feet and floors, ladies are asked to wear low heels.

Mrs. Richard L. Counselman is chairman of Christmas in the Country. Mrs. Webber, Mrs. H. O. Freeman, Mrs. Herman Bonney and Mrs. Powell are in charge of decorations; Mrs. M. M. Bateman and Mrs. C. Earl Evans, tickets; Mrs. B. Noel Fallwell and Mrs. A. J. Chewing III, refreshments; and Mrs. Ralph Hoskins, hostesses.

Oak Lynn Path is reached from Little Neck Road past Kings Grant and Kingston. Turn right at Little Haven Road, and follow it to Oak Lynn Path. There will be signs.

Stuffing Makes the Difference

Thanks to the turkey, Thanksgiving Day dinner has a popular, built-in main dish. But the difference between a mediocre turkey and an exceptional one often lies in its stuffing. There's where your originality comes in.

Our brown bird is filled with a bread stuffing mix enhanced by pieces of prune, crunchy walnut and coffee. Coffee in the stuffing? Yes, indeed. You'll find that coffee is the kind of subtle ingredient that isn't obvious when it's there, though you do know when it's missing. In fact, for added color and flavor put a little coffee in the giblet gravy.

Accessories for the well-dressed turkey should include fresh, tangy cranberry sauce, a green vegetable and sweet potatoes or yams. Coffee, freshly-brewed and steaming, should turn up once again in the Thanksgiving dinner, this time in a fine china cup next to a dessert of mince or pumpkin pie.

COFFEE WALNUT PRUNE STUFFING

1 c. water
1 c. strong coffee beverage
1 c. butter or margarine
2 pkgs. (8 oz. each) bread stuffing mix
1 c. snipped, pitted prunes
1 c. broken walnuts
1 tbl. dried parsley flakes
1 tbl. savory

Combine water and coffee in saucepan; add butter; heat until butter melts. Add stuffing mix; toss lightly. Stir in prunes, walnuts, parsley flakes and savory. Makes enough stuffing for a 12 to 15 lb. turkey.

Note: To add subtle flavor and rich color to turkey gravy substitute strong coffee beverage for part of the water. For example, for 4 cups of gravy use 3 1/2 cups water and 1/2 cup coffee. After the gravy is made, stir in the chopped giblets.

The stuffing is the difference between turkey and TURKEY.

Insurance Women Check Belts

The Insurance Women of Virginia Beach conducted a "Fasten Your Seat Belt" Campaign Saturday, Nov. 16 on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Mrs. Barbara Coleman and Mrs. Carol Boemig, Co-chairman of the Safety Committee, announced that through the mediums of radio, television and newspapers the public had been urged to fasten seat belts regardless of the length of the trip planned. Members of the club were stationed at the main toll station on the Expressway. Stickers were passed out to motorists as they paid their toll which said "For Your Protection Fasten Your Seat Belt". These stickers were furnished by the Virginia Association of Independent Agents.

It was a cold and rainy Saturday morning when the Insurance Women of Virginia Beach conducted their "Fasten Your Seat Belt" along the Expressway. Mrs. Martha Spain, driver, talks with Mrs. Barbara Coleman, chairman of the safety committee, and Mrs. Carol Boemig.

The regular monthly meeting of the club was held Nov. 19 at the Bay Harbor Club. Speaker for the evening was Dave Wilson, of the Virginia Stock Agents Club, who spoke on the educational opportunities available for women in the insurance field.

Mrs. Frances B. Chisholm, president of the Virginia Beach Women, announced that membership had grown steadily and the total national membership is now 15,000.

State Pres. Is Speaker

Mrs. Lucius J. Kellam, president of The Garden Club of Virginia, spoke to members of The Virginia Beach Garden Club and The Princess Anne Garden Club Wednesday, Nov. 20 at the Princess Anne Country Club.

Mrs. Kellam spoke on "The Garden Club of Virginia and What It Means to You." The Princess Anne Garden Club members were guests of The Virginia Beach Garden Club. Both are members of The Garden Club of Virginia. Each April The Garden Club of Virginia sponsors Historical Garden Week in Virginia, during which time houses and gardens throughout the state are opened to the public, and the proceeds go to restore Virginia's historical buildings.

VPI Co-op Ext. Service

Now that the planting season is back upon us, many of us have certain locations in our landscapes that need special attention. Quite often, these locations are shady nooks, windwept corners, or just brilliant open areas where specialized materials would need to be utilized.

As an example of some of the plants that can be utilized in a shady situation, let me suggest the Japanese andromeda (Pieris), Acuta, boxwood barberry, camellia, Japanese holly, American holly, Pittosporum, rhododendron, and Ligustrum. There are many others that perform remarkably well in shady locations. Azaleas, which are grown in tremendous numbers in this area is one; Oregon hollyhedge (Mahonia), Osmanthus and Chinese holly are others.

Before planting shrubs or trees in an area that is questionable as to its suitability for the desired plant material, be sure to check a garden encyclopedia to see if the plant you wish would possibly fulfill your desire in that particular spot.

Del. Walker speaks to the Cape Henry Woman's Club as Crusier, seated left, and Brickell look over their notes.

Juvenile Crime Reflects Society

Three men who are familiar with juveniles and their problems told members of the Cape Henry Woman's Club last week that the behavior of children today is a reflection of the society in which they live.

The panel consisted of Del. Stanley Walker, chairman of the Virginia state crime commission; Larry Crusier, case worker supervisor for the Virginia Beach juvenile probation department, and E. E. Brickell, superintendent of schools. They were asked to speak, not only for the information of the women present, but because the club would like to adopt a project which would help fight juvenile crime.

Walker pointed out that jails are not the place for juveniles to await trial because they are "too often put in with hardened adult criminals."

He said the state crime commission has discovered that one of the major problems is lack of probation officers. He said that the state has made great efforts in raising the educational standards but is still behind in its efforts. "We know where we rank in the country, and we know how much more we have to do. A child who gets into trouble is like a ping pong ball bounced back and forth," he also said there are not enough full time juvenile judges.

In the ways of progress he pointed to the raising of teachers' salaries, public school kindergartens and community colleges. "But this," Walker said, "is to no avail if our children are raised to fear to walk down the streets at night."

Brickell said that "everything we do in the schools is toward one goal - to build responsible citizens." He said that units of study from first grade on are oriented toward different aspects of respect for the law.

He added that the schools encourage dissent among students but try to channel it along the proper boundaries.

"A responsible citizen must get himself ready to take his place in a responsible and respectful society," said Brickell.

Crusier said that the majority of the children with which he deals are between the ages of nine and 12. Many are referred by the schools and never appear before a judge. "The child is usually in a state of conflict within himself and the rest of the world," said Crusier. "We try to bring about communication between the child and his parents."

One of his department's problems is keeping qualified probation officers because of low salaries. "We could double our staff and still not do the work we feel should be done. The general public doesn't recognize the need, it's not just a local problem; it's a statewide problem."

Lake Shores

The Lake Shores Garden Club met on Nov. 11, at the home of Mrs. C. G. Clough. A program on "Madonnas", a most appropriate Christmas symbol, was given by Mrs. R. C. Dunaja, a charter member of the club.

Plans were also made for the annual wreath workshop to be held on Wednesday, Dec. 18 at the home of Mrs. T. E. Beale. Residents of Lake Shores who may be interested in purchasing one of the wreaths are asked to contact Mrs. A. C. Mays.

The Club's traditional Christmas Party will be held this year on Dec. 9 at the home of Mrs. Beale.

Blue Ribbons for arrangements ments were won this month by Mrs. R. C. Dunaja, Mrs. M. D. Adams, Mrs. R. J. Lancaster and Mrs. W. A. George. Awards for horticultural specimens were awarded to Mrs. D. L. Lagana, Mrs. C. M. Bugel, Mrs. G. A. Dowling, Mrs. Mays, Mrs. G. A. Safarino, Mrs. R. J. Lancaster and Mrs. Dunaja.

May Farm

May Farm Garden Club had a program on "Christmas" at their November meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Robert J. Beard. Mrs. B. T. Thompson was co-hostess.

Mrs. C. L. Hershberger Sr. was the speaker. Christmas is a symbol of Christianity whose meaning Mrs. Hershberger explained to club members. She had made a collection of them which she cut from styrofoam meat trays and decorated.

The club will have a Christmas party rather than a regular program at its December meeting. Gift packages will be judged.

Kingston Garden Club judged the arrangements for November. Blue ribbons for arrangements were won by Mrs. Robert Hardesty, Mrs. R. F. Weaver, Mrs. J. C. Chisholm and Mrs. John C. Brevington. Horticulture blue ribbons went to Mrs. J. H. Costenbader, Mrs. Hardesty and Mrs. Weaver.

Theta Alumnae Meet Tonight

The alumnae club of Kappa Alpha Theta of the Tidewater District will meet Thursday, Nov. 21 at the home of Mrs. William Wengert, 461 Bethune Dr., at 8 p.m.

Mrs. J. R. Tarbutton, President, is moving into Washington D. C., and Mrs. T. M. Buell has consented to take over Mrs. Tarbutton's unexpired term.

purposes and benefits of the organization, are worthwhile. She lists some of those benefits as developing a sense of sportsmanship, poise and gracefulness, a feeling and small knowledge of music and a keen interest in a wholesome activity.

Mrs. Eaton feels that synchronization is a winning development. The figure even more so than speed swimming. She also feels that it takes an intelligent girl to be a synchronized swimmer. A sheet, listing the stunts, is handed to the judges before each competition. The girls have to follow the sheet exactly or suffer penalties.

Most of the Sandpipers are above average students. Besides having to possess a learning capacity, the girls have to be able to budget their time since so much practice is involved in synchronization swimming.

The Sandpipers meet at The Cavalier pool on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30-6:30 p.m. for practice during the fall, winter and spring months. During the summer they meet every day. They anticipate a problem right now because The Cavalier pool will be closed for several months and they will have no place to practice.

Practice is vital to a synchronized swimmer. According to Mrs. Eaton it takes a minimum of three years to develop a good synchronized swimmer and a minimum of five years for a national competitor.

Choreography of the swim routines takes about four hours per routine. Choosing the music and taping it takes approximately three hours per routine. Training the girls takes from one month to one year each. Even though experienced girls help the coach with the choreography, it is still a time-consuming effort.

Libraries Name Winners

The Virginia Beach Public Library System sponsored an Art Contest to commemorate National Children's Book Week which began Nov. 17 and ends Nov. 23.

Each library in the system awarded a first prize, an art book, to the contest winner, and the drawings which received honorable mention plus the winning drawing are on display this week in the respective libraries.

The contest winner from the Bayside Library was; first prize Diane Gilbert, a 5th grader from Bayside Elementary School, with her drawing of "Little Lost Kitten" - the runners-up were Barbara Vongworth, Bobbie St. Claire, Jodie Dalsell, Mike Barlow, Cathie Barnett and Diane Lovitt.

At the 22nd Street Branch, the first prize was awarded to Kent Algire, a 7th grader from Everett School, and the runners-up were Dorothy Walker, Kathy Cotton, Jane Carpenter, Lisa Altee, Scott Visser, Laura Lee Visser and Patricia Miller.

The winner from Windsor Woods Library was Keith Johnson, a 7th grader, with his drawing of Albert Schweitzer - runners-up were Dale King, Liz Pfeiffer, Andrea Vincent, Jean Tomaro, Jackie Flor, and Nickie Bagliore.

The contest was considered a success as approximately 450 entries were received.

Up to this point the Sandpipers have had no financial backing. Their parents make their costumes, and they borrow the intricate sound equipment necessary for their use. (Mrs. Eaton got an underwater speaker for her birthday, so the girls now have this very valuable piece of equipment available to them.)

The girls wear tank suits for comfort and net hats to facilitate hearing the music from the pool. They also wear noseclips, since they are frequently upside down in the water.

Chuck Connely and Donna Spruill, Kellam High School students, who have been chosen as participants in the Optimist International Outstanding Boy and Girl Contest.

Foreign Policy Discussed

There will be a Regional Foreign Policy Conference today at Virginia Wesleyan College. The conference, which is sponsored by the college and the U. S. Department of State, will begin at 1:15 p.m.

Registrations from over 300 college students have been received at Virginia Wesleyan.

The chapel of Kings Grant Presbyterian Church was dedicated Sunday to the memory of the late Rev. Raymond Cole Flittton, first pastor of the church, on the fifth anniversary of the church.

Although the congregation first met more than seven years ago, the church was formally organized in 1963. Services were first held in the chapel in 1965.

Mrs. Flittton and two of his brothers and several other relatives were present at the service. One brother, the Rev. Herbert H. Flittton of Willow-Wood Presbyterian Church in Norfolk, took part in the service with the Rev. Stanton H. Slezmore, pastor of the church.

Breeden Wins Company Award

Virginia Beach Life Insurance executive Ray L. Breeden, Jr., 4000 E. 10th St., New York's "Quota Buster" award, the company reported today.

Breeden is manager of the company's Norfolk agency which has reached its 1968 sales quota.

These students are from 27 colleges and universities in Virginia and eastern North Carolina.

Scheduled for the program are four addresses by senior State Department officials. The speakers will cover current internal questions. The major address will be given at 4 p.m. by Parker T. Hart, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs. Hart's topic is "Problems of the Middle East."

This student conference is being held in conjunction with a larger adult foreign policy conference, scheduled for tomorrow, Nov. 22. This conference will be held at Lake Taylor High School at 9:30 a.m. and later at the Lake Wright Wright Motel.

Witnesses Will Have Seminar

Jehovah's Witnesses will conduct a fall training seminar Nov. 22-24 at the Civic Center. The seminar will be led by Peter D'Mara, a district instructor for the Witnesses New York headquarters and Grant Keen, circuit supervisor for eastern Virginia and North Carolina. Local ministers will also be included on the program. All sessions of the three-day meeting are open to the public.

Rev. Flittton was pastor of the church from 1961 until his death in 1967. Before that he was pastor of Lynnhaven Presbyterian Church for 10 years. A bronze plaque will be placed in the narthex of the church.

Audit Completed; Assets Equal Debts

City Council received its audit of the city accounts for the fiscal year ending June 30 at its Monday meeting and heard Leon Hodges of the A. Lee Rawlings Co., which prepared the audit, compliment city employees for their cooperation and their manner of keeping good records.

The audit showed all assets of the city balanced to the liabilities. The total figure was $54,928,448. The unappropriated surplus held by the city increased by $859,306.43 during the fiscal year to a total of $2,331,630.06.

The increase in surplus came mostly from more revenue that had been estimated from General sales taxes and real estate taxes. A larger percentage of taxes were collected than had been expected and the rise in the levy in July brought in other additional funds. The general improved condition of business in the city was reflected in the increased sales tax total.

In other categories, however, revenue estimates were generally too low and had to be offset by the sales and real estate taxes. A reassessment recently finished on old property in the city is expected to yield an even greater real estate tax next year.

City Council also made the long awaited appointments to the newly formed Virginia Beach Highway Safety Commission, which must present an outline of its plans to Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. by the first of the year. The commission will meet shortly to elect a chairman.

Appointed for three years were Roy Alpin of Alpin Motors and Reeves E. Johnson, chief of the city's traffic safety bureau. Appointed for two years were E. W. Timmons, director of traffic safety of the Tidewater Automobile Association, and E. E. Brickell, city superintendent of schools. Dr. Robert Wadell, president of the Virginia Beach Safety Council, and police Sgt. Kenneth Belangia were appointed for one-year terms, and Councilman Lawrence E. Marshall was appointed as Council's representatives for as long as he serves on Council.

In addition Council also appointed Herbert L. Smith, Mrs. Louisa Venable Kyle and Col. Edmund Ruffin, Jr. to the newly formed Historical Review Board, which will assist the planning commission in the study and presentation of cultural and historic landmarks in the city.

The usual 75 per cent quota of residents of a given neighborhood who must sign petitions for sewers to be installed was suspended Monday for the Diamond Springs-Shoreline Estates area, because of septic tank problems.

About 70 per cent of the residents have sought the sewer system because half the residents of the area have had trouble or are having trouble with septic tanks. This has been called a health hazard by the city health department. A spokesman said 75 per cent will have signed by the time the work is started. Planning begins immediately.

A resolution was passed authorizing the sale of $2 million in non-referendum public improvement bonds on Dec. 16. They must be sold by the end of the year.

Council also appropriated $39,700 for a new fire engine for the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Department that was approved earlier but held up for rebidding. The earlier bid, which did not meet city Councilman George Ferrell points to the wide open spaces of Green Run Farm where the Virginia Beach community college will be built.

1971 Is Earliest Date for College

While no one knows for sure, the earliest a college could possibly begin operation in Virginia Beach would seem to be in the fall of 1971.

The two-year college will be built on Green Run Farm, purchased by the City of Virginia Beach from the City of Norfolk. The State Board for Community Colleges announced acceptance of that location a week ago. The property contains about 600 acres, part of which have already been spoken for.

The Virginia Beach vocational-technical high school will be built on one part of the property, and recently it was announced that about 25 acres would be used as a "miniature Redwing Park." Now that 100 acres have been earmarked for the community college, still about 400 acres are left with no designated use.

The 100-acre site for the community college has not been exactly located, but Councilman George Ferrell, who headed a special Council committee working for the community college, said it will probably be located on the north side of Princess Anne Road. The Green Run Farm property lies on both sides of the main thoroughfare near city hall. Ferrell said in discussing the matter with City Planning director Patrick Standing, they felt it would best be located somewhere near the extension of Independence Blvd. planned to pass through the property at the extreme north end.

Ferrell added, however, that state officials had noted they would work with city officials to determine the best spot on the desirable property.

Money for a number of community colleges was approved in the recent statewide $81 million bond issue, and funds for individual institutions will be doled out during the special session of the Virginia General Assembly expected to be called next February or March. It is not clear, however, exactly which schools will be planned for during the current biennium.

The State Dept. of Community Colleges was expected to announce this week which schools would be begun between 1968 and 1970, and there was a good chance Virginia Beach, because of the need, would be on that list.

Even if the money is appropriated and earmarked for the Virginia Beach facility next spring, it is doubtful that planning and preliminary work could be accomplished any sooner than by fall of 1969 with the start of construction shortly thereafter. Considering the a-

Downing Closes Door — Almost

Congressman Thomas N. Downing has now closed the door that he opened less than ten days ago. Whether it is entirely closed or still slightly ajar is open to speculation, following his statement, issued from his Washington office yesterday afternoon.

While the First District Representative said in his statement that he had decided not to enter the Democratic gubernatorial primary "at this time," he more indicated than said this may not be a final decision.

After he was re-elected to Congress on Nov. 5, Downing received strong urging to join the race for the state capitol, and said he would let his decision be known within ten days.

As good as his word, that decision came in eight days. Downing said earlier he thanked all those who had encouraged him to run and noted he had received an almost endless number of calls, letters and telegrams from all over the state on the matter. While he said he found he had much support, he added that a number of persons also encouraged him to remain where he is.

Downing has always said that he enjoys his work in the Congress and did not aspire to any other office. He said that often during his recent campaign. But later he pointed out that he considered it his duty to consider the wishes of the people. And that he did, before making his decision not to throw his political hat in the ring.

The text of Downing's Tuesday statement is as follows: "To be asked by many friends and Virginians who were previously unknown to me to become the candidate for Governor is one of the highest honors that has ever been paid me. This expression of confidence has prompted the most serious searching of heart, mind and soul that a man can give.

"My only desire is to serve the people of Virginia when and Downing where they want me to serve and when and where they feel I can serve them best. This call I shall always try to heed.

"The citizens of First District have just re-elected me to the Congress and this necessarily has been a major fac-

Attendance Is Problem For VBIDA

For the second time this year the City of Virginia Beach's Industrial Development Authority was not able to conduct its regular business in a meeting because a quorum was not present.

The November meeting, scheduled two weeks ago, saw only three members present. In attendance were the director, the commission, L. Dean Curtis, and the same thing happened in June.

In July Curtis was ill, and four commissioners showed up. But there are seven commissioners and Curtis who make up the Authority. Not one has attended all 11 meetings this year. The commission chairman, Frank W. Kellam, Sr., and George A. Woody have the best records. They have only missed one monthly meeting. Kellam was absent in May for the first time in four years.

Alfred W. Craft, Jr. has missed two, as has Curtis. Curtis was on vacation during one of the meetings, and ill during the other one. He has missed only three in four years.

But from there on the records get worse. James B. Sadler and Lewis D. Thurston have missed four. Kenneth E. Todd has missed six and the commission's vice chairman, George J. Parker has missed seven of the 11 meetings. Those absent at the November meeting where no quorum caused the meeting to be suspended were Parker, Land, Woody and Thurston. In June, when there was also no quorum, Parker, Land, Sadler and Thurston were absent. Parker, Land and Sadler were also missing in July.

In 1967 a quorum attended every meeting, but twice only one more than was needed was there. The attendance records were a little better, however. Kellam attended all 12 meetings, as did Woody. Curtis attended 11, Craft, Land and Sadler were there for nine meetings. Thurston attended eight, but Parker only attended six.

During 1966, twice there was no quorum and once no meeting was scheduled. Curtis and Kellam were at all meetings. During that year Parker, Thurston and Sadler only attended six, while Craft and Land attended seven. At the May meeting of that year, Curtis and Kellam attended all alone.

Twice in 1965 no meeting was scheduled, and during four months no quorum attended; therefore for half the year no business of the commission was transacted. Only Kellam and Curtis attended all the meetings. Land was there for two and Parker for three. Carter, who preceded Woody, attended five, did Craft. Sadler attended six and Thurston seven.

Only twice since January 1965 have all members of the commission been present in June 1967 and in April 1968.

in my deliberations. My first obligation is to the First District unless there is a clear call from the people across Virginia, including the First District, for service in a broader capacity.

"In my judgement there is no reason for me to seek another office at this time. There are three announced candidates in the field now and there probably will be others. I believe that all Virginians, and I am among them, will want to know the identity of all who intend to seek the nomination and something of their views before making commitments.

"This is the most important election facing Virginia in many years and the right selection of the right candidate is and shall be of major concern to all of us. If the programs of the present administration are to be continued."

The Downing candidacy was hoped for by a number of organization Democrats who feel that the Congressman's youth and moderate-conservative philosophy are what they are looking for. They have not been over zealous concerning the candidacy of organization stalwart Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard.

Reportedly they felt that Downing would be acceptable to all factions of the Democratic party in the state. Downing is also considered a good platform speaker and a known hard campaigner. He was recently re-elected by more votes than other Congressman in the state.

If Downing truly does not run, the door may open again to Virginia Polytechnic Institute President Dr. T. Marshall Hahn, Jr., also considered an able administrator and a good platform speaker. His candidacy may yet come as the organization attempts to close the ranks. He has said he will let his decision be known shortly. It may come sooner now with the Downing announcement out of the way.

Some sources say there still may be another "dark horse" coming into the race later. Meanwhile, William Battle, Henry Howell and Pollard have lost one opponent they called a formidable one, with the Downing announcement.

In Virginia Beach two more City Councilmen who reportedly supported Downing in his recent bid for re-election have announced their support of Battle, Kenneth Whitehurst, Sr. and Earl Tebault joined others who have previously announced they back Battle. A number of those who have been associated with long-time political leader Sidney S. Kellam have announced their support of Battle also. Kellam has made no public announcement of his support of any candidate so far. He is not expected to do so in the near future.

Kellam Heads TVDC

rector L. Dean Curtis; Kellam, the city's financial advisor Lawrence B. Wailes, Jr.; Denyes; Lewis L. Dillon; George G. Phillips, Sr.; and Eldridge H. Whitehurst.

Duckworth, in his annual report pointed out that 1968 has been a good year for the organization and for industry and that 1969 appears to hold an even brighter outlook.

Kellam

All other officers were also re-elected. The vice chairman is Robert C. Ray; Shirley T. Holland is vice-president; Albert C. Bantist is secretary; V. H. Nubbaum, Jr. is assistant secretary; Edwin W. Chittum is treasurer; Heyward T. Denyes is assistant treasurer; and Thomas H. Wilcox, Jr. is general counsel. All officers serve without pay.

W. Fred Duckworth is president and general manager of the organization which works for the betterment of the greater Tidewater area and encourages industry to come to the area.

The Virginia Beach trustees, also elected at the meeting are: Mayor Frank A. Muech, City Manager Roger M. Scott, Industrial Development Authority director L. Dean Curtis; Kellam, the city's financial advisor Lawrence B. Wailes, Jr.; Denyes; Lewis L. Dillon; George G. Phillips, Sr.; and Eldridge H. Whitehurst.

Duckworth, in his annual report pointed out that 1968 has been a good year for the organization and for industry and that 1969 appears to hold an even brighter outlook.

He mentioned particularly the acquisition of the 183 acres of prime industrial property acquired tentatively by the city of Virginia Beach from Penn-Central Railroad. Final approval of acquisition of that property is expected today at a meeting of the board of directors of the railroad. Settlement date is set at Dec. 16, pending completion of the survey now underway by Frank D. Tarrell, and Associates. Development of the acreage is expected to follow shortly. A number of industrial firms have already noted their strong interest in locating there.

Duckworth also discussed expansion of four major plants in Tidewater, the decrease of industrial rates, the active money market and a general increase in business.

He said TVDC's advertising program, while successful in the past, will be increased in 1969 and predicted an upswing in port activity in the coming year.

TVDC is made up of the cities and towns of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Virginia Beach, Suffolk, Franklin, York, Smithfield, Old Courthouse, Ivory, Wakefield and Windsor and the county of Nansemond. Dues are paid by all localities for TVDC services. The Virginia Beach share is about $120,000.

'Evans Alley' Saga Continues

While Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans has made it clear that he is appearing before City Council as a private citizen and not in his official capacity, the matter of opening an alley which would come within two feet of his house has privately become known as the "Saga of Evans Alley."

Apparently the opening of a 20-foot alley between 51st and 52nd Streets just off Atlantic Avenue is becoming an entirely personal minor neighborhood feud. Part of the residents want it opened. Part do not. The others don't care. Those that feel one way or the other feel quite strongly, and the matter has been the subject of a number of Council sessions. Those that want it opened say they need it for city services and have put up the money for the improvement of the land used by the others.

Those who don't want it opened, including private citizen Evans, feel it will cause serious damage to their property.

In Evans' case it would take part of his shrubbed and graded driveway, as well as pass very near his house.

While City Council tried to reach a compromise before, one was apparently impossible. Yesterday a resolution was passed to open the alley. But the resolution calls for Public Works director Charles Kiley to assess damages, if any. If the damages are set too high, Council may withdraw on that basis. After Kiley notifies the property owners of his findings they have ten days to appeal the decision and may take it to court. The matter is expected to come to court eventually anyway, and City Council is now following the letter of the law.

While the case was again argued Monday in Council chambers, including a slide show by Evans, the resolution was still passed. Another open argument may be heard in Council chambers when the damages are announced. The final chapter in the "Saga of Evans Alley" has yet to be written, in any event.

In other property matters Monday Council approved a 54-hole miniature golf course at the intersection of Broad Street and Horace Avenue in the Aragona Village area. The three Putt-Putt courses will hopefully be used next year for a miniature golf tournament that has a $15,000 grand prize, according to company spokesmen.

Shell Oil Co. was also allowed to rebuild a ranch style gas station at Pleasure House Road and Shore Drive and a use permit was granted for a used car lot at Highway Lane and Virginia Beach Blvd.

Readers Favor Land Donation

Looks like our readers have definite opinions on this one, not only general opinions. The question in last week's SUN SURVEY was, "Should developers of apartment, townhouse or single family-housing in Virginia Beach be required either to donate to the city land for recreational use or set such land aside for sale to the city at a minimal cost?"

A total of 97 per cent of those who replied said, "Yes," while only three per cent said "No." But several crossed out the part about selling recreational property leaving only the section concerning donation. They noted their affirmative vote. One placed a large exclamation point after his "Yes."

Another, while approving, added that developers should also "plant trees to replace those cut down to clear the land for construction."

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the entire thinking of the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent the thinking of a cross section of the people who took time to clip the survey out and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week. Future surveys will also appear in the same spot. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more correct and responsible the consensus.

Gymnasts to Form Team

By Debbie Bowman
Kempsville H.S.

During the past three weeks, preparations have been made towards forming the new KHS gymnastics team. Practices have been held to improve the gymnasts' style, coordination and rhythm.
Frank Weller, head coach for the boys, is also the wrestling coach and a drafting teacher. Besides the regular practices, he plans to take four boys to Pennsylvania for a gymnastic's clinic.
Dave McKay, one of the most outstanding gymnasts from last year explains, "The clinic will last four days and will be held over the Thanksgiving holidays. The clinic will help expose them to a sense of deep cooperation between the body and the mind."
In order to qualify for try-outs, it is necessary to have a certain amount of flexibility and coordination. Some qualifications include a backward extension and a round-off, both being very difficult to perfect.
Last year the gymnasts experienced an excellent record in competition. A victory over Princess Anne as well as several first place awards were taken in area competition. Judy Hughes, a member from last year's team explains, "The qualifications this year are harder than ever."
Varsity competition, under it's first experimental year will prove to be a valuable experience for the gymnasts in the years to come.

Cox Seniors Have Week

By James McCracken
Cox H. S.

Last Thursday night Cox High School held its annual Open House program, starting at 7:30 p.m.
Parents visited the same classes as their children, 15 minutes per period. During study halls, parents were served refreshments and looked at displays of classes and other organizations in the cafeteria. A number of clubs acted as hosts, hostesses, and guides.
The week was a busy one for seniors. Nov. 11-15 was Senior Spirit Week, as proclaimed by a multitude of wall posters and "LXIX" buttons sported by seniors. Friday night was Senior Night, with a dinner exclusively for seniors, special half-time ceremonies during the game with Princess Anne, and the Senior Night Dance featuring the Venable Band. The next morning Seniors left on their annual Senior Trip to Washington, D.C., from which they returned Sunday.

Independents Pick Delegates

The American Independent party of Virginia Beach has elected its delegates for the state convention in Richmond, to be held Nov. 23.
Heading the delegation is Stanton Von Grabell, chairman and Mrs. Ginny Moninger, vice chairman. The other members of the executive committee are Mrs. Jacqueline Murphy, David Horton, R. B. Parker, Stephen A. Futrell and William Cartwright.
Virginia Beach will have 30 delegates for the convention-a number determined by the vote for presidential candidate, George C. Wallace.

Openhouse was held Nov. 18 at Kempsville High School. The program was designed to enable the parents of the students to understand and observe a typical day at KHS.

Each parent was sent a mimeographed sheet of information concerning the procedure and schedule of the students.

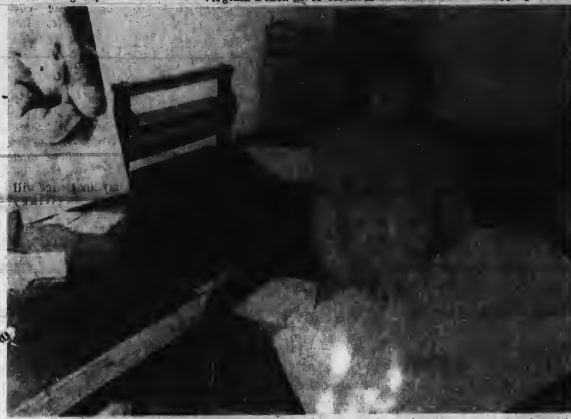

A tour of the building was held first and then a homeroom session. During the homeroom,

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehig

New officers have just been elected for Princess Anne F. O.P. Lodge #8 for 1969. The officers who will assume their duties the first of the year are Sgt. Douglas McCloud, president; Lt. A. E. Smith, vice-president; Sgt. W. B. Baker, secretary; Officer H.C. Bickley, treasurer; Sgt. N. C. Morse, guard; Officer M. E. Jackson, chaplain; Officer E. L. Jackson, conductor; Sgt. M. E. Beane, three year trustee; Officer E. R. White, two year trustee; and Sgt. E. Adams, one year trustee.

City Council during Monday's regular session gave final approval to a request from the Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Department to purchase a new pump engine at a cost of $39,700. Indications are the new equipment should be arriving within the next several months.

Special tribute was paid this week to John E. Mitchell, of the Seatack Volunteer Fire Department when he was awarded Ford Motor Co.'s "Community Service Award for 1968" for his "services rendered to Virginia Beach and the Seatack Community". Mitchell, who resides with his wife Evelyn, their son John, Jr., and daughters Veronica and Kevin on 15th Street, was honored for his outstanding participation in fire fighting services and devotion to the needs of the people of Seatack.

The dispatchers office of the Virginia Beach fire departments and rescue squads moved into their new location at the City's Emergency Operation Center in Windsor Woods on Monday. Chief dispatcher George Held said he received the first call for assistance at the new location, which was a trash fire reported on Edinburg

Thanksgiving Service Set Better Retirement Program Recommended by FOPA Report

A special ecumenical service of Thanksgiving and Worship has been announced by Chaplain Arthur W. Dennis, Senior Chaplain at the Naval Air Station Oceana Chapel. The service will be held on Nov. 28 at 10:30 a.m. in the Naval Air Station Oceana Chapel.

The Commanding Officer, Capt. Albert K. Earnest, will read "The President's Thanksgiving Day Proclamation." Chaplain R. Alan Pilshker will offer The Thanksgiving Prayer. The Catholic Chaplain at Oceana, Father Patrick J. Waite, will bring the Thanksgiving Message. The Gospelites, composed of Janice Mimix, lead; Wanda Rice, alto; and Cayle Harris, tenor and pianist; will present special music. James Swiger will be the organist for the service.

Pembroke Decision Must Wait

Pembroke East Shopping Center, whose construction has been delayed for more than a year because of a pending lawsuit involving the Pembroke area, will be delayed still longer.

Portsmouth Circuit Judge Henry W. MacKenzie Jr., who is presiding over the suit contesting title to strips of land in the area, decided Thursday to take under advisement a defense plea that the issue was settled by a 1937 Princess Anne County Chancery Court. If MacKenzie upholds the defense motion it could close the case, MacKenzie says he hopes to give a decision within a month.

Plaintiff in the suit, Mrs. Gwenlyn M. Wood, filed in October of 1967 for a total of $110,000 in damages and judgment of ejectment against 22 defendants in 10 suits. She claims title to 17 strips of land, 50 feet wide, in the area of Pembroke Mall Shopping Center and Princess Anne High School.

These strips of land were originally laid out to be streets of a proposed residential development. The developers, Sunny Brook, Inc., folded in 1956 and most of the subdivision lots were sold for delinquent taxes.

Dome Has Busy Month

There is a full calendar of events scheduled for December at the Virginia Beach Civic Center according to Samuel W. Scott Jr., director of the center.

The first event, the George D. Hay Memorial Fund Country Western Show will be at 3 p.m., Dec. 1. There will be an admission of $2 charged for the show.

Dec. 3-4 Kempsville High will sponsor a Library Book Show throughout the day.

Friends School will sponsor a lecture by Dr. Halm Glinott on Dec. 10 from 3 to 10 p.m. A donation of $2 per person is being asked for the lecture.

Ford Motor Company is having their Employees Christmas Party on Dec. 15 from 2 to 4 p.m.

A dance will be held on Dec. 20 by the Ancient Age Social Club from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Dahlia Social and Charity Club of Virginia Beach will sponsor a dance Dec. 26 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The Mighty Horsemen will sponsor a dance on Dec. 27 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Others serving as directors of the board are Scott Taylor, Scott Brooks. The new officers will be installed Jan. 17, 1969. Bailey T. Parker, Jr., current president of the board will serve as a director for two years and also Regional vice president for 1969.

Members of the Fraternal Order of Police Association Lodge #8 have expressed major concern over providing a "realistic retirement system" for members of the Virginia Beach police department.

The recent FOPA study of methods of improving benefits within the police department notes that the present retirement program is lacking when compared to retirement systems of other police departments.

Virginia Beach police officers are covered under the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System. A police officer contributes a sum equal to 5.5% of his monthly salary above $100, with the City making an additional contribution equal to 2.1% of the officer's total salary. This money is left on deposit to draw interest compounded at an annual rate of 5%.

The present police program provides for a compulsory retirement age of 65 without regard to length of service. While a police officer is allowed to retire anytime after age 60, unless he has spent at least 30 years with the department his retirement benefits are reduced on a percentage ratio to as little as 67% of the maximum allowance.

The amount of maximum retirement allowance is computed on the basis of the highest consecutive annual salaries above $1,200 annually for the last five years of service. An average figure for this five-year period is then used in arriving at the monthly retirement benefits computed on time in service.

In order to make their recommendation more realistic, the FOPA requested that the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN obtain from police department officials a prospective retirement income of a typical Virginia Beach police officer. The officer chosen will reach the compulsory retirement age in another two and a half years.

Applying the regulations of the current retirement system program to him, he will receive a monthly retirement allotment of $96.48.

The officer said he has always been very devoted to his police duties, even to not seeking a moonlighting job.

He said, "I don't feel like I should take another job and mess this one up."

He added that the main thing he has to do is figure how to live on his pay.

"Where is a man of my age going to get a job?" he asked. "My wife and I will just have to figure on cutting out a lot of things."

The FOPA is recommending the City of Virginia Beach establish a retirement plan under which a police officer would be able to retire after 20 years of service; and receive higher benefits, a program similar to that of Portsmouth, Va.

The Portsmouth retirement program for police provides for compulsory retirement at age 62, with a minimum of 25 years service. The Portsmouth police retirement program is a city program, in no way connected with the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System. The city makes all contributions to the retirement fund without any contribution on the part of a police officer.

While a basic retirement income is figured the same as that in Virginia Beach, Portsmouth police officers receive a monthly income to 50% of the average annual salary.

The Virginia Beach police officer used as an illustration above would receive a monthly retirement income of $195.30 in Portsmouth. And in Portsmouth

Police Continue Search

An intensive search is underway by Virginia Beach police for an assailant who reportedly raped a woman in her Princess Anne Plaza home last Friday morning.

The 28-year-old housewife is quoted by police with saying her attacker entered the home through a door which leads from the garage to the kitchen. Police investigators indicated the man grabbed the woman about the throat and threw her to the kitchen floor and assaulted her under threats of killing her child if she screamed for help.

Police described the assailant as a white male, about 30 years of age, 6 feet 4 inches tall, weighing about 240 pounds, with light brown hair and light blue or gray eyes. The suspect was also reportedly clean shaven, neat in appearance, muscular, and appeared to have a Nordic background. Although the suspect was wearing what was described as work clothes, police said their investigation has failed to turn up any evidence of trucks or work crews in the

Bank to Aid Small Businesses

Minority businessmen and women of the Tidewater area will have $5,000,000 available to them for business loans.

Howard J. Samuels, administrator of the Small Business Administration and R. Cosby Moore, chairman of the board of Virginia National Bank made the announcement jointly at a news conference at the Golden Triangle Motel.

Moore said that his bank would make the funds available for Negro business owners in the Tidewater area for establishment of new businesses or expanding existing facilities.

Samuels, making his first visit to the Tidewater since assuming his duties this past

August, lauded Virginia National Bank for inaugurating a new joint program that will afford minority businessmen and women the opportunity to own and run their own businesses profitably.

Samuels said that Virginia National Bank, by joining with Tidewater Area Business League's "Project Outreach", which will lend technical and managerial assistance, and the Small Business Administration, creates a new cooperative program that will help minority business owners to establish themselves and get their own stake in the American free enterprise system.

Dr. B. J. Tucker, of the Tidewater Area Business League, said that his organization will serve as a clearing house for loan applicants and as management consultants to those qualifying for loans.

Samuels praised the efforts of local organizations and said that SBA will continue to act as a catalyst to bring local lending institutions into programs to spearhead efforts in their own communities to assist minority groups in obtaining business opportunities.

A number of business and civic leaders from Tidewater attended the conference. Assistant City Manager David Norman represented Virginia Beach.

Stage Door Has 'Fun Play'

Shakespeare stole the plot for "Comedy of Errors" from an old Roman comedy by Plautus. George Abbott, along with Rich-ard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, stole it from Shakespeare and 30 years ago turned it into a fun-filled facetious musical comedy called "The Boys from Syracuse."

The play about mistaken identity and identical twins receives an adequate airing at Stage Door Dinner Playhouse. It has been a week since opening now, and hopefully there is a great deal more polish, especially in moving scenery and people around. A number of large production numbers came off badly on opening night as the actors tripped over each other and appeared to be extremely unsure of themselves, especially in the "orgy" scene.

The play takes place in ancient Greece, but the dialogue, parts of costumes and a number of modern allusions built in add to the farcical comedy. The action revolves around the mistaken identity of identical twin brothers, separated since childhood. The wife of one mistakes the other for her husband. The wife of one's slave mistakes the slave of the other for her husband. Merchants, courtesans and other servants do likewise, and director Jon Dawson manages to set a fast pace that falls only a few times to keep the fun of the entire impossible situation from becoming unbelievable or boring.

Tony Stephens and Jan Ewing handle the twin roles with excellent underplay and both have nice singing voices. Tony Pre-witt, as the wife of one, is a bit stiff and mechanical in her acting, but her remarkable singing voice makes up for it.

In the early numbers it reached heights, perhaps a bit too operatic for the role, such as in "Falling in Love with Love".

Luanne Nelson, as her sister, is too young for the role, although she has a fine singing voice and shows much promise. She, more often than not, mouthed her lines and words to songs, showing little emotion or feeling for such songs as "This Can't Be Love".

Ron Alexander cavorts through the role of one of the slaves nicely, but often talks too fast, making him a bit difficult to understand.

Outstanding performances are turned in by the other slave, Jim Mills, and the wife of the other one, Susan Lang. Mills prattles with terrific physical prowess, and his facial expressions and comedy timing are delightful. Miss Lang, as the shrewish and frustrated wife, sereches and steals stealthily through the performance with good comedy actions.

Maureen Casey, as the hip-bumping courtesan, certainly does look good in her role, and plays it successfully like an early Sophie Tucker in ancient Greece.

On the whole the rest of the chorus is obviously too young and inexperienced to give convincing performances, although all give it the old college try. Most are still in high school, though. The incessant high-pitched giggling of one of the servant girls is extremely disconcerting.

Regardless of flaws, this is a fun play, with fine music, and worthy of note. Anyone looking for that fun, without having any thinking to do, must see the current production at Stage Door. HJL.

Youth Attacked

A 16-year-old youth was hospitalized last weekend after he received a concussion in an assault outside Kellam High School last Friday night. Police investigators indicated that George Kriner, II, of Lamplight Lane, was attacked by four assailants at about the time a dance at the school was getting its end. The assailants, described as being about 18 years of age, were not believed to be students of Kellam High, and police thus far have not been able to establish a motive behind the attack.

Wiley Found Guilty

A Circuit Court jury has found Paul A. Wiley guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the July death of his wife and recommended a sentence of 12 months in jail and a $500 fine. Police had charged Wiley, 33, with murder in the death of his 21-year-old wife following a reported domestic struggle in the couple's Sycamore Avenue apartment. A medical examiner's report indicated the woman remained unconscious for 17 days prior to her death as the result of a blood clot over the brain.

Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard, left, and T. Hume Dixon, right, a member of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation are seen at the Cavalier Hotel during the Federation's convention held there Nov. 24-27.

Va. Farm Bureau Meets Here

Representatives of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation passed several resolutions Monday to help promote farmer independence.

Among those resolutions was support for a return to a free market without governmental control and opposition to unions and government to force labor unions into farm industry.

There was, however, support given to the Virginia State Milk Commission's price-fixing.

Some of the speakers heard during the four-day convention were Clifford G. McIntire, director of the Natural Resources Department, American Farm Bureau Federation; Robert B. Delano, state Farm Bureau president; Maurice B. Rowe, Virginia Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce; John C. Lynn, representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington, D. C. office; and W. Ross Thatcher, Premier of Saskatchewan, Canada. Virginia's Lt. Gov., Fred G. Pollard was also on hand for the convention.

There were representatives at the convention from 87 Virginia counties. They elected officers for the coming year. Chosen for his seventh term was incumbent President, Robert B. Delano of Warsaw, Vice Pres. Clarence L. Tary of Lexington was re-elected.

specifications, was for about $47,000.

Passed on second reading were ordinances to allow removal of unsafe structures at an owner's expense and allowing the removal of abandoned automobiles by faster means.

A proposed amendment to the Fire Prevention Code which would call for all motels and hotels with more than 15 rooms to be connected to a local and a central fire alarm system was postponed for further study and until a relay line from the Beach Borough to the new communications center at Windsor Woods can be installed.

City Manager Robert Scott also informed Council that Friday would be a holiday at City Hall while VEPCO is changing the electrical service from overhead lines to underground cables. Courts will also be closed that day and police will operate on an auxiliary generator.

Scott smiled and said the fact that the holiday came the day after the regular Thanksgiving holiday was the result of "good management".

Builder Will Be Penalized

Delays in completing the new Virginia Beach municipal administration building will undoubtedly result in architect John S. Waller invoking a $200-a-day penalty against W. B. Meredith II, Inc.

Although Waller gives the highest praise for the job Meredith is doing, he says he can see no way around the penalty. It is part of his responsibility as architect to execute the penalty clauses of the contract, as well as to fix the completion date. Liquidated damages of $200 a day are to be paid for the time required past the established completion date.

The completion date for the building is now given as Jan. 15...four months past the original completion date. Waller revised the completion date in August from Sept. 17 to Nov. 15 after Meredith asked for a 184-day extension. Architectural changes, labor strikes and weather were given as reasons for the extension. Waller says another extension is justified, but he has not worked out the number of days.

The new structure will house the City Council chamber and suites for the mayor and city manager, the department of finance, public works, law, planning, purchasing, personnel and general services. Also located in the building will be facilities for the Industrial Development Authority and city printing shop and a press room.

Local Elks Set Special Service

The Virginia Beach Elks, Lodge No. 2285 will hold a memorial service Dec. 1 at 9 p.m. at American Legion Post No. 118 on Larkin Road. Among those speaking at the service will be Guy G. Narter, Elated Elder, and Rev. George T. Stallings, pastor of First Colonial Baptist Church. John P. Keary, chaplain, will give a prayer and benediction. Edward A. Simiele will give the roll call of departed brothers.

Enough Land, Not Enough Land

Nearly 300 newsmen, civic and business leaders from throughout Virginia flew into Dulles International Airport last Friday for a special afternoon orientation session.

The "fly-in," sponsored by the Dulles International Airport Development Commission and the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, brought together about 50 corporate aircraft from every area of the state. Businessmen donated their aircraft and pilots to assist in showing their area's newsmen the Dulles facility. Featured during the orientation program were tours of the control tower, terminal building and a narrated tour of Dulles via mobile lounge, a luncheon and a color movie about the airport preceded the tours.

The purpose of the orientation fly-in was to acquaint the group with the facilities and potential of the federally-owned and operated $100-million-plus airport that lies 26 miles from the Nation's Capitol and is an aerial gateway from Europe to Virginia and the eastern United States. A Commission spokesman said, "The airport has the potential of being as great as the port facilities at Hampton Roads since industrial sites are available on the 10,000 acre airport and in nearby counties. It also provides a domestic, as well as, an international entrance and exit for business and pleasure travelers."

The Dulles International Airport Development Commission was established by the 1968 Virginia General Assembly with its 15 members appointed by Governor Godwin. Senator Robert C. Fitzgerald of Fairfax is chairman of the Commission. W. C. "Dan" Daniel, U. S. Congressman-elect and president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce is vice-chairman. William P. Kellam of Virginia Beach is a member of that commission. The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce spoke out for establishment of such a commission during the General Assembly, and has worked actively for the promotion of Dulles.

Speaking to the group during the fly-in also was Arven H. Saunders, Director of the Bureau of National Capital Airports, Federal Aviation Administration, U. S. Department of Transportation DOT owns and operates both Dulles and Washington National Airport, the only two U.S. federally-owned and operated airport facilities.

The Virginians returned to their respective airports late Friday afternoon via the corporate aircraft.

A Commission spokesman said, "This is what is hoped to be the first of a number of orientations for users and potential users of Dulles. Other events are in various stages of planning and development and all are designed to point up this facility's vast potential particularly with the birth of the Boeing 747 and similar large aircraft that can operate in and out of Dulles even today."

Dulles airport is one of the few airports in the country today ready for the superjets, the 747's of the early 1970's, which will carry hundreds of passengers. It has two runways 11,500 feet long and another 10,000 feet in length. The extended runway at Norfolk Regional Airport is expected to be only about 9,000 feet.

Speed and passenger comfort were concentrated on quite heavily when Dulles was built. All planes, including general aviation aircraft land and park some distance from the modernistic terminal and control tower. Passengers are transferred to the main building and waiting ground transportation by a "mobile lounge" which hooks up to the planes and takes up to 30 people directly to the terminal for disembarkation a few steps from the baggage claim area and entrance.

The basic problem at the airport today is not enough schedules. Only one flight from Norfolk flies into Dulles each day and only two fly to Norfolk. Passengers and travel agents complain it is difficult to use the airport for connecting national and international flights for this reason and that Washington National is closer for local hops.

the nation's capital will seem nearer. A 750-room motel will be started just outside Dulles within the next year and new freight and industrial facilities are being built nearby at a rapid clip.

Pilots Wayne McLeskey and M. R. Welch volunteered their planes to fly newsmen and businessmen from Virginia Beach to Dulles. Capt. A. F. Rozitus, J. Robert Addenbrook and Ed Brogan were among the businessmen who attended. Al Mailhes, executive vice president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., managing editor of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, were also among those attending from Virginia Beach.

But Dulles is expected to serve well into the 21st century, although by then its 30 gates will have to be enlarged to 90 and the terminal size

Play Is High-Flying Fun

A beautiful apartment overlooking Paris, a full-time maid and lots of free time might seem to be the ideal life for an enterprising young bachelor.

But in "Boeing-Boeing," now playing at the Lake Wright Playhouse, it can only lead to trouble for the bachelor and fun for the audience.

David Kitchin plays the young roue, whose love-life runs on an airlines timetable. His three fiancées, played by Judy Williams, Teresa Stallings and Terri Jones, are all air hostesses on different schedules. Others in the cast are Bryan Predica as Kitchin's friend, and Lyn Howard as the maid.

If this situation were not complicated enough, think about what would happen when all three are grounded at the same time. Then the fun really begins.

"Boeing-Boeing" plays nightly, except Monday, at the Playhouse located in the Lake Wright Motel complex on Northampton Blvd. Performances during the week start at 8:30 p.m. There are two performances on Saturdays, one at 7:30 p.m. and the other at 10:30 p.m. The Sunday performance starts at 7:30 p.m.

Dinner is served an hour and a half before curtain time. Reservations can be made in person at the Box Office or by phoning 464-8919.

Car Rental Opens Office

Thrifty-Rent-A-Car has announced the opening of a franchise in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area. Thrifty's headquarters are in Tulsa, Okla. They maintain offices all over the United States.

Thomas P. Rusnock is local owner and general manager. The new franchise is located at the corner of Military Highway and Amalee Garden Road. Rusnock is a full time instructor at Old Dominion College and former general manager of the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel.

"We are maintaining 50 automobiles for daily and weekly rentals to area residents and visitors. Our staff is small, however, we expect to expand as growth takes place," Rusnock said. The staff currently includes Brenda Hamilton who is "Miss Thrifty" in the Thrifty-Rent-A-Car advertisements, and Walter Newman, assistant manager.

Ft. Story Has Public Review

The Command Sergeant Major of the Continental Army Command (CONARC), CSM R. M. Ammond, will be the reviewing officer at the Non-commissioned Officers Garrison Review to be held on Ft. Story's parade field today at 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

VBLT Production Is 'One of the Best'

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach has come up with another outstanding production, well-executed. A fine blend of good acting, a nice realistic setting, sensitive direction, excellent mood music and the chilling plot of Emelyn Williams' almost melodramatic "Night Must Fall" has made this 20th anniversary year production one of the best in recent years.

The play is a mystery, but the audience knows almost immediately "whodunit." The circumstances surrounding the murder and the sense of foreboding which hangs over the action make for a spintangling drama. Although one is certain that a murder has indeed been committed and that a cocky bar boy turned servant to a virginal old woman was the one who did it, the question remains as to why he did it. Whether he will kill again is also rather obvious as his mental stability disintegrates before the eyes of the audience, but not quite in time to prevent the second crime.

Liz Sills has directed a suspenseful dramatic production, but she has a lot of help from a number of outstanding people in the cast.

Anne Pennington, as the old woman, is excellent in the role of the sometimes invalid hypochondriac who loves to give orders and run everyone's lives but softens to a little attention. Her emotional and voice ranges are both delightful.

Bentley B. Anderson, as the psychopathic murderer does a remarkable job with the characterization of the inveterate connoisseur of stories and personalities. While his bodily movements are sometimes too exaggerated for the small stage, the intensity in his eyes and the harshness of his screams make the insane character entirely believable.

While Anne Henry may be a bit too old for the role of the old woman's niece, Olivia, she plays the role of the sympathetic, loveless woman well. George Menz is delightfully stuffy as the boring, bumbling suitor for Olivia.

Also nice performances are turned in by Charles Terry as the Scotland Yard Inspector and Marcy Alford as the extraordinarily cheerful public nurse, Lee Barton, as the cook who really runs the household and is the only one not afraid of the old woman is far too young for her role, but her acting ability shines through and she is thoroughly convincing. She shows great promise for the future.

Lela Patterson appears too knowledgeable and unafraid in the role of the maid who has "been done wrong" by the cocky bar boy.

Bob Furniss also adds exposition at the beginning of the play as the Lord Chief Justice of the English court.

The play will be presented again this Friday and Saturday evening, and on Dec. 6 and 7. The opening weekend audiences were lamentably lacking, especially for such a fine production. The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is known for good work and its plays deserve to be seen by more. HJL.

Emphatically not.

The myth of credit card magic is rapidly helping to make thousands of Americans prisoners of their own finances.

Instant credit should be called by its equally accurate name, instant debt.

Regular saving is a necessity if you are going to feel secure, meet your obligations and enjoy the future.

Our New Community College

Virginia Beach moves another step closer to complete maturity with the announcement that a state-supported two-year community college will be built on acreage at the City-owned Green Run Farm.

A special committee under the chairmanship of Councilman George Ferrell deserves the gratitude of the citizens of Virginia Beach for their successful efforts to bring a college here.

The site selection, which was determined by state officials, would appear to be an excellent one. As the city moves southward the college will actually be almost centrally located. With present roads and new roads already planned, the site is entirely accessible. And with the vocational-technical high school and a park already planned on the property, this is a fine addition. Still there will be about 400 more acres of Green Run Farm that can be developed. The city has an excellent investment in this tract of prime land.

The college itself will serve well the increasing number of college-age students in Virginia Beach and will go a long way toward solving their post-high school educational needs. As the city grows, which is a certainty, someday this small college may even be expanded into a major facility. The land is certainly there, and the potential students will be too.

We welcome this new addition to our city and hope construction can begin in the near future with the opening date no further away than it must be.

Thanksgiving 1968

In this time of foreign and domestic strife...in this time of change and unrest...and in this time of almost fearful anticipation of tomorrow...what have we to be thankful for this Thanksgiving Day.

Perhaps the answer can be found in the very reasons our forefathers first celebrated a day of thanksgiving. Their life was painfully demanding. They worked endless hours simply to provide the necessities of life while living in constant danger not only from their enemies but also from disease and the elements. War was a way of life. Hardship was an accepted part of each day's work. Fear and terror loomed always on the horizon.

Yet these brave people, both in Massachusetts and Virginia, separately set aside a day for joyous celebration and fasting to thank God for the munificence of His gifts.

We have come a long way since that time. As one generation has given way to another, scientific and technical advances have made life easier. The luxuries of yesterday are our daily necessities. In spite of the troubled times of today we live in world peace, however uneasy. And most among us are striving daily to bring a lasting peace and prosperity.

On this Thanksgiving Day we should reflect on that original scene of thanksgiving. History is a great teacher and healer. We are not as badly off as we may believe. What we need is a rededication of our lives to the sound principles of good deeds, kindness, cooperation and all the values that lead to a better mankind.

Airport Efforts

An airport of some type somewhere in Virginia Beach has been a dream of a large number of people for some time. Perhaps a general aviation strip is closer to reality now than it would seem, but the entire situation seems confused.

The Mayor's special airport committee has been looking into possible sites and the problems thereof.

This committee began as a wing of the Chamber of Commerce, but was later given official sanction when it was felt more could be accomplished that way. But this should have been an official committee in the first place.

Then there have been a number of private interests who have tried to accomplish the same thing. They have run into trouble too, either with the Navy or with the FAA over location. Other problems, such as noise and the approval of government insured loans on homes near an airport have also cropped up. The Virginia Beach Development Council has also looked into the feasibility of an airport. Some of our elected officials have spoken out independently. Governor Godwin and other state officials have also been working to help us. The Navy has been trying to protect the sanctity of Oceana Naval Air Station. The Army says the strip at Fort Story is no good and it takes an expert to land there. But the Pentagon says that strip is feasible if upgraded.

Now Congressman Thomas Downing has promised to help too. Maybe it's not as bad as it seems, but it looks like a lot of folks are all heading in different directions trying to do the same thing.

We want to see an airport here. Can't everybody who is genuinely interested make some further effort now to work together? There is certainly enough interest to make coordination advantageous.

Personal Pride

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: What happens to a human being when he or she loses his or her personal pride? When a person cares little or nothing about his or her image in the presence of their fellow creatures, have they lost a vital part of their inner self and "inner light"?

There are millions of our better citizens who believe that when our physical form is kept appropriately polished and groomed, we present a living portrait of the goodness within and an inspiration to others. Have you in your daily travels, met someone whom you could truly call your "inspiration" for appropriate grooming?

There are still some fine folks like this among us. In every instance they serve as an "inspiration." They remind us that we should polish and groom our physical being as a fine dwelling for the whole-some person who lives within. Ed. L. Applegate

'Unpopular Decision'

(Ed. Note - The following letter is faithfully reproduced as received, with no attempts made to correct spelling, punctuation or grammar... and without comment. The name of the specialty shop in Washington and Virginia Beach which the writer reportedly owns, and on whose stationery the letter was written, is being withheld.)

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I need to advertise in the V.B. area and was planning to see you for this purpose. But not after your article "An Unpopular Decision (Nov. 14, 1968) - You really must be in need of Judge Kellam, favor; or you are a stupid one. Three people sentenced for 10 years in prison over an $75 robbery-please. Virginia Beach is a nice place - with out your personal view on what goes on - The paper present it self well until we turn to the Editor if you took the three people place in Jail for 10 yrs - Copies to Norfolk paper- maybe they will publish our view. ### Against Change

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: My viewpoint on revising the present abortion law is very different from the one you advance in your editorial (A New Abortion Law, Nov. 7, 1968). Your solution calls for less stringent laws, but is not specific. You make no mention of the rights of the child. You apparently favor child sacrifice which was prohibited as far back as Abraham among God-loving people, and you assume abortion to be a modern problem. You also state that the VALC should sift out the moral aspects and come up with a realistic and enforceable law. But the moral aspect happens to be the heart of the problem. If we eliminate the moral aspect from our laws, you will wind up with chaos. Look at the empires and civilizations that collapsed throughout history because of the moral decay that took hold.

Before tampering with our present abortion laws, we should explore how our moral climate can be improved, how counseling and psychiatric services can be more effective and available to both the married and unwed mothers who are thinking of having an abortion, how medical research can be sponsored to eliminate the possibility of retarded and deformed children being born; and as for babies being unwanted, ask any couple who want to adopt a baby.

To think that an abortion which is actually child killing is a solution to a problem is no different than to think mercy killing is another solution to a problem. If our morals ever reach the stage where we feel justified in permitting abortion and mercy killing, it is just a short step to accepting the NAZI solution for purifying the race. Don't you think its time to consider the alternatives, difficult as it may be, or would you rather take what looks like the easy route?

Please use whatever influence you have and request the VALC to explore this question very thoroughly and from all aspects, including the moral. William R. Bridgeford

Special Report

All 3 Are Running Hard

Whether or not there are any more entrants in the Democratic gubernatorial primary does seem to be important. With apparent little disregard for the Downings, Hahns, Cookes or other potential aspirants among us, the three announced candidates have been moving ahead in planning and campaigning with amazing speed in a race that will not end for another seven months or more.

But it's a better than even money bet that William Battle, Lt. Gov. Fred Pollard and Norfolk State Sen. Henry Howell are casting a number of furtive glances over their shoulders no matter how hard they're running so far. A fresh entrant could find all three rather winded. And it must be remembered that the filing date does not come until April 1969 for the July primary. Anything can happen by then, and probably will.

Meanwhile the Battle-Pollard-Howell battle is beginning to shape up as a three-philosophy race. And in any three-way race, as has just been witnessed in the recent presidential election, one man serves as a spoiler. It must also be remembered that under Virginia law, if a candidate does not receive a majority but wins a plurality, there will be a runoff election. That is an ever increasing possibility in this race, especially if a latecomer enters the sweepstakes.

All three announced candidates are moving along swiftly and well at this point. Pollard has recently announced a number of city hall and courthouse appointments in localities all over the state that will be his key campaign staff. While Pollard is not receiving full support of the organization Democrats, he has been a member of that group for many years and knows how the campaigning is done. His platform is shaping up slightly to the right of moderate, and so are his appointees. Apparently he will be the so-called conservative in the race, with a big boost from Virginia voters at the polls earlier this month. The conservative feeling was shown clearly in the voting trends statewide.

On the other hand, Howell has had a number of key people named for some time, and has been campaigning like the primary was next month. For some weeks he has been concentrating on becoming known in the central and western reaches of Virginia. While he is known in Tidewater as the liberal and champion of the little man and the underdog, he is not generally known in other parts of the Old Dominion. And where he is known there many of his liberal policies are not too well received. But he must not be counted out. He has built a well-oiled campaign staff that is capable of making a good accounting of itself.

Battle, also not generally known statewide, although he was JFK's unsuccessful campaign manager in Virginia in 1960 and was ambassador to Australia for a short time, is concentrating on an abundance of well-known politicians to be in his corner, especially from the large urban areas of the state. Battle is the middle-of-the-road moderate in the race, and the fact that his father won the governorship in a multi-candidate primary is another point in his favor. He too has become more conservative in recent years.

None of the three is very effective from the speaker's platform, and all three lack a really dynamic personality. But they're running hard, and that's what counts. Or at least right now.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"All I ever do is work, work, work," she grumbled. "You men sit around at your offices all day dreaming up ways to make more work for us."

"What the devil are you talking about?" he asked, knowing full well he shouldn't. "You have more work-savers in this house right now than I can afford."

"That's exactly what I mean," she said, knowing she had him trapped. "You plot at your offices how to make work easier for us and then dream up all those work-savers that make more work for us."

"I know I'm going to regret this," he said. "But would you care to explain, as if I didn't know the answer to that one?"

"Certainly," she said, warming up to the subject she had apparently spent hours thinking about. "Take this beautiful new refrigerator with the double doors that looks so heavy. It's not. It's on wheels and even I can move it easily."

"What's the problem?"

"That's just the point. I CAN move it and I'm expected to clean behind it. When we had a refrigerator I couldn't clean behind you didn't expect me to clean behind it."

"Do you clean behind this one?" he asked.

"No, but I could," she said. "And before we had vacuum cleaners people took rugs out once or twice a year and beat them. That's all. And before all those fancy waxes and polishes that make the job easier we didn't have to wax and polish because we didn't have the stuff to do it."

"I think there's something wrong with that thinking, but go on," he said. "Get it out of your system."

"Take washing machines, for example. Before we had them people had fewer clothes to be washed. They wore them longer, washed them when they needed it and threw them away when they wore out. Now we have so many clothes I have to do the laundry every day in that work-saving washing machine and put them in the work-saving dryer," she said. "And the pioneers didn't have venetian blinds to dust either."

"But think of all the time you save with all those work-savers," he pointed out. "It leaves you time to shampoo your hair often, spend all that time putting on all the glop and false eyelashes and to rest in your luxurious home."

"That has nothing to do with it," she said. "Now before we had telephones we didn't have so many people bothering us, and before we had automobiles we didn't have so many places to go to... and... well, I could go on and on."

"I'm sure you could," he said.

"So you see, the inventions you men have dreamed up have really made life harder," she said. "There's nothing I'd like better than living in a cave."

"Oh, really?" he asked, with a gleam in his eye.

She realized she had unwittingly trapped herself. "All right," she said, "but the cave has to have heat and air conditioning, hot and cold running water, toilet facilities, a color television and a few other conveniences, like a supply of deodorant. Where are you going?"

"To throw my razor away," he said. "Why bother to shave? People didn't shave before they had razors. And you get back to work."

Case Summation Nov. 15 to 21, 1968

The court had hearings on 77 juvenile petitions which concerned persons 17 years of age or under accused of violating state laws or city ordinances. Included in these hearings were 36 cases involving felonies, one of which ended in a probation, with seven others being forwarded to a grand jury, two others ending in commitments to the State Dept. of Welfare and Institutions, 28 others being continued to future dates.

Other cases which the court settled involved 46 on alleged traffic law violations and nine on family domestic problems. There were also cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Wednesday night at the Commodore Club, The Cavalier Junior Woman's Club sponsored a "Holiday Preview" Fashion show and Card Party. The show was put on by Rose Hall, with musical accompaniment. I think Mrs. Suzanne Lawton, the commentator is terrific not only because of the manner in which she describes the clothes: each model wears, but because she invariably ad-libs, which makes her outstanding.

During the showing of lingerie, gowns, peignoirs, robes, hostess costumes for at-home entertaining, cocktail and party dresses then the most elegant evening gowns for your most formal holiday balls.

While I walked around getting names of the women attending this show I noticed how absolutely intrigued the women were with these clothes and of all the "oh's" and "ah's" I am sure that a lot of husbands are in trouble for Christmas presents.

For the husband's of these women who attended watch out, if her name is here: Mrs. William B. Jones, Mrs. Betty S. Morgan, Mrs. Charles V. Amory, Mrs. Leo Fuentes, Mrs. William E. Carr, Mrs. William Nevins, Mrs. Robert Dean, Mrs. William Clegg, Mrs. William J. McHenry, Mrs. Gary Pittman, Mrs. H. T. Hawthorne, Mrs. John G. Zimmerman, Mrs. E. L. Dennis, Jr., Mrs. Gene Houchers, Mrs. N. W. Morris, Mrs. Carle Libley, Mrs. C. L. Carter and Mrs. W. E. Duke.

The decorations were seasonal, and they included an old-fashion Christmas tree and sleigh filled with door prizes. Mrs. John Clark won the first prize which was a chignon from Heavenly Creations. The club served their guests with homemade Christmas cookies, cakes, date bars, coffee and soft drinks.

Others attending were: Mrs. Frank I. Atkins, Jr., Mrs. T. Jerry Walsh, Mrs. R. M. Reasor, Mrs. Fred Feller, Mrs. Sandra W. Parsons, Mrs. Newton Dance, Mrs. Raymond A. Hall, Mrs. Margaret Shomier, Mrs. Joan Ralfield, Mrs. Elvon Cohen, Mrs. Ellen Reynolds, Mrs. James D. Finerman, Mrs. Albert Van Eden, Mrs. Cliff Stokes, Mrs. Jane Belvin, Mrs. Mary Freeman and Mrs. Nancy Wicks.

The benefits will be used for the club's departmental projects which will be the adoption of an overseas orphan, Camp Easter Seal, Koughton Veteran's Hospital, the new pediatric ward aboard the hospital ship HOPE, Operation Healthy Babies and the Virginia Museum Artmobile. My hat is off to these women's clubs they are so active and help in so many projects that are so necessary to their city, state or country.

Thursday evening the Men's Club of the Galilee Episcopal Church were hosts for another famous, Gourmet Oyster Roast. Oysters were served raw, steamed and fried. In case you did not like oysters they also had fried chicken, baked beans, cole slaw, and rolls. To drink you had a choice of draft beer, cold drinks or coffee.

Wednesday night was "oh's" and "ah's" Thursday night it was "golly" and "gee whiz it's cold." Regardless of the cold, this feast was very well attended. Many tried to stay near the fire where the oysters were being steamed, but the smoke was blinding and you soon had to back away. It seemed as though every time I would try to get near the fire to warm up I would invariably get in the way of Sidney Morecock who was trying to stoke coals.

Each person had a name tag pinned on them, and as they would go along the table to fill their plates I tried getting the names. Those seen going by were: Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wright, Mrs. John Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dillon, George Brooke whom I was so very glad to see because he is a wonderful man. Mr. Brooke was there with his two daughters Misses Sue and Ann Brooke, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beamon, Rev. and Mrs. John Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Addenbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Whitmer J. Frank, Mrs. Martha Lee Dinsmore, Mrs. Philip Ansel, Mr. and Mrs. Ferebee Trafton, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thompson, Rev. and Mrs. William Martin, chaplain of Old Dominion College, Cmdr. Al Mennell, Anthony Peters, Samuel W. Peters, Mrs. J. M. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sofield, Rev. and Mrs. William Brake, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Taylor.

The men did all the work; this was one feast that the women did not have a chance to get their hands into with exceptions of just using them to eat with that night.

Melvin Cruser and Paul Maestas put up lighting and marquee in case of rain. Col. Ed Dillon, and Cmdr. (Ret.) Buckley Walsh were assembling firewood and charcoal for the oysters and were preparing for the cold weather "internally and externally".

The man in the kitchen cooking for 300 people were: Scott Taylor, Peter DeWitt, whose famous baked beans were in tubs of delight, Witmer Frank made the cole slaw and coffee, Charles Gilliam, of course, added his culinary art which he inherited from his wife Margaret, who I understand is one of the best cooks anywhere. Bernard F. Joy was the chairman of the Oyster Roast. Outfits of all types were worn from ski outfits to fur hats, Swiss sweaters, heavy overcoats and boots.

The cleaning up was also done by the club and everything was finished by 11 p.m. I understand that not a single woman was asked to do one thing. So ladies, don't ever get the idea that men can't look out for themselves. You know sometime we women think that our men are quite helpless or at times like little boys, well they are but never underestimate them.

The food was delicious and everyone I saw seemed to be enjoying every mouthful. I would estimate about 200 people attended.

Look for me next week, but where at this time I am not sure. Happy Thanksgiving to all of you and may God let it be his will that we have peace in this world soon.

Serving salad for supper? Even stubborn eaters will enjoy their vegetable vitamins when the salad is spiced with an Italian flavor. Combine tender young greens with sliced tomatoes, a handful of black and green Italian olives, pitted and quartered, 2 stalks diced celery, 1/2 sliced sweet onion, 1 can Italian tomato (the meaty imported Progresso tuna packed in olive oil). Break tuna into chunks and mix all ingredients. Before serving, toss with favorite homemade dressing—light on the olive oil.

Leftover Turkey Can Be a Treat

Like the mythical phoenix, holiday turkey has a way of showing up a second time. And why not? No one tires of turkey, and getting another delicious meal out of it is a way of easing the strain on the family budget.

The trick is to make the festive bird's dinner table encore as exciting as his first appearance. One way is making almond studded croquettes from turkey, mushrooms and other ingredients blended with a can of well-seasoned giblet gravy. After shallow or deep-fat frying the croquettes to a golden brown, add a bit of dill to the remaining gravy and pour it, piping hot, over them. Accompany the croquettes with buttered acorn squash and a crisp green salad. For dessert open a can of chilled lemon pudding and garnish with apricots.

TURKEY AND ALMOND CROQUETTES

- 1 can (2 oz.) stems and pieces mushrooms, drained and chopped
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 2 tbl. butter or margarine
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) giblet gravy
- 1 1/2 c. minced cooked turkey
- 1/4 c. fine dry bread crumbs
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 c. finely chopped toasted almonds
- Shortening
- 1/4 tsp. dried dill leaves

In saucepan, brown mushrooms and garlic in butter. Add 1/3 cup gravy, turkey, bread crumbs and salt. Mix well; shape into 6 croquettes; dip in egg; roll in almonds. In skillet, shallow fry or deep fat fry croquettes in shortening until thoroughly heated and lightly browned. Add dill to remaining gravy; heat; serve over croquettes. Makes 3 servings.

It's more fun to pick at the cold turkey carcass next day than to dream up tempting ways to serve it. So cheers for Turkey Curry, a main dish appealing enough to grace a guest night buffet. Fruit, subtle seasonings and white wine give the turkey completely new identity. Present the curry with preserved ginger, peanuts, chutney, white raisins and coconut.

TURKEY CURRY

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 medium tart apple, thinly sliced
- 1 1/2 tbl. curry powder
- 3 tbl. butter or margarine
- 1 medium banana, sliced
- 1/4 c. flour
- 1 tsp. ginger
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 can (13 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1/2 c. Lake Country White dinner wine cooked turkey, sliced or 2 c., diced.

Cook onion, apple and curry powder in butter until onion is soft but not brown. Add banana slices; cook about 3 minutes longer. Combine flour, ginger and salt; stir in. Add chicken broth slowly, stirring constantly. Bring to boil; lower heat, simmer 20 minutes. Stir in wine. Add turkey; heat to serving temperature. Serve on hot fluffy rice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Twenty-six ideas for storage built-ins are shown in the full-color booklet, "Storage," available from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 519-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Ore. 97204. Enclose ten cents for each copy.

Miss Miles Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Russell Miles of Evinston, Va. announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sally Belle Miles of Virginia Beach, to John Bell Henry of Smithfield, Va.

Salts draining through planter tubs may stain a patio surface. Best remedy is to build a tray to set underneath, using cedar 2x4s for the sides, tongue-and-groove boards for the bottom. Line the tray with fiberglass to make it waterproof, then cover the bottom with small pebbles so water draining from the tubs can evaporate.

Mr. Henry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walter Henry of Smithfield. He attended the University of Richmond and is

Anyone for Peanut Butter

We're going to start a new Thanksgiving tradition at our house this year - sardines.

It all started when the four-year-old visited a turkey farm with his kindergarten class. He came home all filled with propaganda about "Tom Turkey" and such.

However, the first warning of trouble came that night at supper. We had fried chicken, and Bill, who usually loves it, wouldn't touch a piece. His father and I decided to play along with him for awhile, thinking he'd change his mind. We didn't count on Bill, though.

Saturday I took him grocery shopping with me and asked his advice on which turkey to buy (psychology, that is). He just sat there in the shopping cart with his mouth turned down and tears rolling down his face, not making a sound. I asked him what was wrong. "They killed Tom Turkey!" he wailed.

The butcher thought it was great fun. Some of the women in the super market obviously thought I had beat him or something and gave me disapproving glances. I finally had to left him out of the cart and take him to the car.

I sneaked out of the house later and bought a turkey anyway. I even got it into the freezer. But, unfortunately, I had to take it out Monday night to defrost it. And he started all over again.

So now we're faced with either cooking the turkey for Thanksgiving and listening to Bill scream the whole time or just giving up and serving something else.

Please pass the peanut butter.

Mrs. Gimbert Honored by Club

Last Friday night, Mrs. Kenneth C. Gimbert of Virginia Beach enjoyed the surprise of her life. The Virginia Tidewater Unit and The Norfolk Cavaliers Unit of the National Association of Parliamentarians honored Mrs. Gimbert as Norfolk's Parliamentarian of the Year at a dinner party at the Lafayette Yacht Club.

The scene was set by Mrs. Norman Gimbert, registered parliamentarian and program chairman of the Norfolk Cavaliers Unit, with Mrs. F. G. Rai-ford and Mrs. A. T. Hunter as narrators of the highlights and personal memories of Mrs. Gimbert's life of service on the national, state and local organizational levels. "Dixie" is her favorite song, and was the cue for the festivities to begin. Mrs. George E. Overby, President, Norfolk Cavaliers Unit, presented Mrs. Gimbert with a charm inscribed to "Norfolk's Parliamentarian of the Year - 1968" as a memento to be added to all her other honors.

Florence Gimbert joined the National Association of Parliamentarians in 1952, and became registered parliamentarian #429 in the United States in September 1961.

Locally, Mrs. Gimbert has served as parliamentarian for the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, the Friends of Music of Virginia Beach and the Tidewater Area Council of Girl Scouts. Many clubs, high schools and churches have benefitted from her lectures and classes in basic parliamentary law and procedures.

Needlework Ingathering Is Dec. 4

The annual Ingathering of the Virginia Beach Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, Inc. will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Dec. 4 at Eastern Shore Chapel on Laskin Road.

Open to the public, membership requires only an annual donation of two articles of clothing or household linens or a small contribution of money. Items may be handmade or purchased.

Last year, according to Mrs. Joseph Gawrys, president, more than 800 items were collected. These are annually given to the needy.

Mrs. William R. Weidrick looks at the food gathered by the Little Creek CPO Wives Club for Thanksgiving baskets for deserving Navy families.

CPO Wives Repeat Project

The Little Creek CPO Wives Club's project for November is a repeat performance of last year's Thanksgiving Baskets for the needy.

Mrs. William R. Weidrick, club chaplain, has reported over 150 items that were contributed from club members, making up a total of four baskets. The more expensive foods needed to complete the baskets were donated from the club's treasury.

The baskets will be turned over to the Little Creek Amphibious Base chaplain for distribution to deserving navy families.

Xmas Open Houses Are Next Wednesday

Two Christmas open houses are scheduled in Virginia Beach next Wednesday, Dec. 4.

One is the annual "Christmas in the Country" homes sponsored by the Cape Henry Woman's Club, and the other is the Christmas House sponsored by Broad Bay Garden Club.

The Broad Bay house will feature something new - a Tea House for snacks from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Tea House will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Zimmerman at 2238 Windward Shore Drive, and the Christmas House will be across the street at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Witcher at 2225 Windward Shore Drive. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

The Christmas House will not only be decorated by the garden club members, but various Christmas items will be for sale.

Tickets, at 50 cents, may be purchased at the door. The club hopes to make $2,500 for the purchase of a piece of special equipment for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Christmas in the Country will be two houses across a covered bridge from each other on Oak Lynn Path. One is the home of Cdr. (Ret.) and Mrs. George Webber and the other is the home of Mrs. E. G. Powell.

In addition to the beautifully decorated homes there will be Santa's Kitchen with loads of calories for sale, plus gift items. Tickets are $1, and the hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The homes are on Oak Lynn Path, which is reached by driving out Little Neck Road past Kings Grant and Kingston until you reach Little Haven Road. Follow Little Haven to Oak Lynn Path and follow the signs.

So ladies, get in the mood for Christmas, put on your low-heeled shoes and enjoy yourselves.

The Name of the Game Was...

By Yatta Jones
Sports Editor

There was a peachy-keen football game Nov. 22 at Kellam High School. It was Kellam's fourth "Powder Puff" game. (Isn't that just marry-poo?) If you are wondering what kind of a game that is, well it is one where everything is backwards. The girls, in this case the Junior and Senior girls, play ball and the boys, likewise Junior and Senior boys in this case stay on the sidelines and cheer. And get crowned Queen. And dress like Girls. Ugh.

"Miss Powder Puff 1968", Queen Kelji Ohta.

Anyway, the girls were very brave to play a rough game like football on a chilly night like that and the boys were very game to brave a rough play like being girls at any time. And something should be said for the spectators too. But it couldn't be printed.

Now that the scene is set, let's move to the essentials for all of you sports fans. First of all, the Junior girls had the cutest little white jerseys on, with blue lettering. They wore a variety of pants, but the most popular colors seemed to be light blue, beige and a little black. They had red ribbons hanging out of the back of their pants, which seemed to have something to do with the game. Apparently the Senior girls were trying to steal these little red ribbons, and at the same time the Junior girls were trying to steal white ribbons from the Senior girls.

The Senior girls were dressed in red jerseys with gold lettering. The most popular color for pants again seemed to be light blue, although there was brown, beige and even cranberry pants to be found in the line-up.

There was a lot of talk about things like "reverse plays" "T-formation," "single-wing," and such. Evidently these were the names given to the styles the cheerleaders were wearing. The intriguing part of the game was the halftime show. This show featured a parade and the crowning of "Miss Powder-puff 1968." Candidates for the glory were David Brooks, Ronnie Callahan, Kelji Ohta, Mike Wallace, Ron Lundy and Soc Williams. It was a very tender moment when Kelji Ohta was crowned "Miss Powder Puff" to the strains of the official powder puff song.

Judges for the occasion were Mrs. Davis, Lynda Phillips ("Miss Virginia Beach"), Dr. Ira Hancock and Bill Luttrell, "Miss Powderpuff 1967".

Oh yes, the Bazooka Band played the entire evening. Once in a while they even made a little music.

An accounting of the game really would not be complete without mentioning the fact that the Junior girls beat the Senior girls 26-20.

Scholarships Won by Two

Two Virginia Beach students who are freshmen at Virginia Wesleyan College have been awarded scholarships from the Crawford S. Rogers Fund at the college.

They are Diane Elaine Crandell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin K. Crandell of Romney Lane, and Carol Louise Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Palmer of Nuttfield Lane.

Unbeatens Line Up for Title

The Group 1A high school football championship will be decided Friday night at Foreman Field. That's the night when the inevitable clash between the unbeaten Presidents of Wilson High School of Portsmouth meet the unbeaten Patriots of First Colonial High School of Virginia Beach for the eastern regional playoff.

The Patriots earned the berth in the playoff with a perfect 10-0 season and by winning half the eastern district championship, as well as the Virginia Beach city championship. Norview, which lost one game in inter-district play to Wilson, shares the eastern title, but was not eligible for the playoff on the point system set up by the Virginia High School League.

All the flap over First Colonial's supposedly easier season than Norview's and all the bitterness that came at the end of the regular 1968 season is now forgotten as the final game of the year approaches.

Wilson, (9-0-1) because of the 13-13 tie in the game with Granby two weeks ago, is not in the running for the state title, but First Colonial is. Actually the best the Patriots can do is get a half of the state crown. George Washington of Danville has already captured at least that much, and should the Patriots lose, GW will be the sole winner of the state title, again based on the system set up by the Virginia High School League.

On the point system one-time loser Annandale is first, with Wilson three one-hundredths of a point behind. GW is third and First Colonial is fourth. But the title goes to a team or teams which are unbeaten on the season.

If no team is unbeaten, then the points are considered. But GW trounced Tazewell, 40-0 Saturday in the western division playoff for an 11-0 record on the year. Playoffs in the other districts do not figure in the state title since there are no unbeaten or untied teams in any of them.

So it is as the Patriots and the Presidents line up for the game that will end the 1968 state high school season. First Colonial can either be No. 1 or an also ran. The Patriots had the weekend off last weekend. The coach and players saw Wilson rip into Cradock and come with a decisive 48-6 win. They agree they are meeting a formidable opponent at Foreman Field this Friday.

Wilson is good at everything—passing, rushing, defense and kicking. First Colonial is known to be outstanding on the ground and good in defense, but the Patriots have done little passing all year. Kicking has definitely not been a strong point. Extra point conversions have been hard to come by. It should be a good game, but the Presidents should have the edge. If the game goes the way most believe it will GW of Danville wins the state title all alone. Last weekend Bayside was the only Virginia Beach team in action. The Marlins ended another disappointing season with a 20-7 loss to Lake Taylor. The winless Marlins started strong and held a one-point edge at halftime, but Lake Taylor came back to dominate the second half.

Tree Sales

To Aid Eyes

The annual Christmas Tree Sale by the Virginia Beach Host Lions Club will begin at 10 a.m., Dec. 13 on the parking lot of the Linkhorn Park Shopping Center on Laskin Road. Members of the Club will be present each day from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. to aid in the selection from the supply of Canadian Scotch pine and balsam fir trees.

Funds derived from this project are used in eye preservation and conservation. Many eye examinations and corrections are made possible locally through the proceeds from this project.

New Fashions Project Individuality

Individuality marks the essence of today's fashion thinking . . . the projection of a very private and personal self. The "Look" has never been more defined yet less regimented . . . it's doing your own thing and putting it across as only a woman can.

Projecting is shape . . . affirming the womanly curves of a healthy body . . . the lean, active American look. It's narrow, closely shaped bodices, noticeable waists, free-to-move noticeable waists, free-to-move-in hemlines. It's soft, flowing lines and important necklines, sleeves, detailing.

The trend is strongly sportswear - not so much casual as pulled together - perfected with thought and taste. Dresses have a shirly look . . . the ever present waist. From shapely little tops spring full-flowing sleeves - raglan, kimono or set-in and tucked at the shoulder, deeply cuffed at the wrist. Or choose the long and slender, multi-buttoned sleeve, or no sleeve at all. Necks are deeply V'd, imporantly collared or high and tight . . . always definitive, setting the mood. The waist continues versatile - belted, wrapped, sashed, seamed or merely suggested. Biggest news is still the skirt. Never, ever straight, it moves and moves . . . from flares, to pleats and gathers, to billows of softness.

Coats and suits project the same feeling . . . shapely, waisted, shirly. The suit comes across with jackets longer and belted or cropped at the waist . . . always over a free-moving skirt. Coats, too, hug the body, flare at the hem. They're most new and sporty when sleeveless topping a dress or shirt.

Exotic Resort evenings soften up still more, flow still more. Long or short, full-sleeved or sleeveless, the mood is one of fluid elegance and grace. Nudity plays a big part for evening with plunged necklines, bare shoulders or daring cut-outs displaying a not-so-modest bit of skin. Jeweled beading remains important done with a lighter touch and evening pants are newest . . . so glamorous, they easily replace long gowns.

Projecting is the newness of pants highlighting a long, adventuresome look. Pants under dresses, pants under tunics, their importance lies in superb shaping. The tops stretch down from narrowed bust and waist to a modest below-the-hip flare . . . the pants move from slim hips to an easy, widened leg whether straight or eased or extravagantly flared. It's an elegant, balanced look of costume rather than pieced together sporty that ranges from daytime pants to lacy or flowing evening creations.

Projecting is color . . . white, lots and lots of pristine white, followed by richer reds and blues to navy. Brights have matured, they are clearer or more muted, with yellows and greens favored. The brights belong more to heady prints than solid tones and the pale beiges to browns make a strong show.

Projecting is fabric . . . soft, ultra soft as in jerseys, cottons, light, light wools or chiffons and magnificent silks.

Cotton checks, tweeds and plaids, imaginative novelty prints and lavish florals are newest looking and woven pattern is a must for solid tones . . . nothing is flat, uni-colored.

Projecting is subtle suggestion. It's creating a mood, enhancing ones femaleness. Today's clothes project the intrinsic femininity of all women - right but not rigid, imaginative and tasteful, contoured rather than constructed. It's up to the individual to express this in her own personal style.

VA-35

The Officers' Wives of VA-35 held a boutique auction on Thursday, Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m., at the Birdneck Village clubhouse. Wives of VA-65 and friends were guests.

Boutique items, home baked foods, and white elephant items were sold auction-style by Mrs. Joel Weissman and Mrs. Greg Young. The majority of the proceeds will be given to several charity projects, and the remainder will go to the club's gift fund.

Be Careful in Planting Black Walnuts

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, Extension horticultural specialist at Virginia Tech.)

A couple of months ago we discussed the use of nut trees for home landscape planting. Since that time we have had several letters expressing concern that black walnuts may kill other plants which are growing nearby. This is true and should be considered when black walnuts are planted, or when other plants are set out near established trees.

The problem is not serious. The black walnut is toxic to only a few plants. It is a long-lived fine landscape tree and very desirable when planted in the proper location. The trees provide shade and high quality nuts for home use.

The toxic effect which black walnut trees have on some other plants is caused by a substance called juglone, which is produced in the roots. Speaking chemically, the material is a naphtha-quinone. This substance is a highly effective bactericide.

This is a rather unique situation. Many plants cause various types of allergies, skin eruptions or actual poisoning, when contacted or consumed by people or animals. In some cases, as with rotenone, certain plant derivatives are used as insecticides. There are relatively few plants however, which produce substances which are toxic to other plants.

We do not know exactly how this juglone material causes its toxic effect. We do know that the roots of the injured plant must come in direct contact with the roots of the black walnut tree. Therefore, the damaged plants must be growing close to the walnut and within the spread of its root system.

The black walnut actually damages or kills very few plants which are grown around the home. Your vegetable garden may be planted near walnut trees expect for potato and tomato, which will be killed. Trees use a large amount of soil moisture so you will need to consider this fact, too, when you locate your garden. Blackberry and apple also are seriously damaged by black walnut.

You must avoid planting azaleas, rhododendrons, mountain laurel and blueberries near black walnut. These plants, which you might use in a border planting, are quite susceptible to the toxic juglone substance. Other shrubs seem to be quite tolerant of this material.

Grass grows very well near black walnuts, except during periods of drought when the soil moisture supply is low. In fact, when moisture is adequate, the grass may be better under walnut trees than in other parts of the lawn. We are not sure of the exact reason for this but it may be related to the fact that the soil under walnut trees usually is more basic than surrounding soil. In terms of pH, the soil around the walnut root system may be one-half or more pH value higher.

To sum up the situation, black walnuts may be used as landscape trees when they are not located near the above-cited sensitive plants. Black walnut trees are most useful when planted in the lawn area for shade. The best variety which is readily available is Thomas. It has a relatively thin shell which is much easier to crack than most seedling types. The nuts of the Thomas have superior flavor.

Lake Joyce

The Lake Joyce Garden Club November meeting was held at Shore Drive Inn. The date of the Annual Green's Sale was set for Dec. 21, Bayside Hardware Store, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The club voted to send a subscription for membership to the Botanical Gardens Horticulture Society.

Dr. Ann Lee gave the horticulture report on poisonous plants and presented each member with a pictorial chart of nature's deadliness. Dr. Lee said the latest figures from the National Clearing House Poison Plant Control Center of the Public Health Service, poisonous plants rate sixth among all categories of substances provoking calls and emergencies at hospitals throughout the country.

Mrs. R. S. Ashley a national judge gave a lecture on Artistic Flower Arranging.

Thalia Garden Club

The program for the November meeting was "Exciting Homemades". Instead of a speaker, members selected by the program chairman, Mrs. W. L. Robinson, had a "Show and Tell" of Christmas items they had prepared at home. Mrs. R. D. Adams, Mrs. W. Englett Jr., Mrs. H. O. Freeman, Mrs. A. V. Kuun, Mrs. H. Riggs and Mrs. A. C. Watson presented their efforts 28 door prizes. Mrs. N. P. Amato demonstrated several lovely things to use for holiday arrangements.

Arrowhead Garden Club judged the arrangements titled "Country Life" and "Bless This House". Blue ribbons went to Mrs. L. MacLeod, Mrs. O. W. Self Jr. and two to Mrs. W. Englett Jr. A red ribbon was awarded to Mrs. J. A.

Bailey and Mrs. W. L. Robinson. Mrs. Robinson also received a yellow ribbon.

The club is formulating plans for the second annual "Christmas Tree Lighting" at Thalia Elementary School. During the month ahead the garden club members will be shopping for personalized Christmas gifts to be given to a local convalescent home.

Thoroughgood

The Thoroughgood Garden Club met on Nov. 13 at the home of Mrs. George P. Hand on Country Club Circle with Mrs. L. W. Tilt as co-hostess.

Mrs. W. H. Harrison presided and announced plans for the Club's Annual Christmas Party to be held on Dec. 14 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August H. Culpepper on Wakefield Drive with the members' husbands to be special guests. The president appointed Mrs. Richard Lindell as chairman and Mrs. John M. Barry and Mrs. G. A. Townes as co-chairmen of this Christmas event.

Mrs. J. W. Hayes gave an impressive and interesting lecture on "Christmas for Every Room in the House". Mrs. Hayes suggested using our every-day household items such as the lovely dust pan for the kitchen decor but glamorizing it by use of a nylon crumb brush serving as a central figure with sparkles and evergreens giving it a holiday touch. She stressed the saving of old jewelry to make jeweled Christmas trees and glamorous Kissing Balls. "Never throw anything away," she added "as someday you will find a use for it when you start to make Christmas decorations."

Pembroke Manor Garden Club judges awarded ribbons to Mrs. Jane Reed and Mrs. Gladys Humphries.

Mrs. Deborah Day Everhart of Virginia Beach is one of 24 elementary education majors from Catawba College who have begun their eight weeks of student teaching.

Mrs. Everhart is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Carl Theodore Daye of Independence Blvd.

Winslow Stillman of Virginia Beach is a member of the Duke Freshman Football Team.

Joseph A. Pennington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Pennington of Avalon Avenue, was pledged by Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity at ODC in Norfolk. Pennington, a junior at ODC, is majoring in economics.

a public lecture in Phi Beta Kappa Hall on the William and Mary campus.

Donald Eugene Schatz, son of Cmdr. and Mrs. D. A. Schatz of Hessian Road, is one of 22 students from ODC who will be listed in the 1968 edition of "Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Schatz, a graduate student in International Economics, is attending ODC on a $2500 scholarship. He is a member of the Board of Control of Tau Kappa Epsilon social fraternity, Delta Phi Omega senior honorary scholastic fraternity and has been selected for the Dean's List.

ITALIAN KITCHEN

Goodbye, dull hors d'oeuvres. We're switching to antipasto—the abundant elegance of Italy. The specialty sections to supermarkets will supply a full range of antipasto items—more than fifty classic specialties from Progresso, the major brand, alone—ready for the mixing and matching. Serve separate dishes of ready-to-eat caponata, garden salad, artichokes, olive condite and Tuscan peppers—or decorate a platter with rows of relishes, sliced with carrot strips and altered tomatoes, radiating from a center of imported tonno (meaty tuna packed in olive oil) and quartered hard-boiled eggs. Let guests serve themselves—with side snacks of Roman-style cheese strata. To prepare these Crostini—excellent, too, with soups—trim crusts from white bread, butter on both sides, place on cookie sheet, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and bake in 375 degrees oven until golden brown. Cut each slice into three strips and serve hot.

Rosa C. Webster, a Virginia Beach resident attending Norfolk State College, has been named in this year's national listing of America's most outstanding university and college students.

Her name is included in the 1968-69 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," a listing of the campus leaders from more than 1,000 of the nation's institutions of higher learning. Miss Webster is currently majoring in physics at Norfolk State College.

Sarah Elizabeth Brittingham of Diamond Springs Road is one of 26 seniors at the College of William and Mary who will be initiated into the Phi Beta Kappa Society at the annual meeting of the Alpha of Virginia Chapter on Dec. 5.

The initiation is being held at the Raleigh Tavern where the Society was founded in 1776. A dinner honoring the new initiates will follow the installation ceremonies and that evening the Chapter will sponsor

Matthew Komoroski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Komoroski, picked names for prizes at Rose Hall, coached by Mrs. Frances Downes, children's officer. Winners of gift certificates were Colleen Oaksmith, $15; Martha Ellen Clark, $10, and Leslie M. Hanson, $5.

Vepco Asks Holiday For City

City offices will close Nov. 29 in order to allow Virginia Electric and Power Co. to work on the electrical power at Courthouse Square, Princess Anne.

The unscheduled holiday, which was asked for by Vepco, is being given to city employees so that Vepco can change the electrical service at the courthouse from overhead lines to underground cable.

Municipal Court Clerk Gerald E. Williams is mailing out form letters to all people supposed to appear in Police Court and Traffic Court on that day. All cases set for that day will be continued to Friday, Dec. 6. Circuit Court and all other offices in the square and city will be closed as well.

Vepco has asked for six hours of "dry" daylight. If it should rain Nov. 29 then the work will be done on a weekend, with Vepco footing the bill for the extra cost of overtime for its workers.

It is estimated that as many as 750,000 Americans may suffer heart attacks each year and that more than 350,000 die from them, according to the Public Health Service.

Market Proves Its Worth

In a recent report sent to the Virginia Beach councilmen, E. R. Cockrell, Jr., extension agent for the VPI Cooperative Extension Service revealed that the Virginia Beach Produce Market has paid all of its operating costs and made a 12.8 percent return on the city's capital investment.

The study made by Cockrell covers the Market's first four years of operation, from June 4, 1964 to June 30, 1968. During this time Virginia Beach has invested $32,955.16 in Capital Outlay and $36,894.97 in operating expenses. The Market has received $55,184.22 in gate receipts and paid this to the city, Cockrell felt that these figures proved the success of the Market as a financial investment of the city.

Although the first year of operation was its best year financially, due primarily to the weather conditions, Cockrell notes that the Market is now "operating on an even keel."

The Market in Virginia Beach serves producers in Nanamond County, Isle of Wight, Chesapeake, North Carolina and, at certain seasons, even Florida and northern producers. The nearest competitive market is located in Raleigh, N.C.

Consumers using the market are chain store buyers, restaurants, independent grocers, ship's chandlers and independent consumers.

The Produce Market represents a big savings for producers since they do not have the expense of a middleman, but deal directly with the consumer.

Cockrell stressed the fact that the Market has provided
